Clark Spurns Communists' Explanation

"Honest Accounting" Of Missing Captives Demanded By General

MUNSAN, Friday, Sept. 25 (AP)—Gen. Mark Clark demanded anew last night that the Reds either return immediately more than 3,400 Allied men missing in the Korean War or produce an "honest accounting" of what happened to them.

Simultaneously, the U. N. Command raised the total of Americans on the list from 944 to 958.

The U. N. Far East commander made it clear in a letter handed the Reds at Panmunjom that his demands included U. S. airmen held without prisoner of war classification because the Communists insist their planes crashed in "neutral" Manchuria.

Red Reply "Unacceptable"

Clark bluntly rejected as "wholly unacceptable" the Reds reply Monday to his original demand Sept. 9 for an accounting. That Red answer was to the effect that most of the men listed never had been captured and that others died, escaped or were released at the front.

Clark pointed out that the list included many names of men who had been listed by Red broadcasts as prisoners of war or who had written home from Red camps that they were prisoners.

Also on the list were the names of 23 Americans who were turned over yesterday by the Reds to Indian custody in the demilitarized zone.

Allies To Quiz Anti-Reds

The Reds said the 23 Americans and the others balked at returning home and must go through truce processing machinery.

Saturday Allied explanation teams will interrogate some 23,000 North Koreans and Chinese who have balked going back to Red rule.

Clark's demand for an accounting of the missing Sept. 9 listed 3,404 Allied prisoners including 944 Americans.

Atomic Artillery Unit Embarks For Europe

WILMINGTON, N. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—The United States' first artillery unit capable of handling atomic guns embarked today for Europe.

About 900 men of the 868th Field Artillery Battalion from Ft. Bragg unloaded from buses at a wharf here and immediately went aboard the Navy transport Gen. J. H. McRae, assigned to carry them to Europe for training in Western Germany with NATO forces.

None of the 280mm. guns, capable of firing high explosive or atomic shells, was visible. Spokesmen said they were shipped from another port. Several closely guarded large boxes were put aboard, but no explanation of their contents was made.

U. S. Offers MIG Back To 'Owner'; Reward Dropped

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—The price of Russia's renowned jet fighter, the MIG15, fell from $50,000 to zero on the American market today.

Gen. Mark Clark's Far East Command announced withdrawal of its offer to pay $50,000 to any Red pilot who delivers a Russian-built jet into the hands of United Nations forces in Korea.

At the same time the United States offered to return to its "rightful owner" the MIG15 flown to an American airbase in South Korea last week by a young North Korean pilot.

Some officials here said the enemy aircraft was an old type from which American aviation experts could learn very little. It is known that the Communists have developed an advanced model jet known as the MIG17.

The reward for the delivery of MIGs has been withdrawn "during this period of armistice discussions." This seemed to indicate it would be reinstated if hostilities were resumed, although there was no official statement to this effect.

Pentagon sources suggested the armistice also entered into the offer to return the MIG surrendered in South Korea.

The whole idea of promising a reward for delivery of Red jets to the U. N. side was described as being one thing in wartime and something else in a period of suspended hostitlities.

Reporters were unable to learn where the surrendered MIG is at this moment. Last Tuesday the U. S. Air Force said it had been dismantled and loaded on a C124 Globemaster for shipment to the Air Materiels Command at the Wright-Patterson Air Force Base near Dayton, Ohio.

The Defense Department said definitely today, however, that the plane has not been brought to this country. Reports elsewhere were that it has reached the American base on Okinawa and may still be there.

There was speculation here that the Far East Command, in offering to return the plane to its "rightful owner," might be trying to establish Russian ownership for its propaganda effects.

Price Prop Loss Drops

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—The Agriculture Department reported today a net realized loss of $61,146,000 in carrying out the farm price support program in the fiscal year which ended June 30.

This compares with a net realized loss of $67,352,000 in the preceding year. The peak loss—346 million dollars—occurred in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1951.

Secretary Praises AFL For Exploding "Paradise" Myth

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 24 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today free worker organizations "help mightily in the quest for peace" by exposing the Communist "workers paradise" as a myth.

The AFL's annual convention gave Dulles an enthusiastic ovation after he praised the AFL for having "done more than any other single body" to picture slave conditions behind the Iron Curtain.

"In this matter," Dulles said, "there should be closer co-operation between us. You have not always received the official support and backing you deserve."

Contrast In Receptions

The warm reception given Dulles was in marked contrast to the restrained and polite applause delegates gave to Vice President Nixon yesterday. Nixon denied President Eisenhower had broken a promise, as some AFL leaders claim, to support union-wanted changes in the Taft-Hartley labor law.

The contrast underlined the AFL's wholehearted support of administration foreign policies but bitter opposition to many of the administration's domestic programs.

Dulles received perhaps his greatest applause from delegates when he said this country's foreign policy can best succeed when supported by the American people generally and by both political parties.

AFL "Taking Lead"

He said a worker in New York city can earn enough to buy a pound of butter in 27 minutes of work, but it takes the Moscow worker six hours.

"I know that the persistent influence of communism is a matter of great concern to the free labor unions and that the AFL is taking the lead in combatting this situation," Dulles said.

Another member of President Eisenhower's Cabinet, Secretary of Welfare Oveta Culp Hobby, told the convention she hoped Congress will tackle administration proposals to broaden social security coverage as one of its first matters of business next January.

New U. S. 'Voice' Beamed To Reds

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—A new radio transmitter, one of the most powerful in the world, has started to beam Voice of America broadcasts into Russia and its satellite countries.

The two-million watt installation, built after 17 months of work, is located near Munich, Western Germany, and is now sending out regular programs on the popular band.

The U. S. information agency, in lifting the secrecy wraps around the five million dollar project, reported today the transmitter is broadcasting in 11 languages for 7 hours and 15 minutes daily.

Officials said the American programs can be heard within 150 miles of Moscow under favorable conditions. Russia will have difficulty jamming the new station, they said, since it uses the same band as Radio Moscow, 173 kilocycles.

Rita And Haymes Married In Three-Minute Ceremony

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Sept. 24 (AP)—Rita Hayworth and Dick Haymes were married today in a three-minute ceremony that looked more like a Hollywood press conference than a wedding.

The bride's two little daughters, Rebecca, 8, and the Princess Yasmine, 3½, sat on a divan while their mother and Haymes went through the ceremony in a hotel. The children kept turning their heads from the photographers back to the wedding ceremony almost as though watching a tennis match.

The wedding, staged by a press agent as if it were a scene out of one of Miss Hayworth's movies, was an hour late. This was due in part to the bride's nervousness in getting dressed and to the judge's tardiness because of a jury trial he was conducting downtown.

It was the fourth marriage for each. Haymes obtained a Nevada decree only yesterday from Nora Eddington Flynn Haymes. She won a California decree last week. Rita was divorced from Moslem Prince Aly Khan in Reno last January.

Rita, smiling radiantly and looking beautiful as a movie queen should, went calmly through the ceremony until she answered with the traditional, "I do." Then big tears came to her eyes and she started fidgeting.

The ceremony was so brief it was over before the double ring part of the rite could be accomplished. Haymes got the ring on Rita's finger during the three-minute span, but after the wedding was over, hotelman Jack Entratter fished out the ring that Rita was supposed to put on Haymes' finger. So she put it on anyway.

When her daughter Yasmine saw this, she yelled: "Mama, I want a ring, too."

Ike, Top Aides Meet As H-Bomb Threat Grows

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—The dread hydrogen bomb may turn out to be so cheap and simple that almost any nation can produce an arsenal of them in a few short years.

That word seeped out today as President Eisenhower met in a prolonged, 3-hour session with his National Security Council, the commanders and civilian chiefs of the armed forces, and a committee of advisers on defense of the North American continent.

Secret Session

No information was released after the secret session as to what took place. Vice President Nixon, one of the 26 participants, commented in reply to questions that meetings of the council are "always completely confidential." The extraordinary nature of the session was attested by the fact that more than twice the usual number attended.

Of primary concern, obviously, was Russia's position in the atomic arms race, and America's ability to unleash retaliatory action if the Soviet Union should start war with hydrogen bombs.

But it was the amazing progress in development of H-bombs for the American arsenal that stirred alarm.

On Track Of Cheap Bomb

Nuclear scientists are on the track of methods for making and exploding hydrogen weapons so simplified and so relatively cheap that any nation with a moderate military budget may be able to manufacture them well within the next decade.

Among other things, the American bomb makers are working on a technique for "triggering" the mighty hydrogen bomb without using the unearthly heat of a standard fission bomb to set off the atomic fusion process of hydrogen.

Pro-Red Prisoners Not Held For Trial

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—An Army spokesman said today that former American prisoners of war accused informally by some of their companions of collaborating with their Communist captors are being discharged from service as they become due for release.

In answer to questions, he said none is being held in service for court martial because no formal accusations against them have been received by the Army.

Anyone in the military service has the right to bring charges of crime, the spokesman said, but to date none have been lodged by former war prison comrades of American soldiers released by the Reds after the truce and who are now back in American custody.

Illinois Troopers Halt Touring Adlai

PONTIAC, Ill., Sept. 24 (AP)—Two state policemen patroling U. S. Highway 66, halted a new Oldsmobile sedan yesterday because it had no license plates.

The driver, who was alone, explained he had just purchased the auto and had applied for plates. He commended the officers, T. D. McNamara and D. L. McKinney, for vigilance.

Ickes' Antique Auto On Block

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—When the late self-styled Old Curmudgeon, Harold Ickes, parted with $100 of the government's money for a 1904 Cadillac he didn't figure the government would turn a 2,000 per cent profit on the deal. But it's possible.

The one-cylinder buggy, rustless and ready to roll at the twist of a side-winder crank, is up for bids by the Bureau of Public Roads.

"Dozens of people," the bureau said today, have inquired for bid forms, and $2,000 isn't a high price among antique car collectors for a specimen that not only chugs dutifully but gleams almost like new.

Besides being secretary of the interior, Ickes was public works administrator, pouring billions into federal roads and building projects to meet the great depression. He decided to buy the maroon Cadillac then in its 30s, for display in a New York exhibit dramatizing highway progress.

Public roads isn't sure just how it fell heir to the windowless, doorless, one-seater horseless carriage.

But the agency kept it in spanking condition, renovated it now and then and recently decided to invite sealed bids. They will be opened Oct. 30.

Hagerstown's Civil Defense Chief Quits

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Sept. 24 (AP)—Hagerstown Civil Defense Director Edward W. King has submitted his resignation to Gov. McKeldin.

King, who had held the post for about three years, said he was sorry the press of private employment forced him to give up the post.

The resignation leaves the door open for the mayor to recommend another man for the job to the governor.

EISENSTADT, Austria, Sept. 24 (AP)—Twelve houses in the village of Dobersdorf were destroyed today, along with some cattle, chickens and farm machinery, in a fire started by children playing with matches. Three firemen were injured.

Packinghouse Union Reports Strike Possible

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 24 (AP)—An imminent strike by both AFL and CIO workers which could tie up the nation's entire meat producing industry was threatened today at the AFL convention here.

The unexpected announcement was made by Patrick E. Gorman, secretary-treasurer of the AFL Meatcutters and Butcher Workmen, from the convention rostrum.

Gorman mentioned no date but said the executive board of his union has authorized one final effort to reach an agreement with major packers. Contract negotiations have been under way since July 1, and with the Swift Packing Co. since May 11.

The AFL union has been working closely with the CIO packinghouse workers, he said, in a campaign to obtain wage increases and other benefits for the meat packing industry's 200,000 union workers.

"We have been meeting together and planning together," Gorman said. "If a strike is declared, the CIO will be fighting side by side with us."

Four Sent To Prison On Narcotics Charge

BALTIMORE, Sept. 24 (AP)—Four men received sentences of up to 10 years each today on dope charges involving $25,000 worth of narcotics removed from the "loosely conducted" pharmacy at the University of Maryland Hospital here.

Sgt. Joseph Carroll, head of the police narcotics squad, testified that nearly 7,000 morphine tablets stolen from the pharmacy would be worth $5,000 on the black market and about 26½ ounces of cocaine taken would be worth $700 and $800 an ounce in illicit traffic.

Youth Who Admitted Killing Five Guilty; Faces Life Term

CANANDAIGUA, N. Y., Sept. 24 (AP)—Fred Eugene McManus, the 19-year-old Valley Stream, L. I., youth who confessed five killings, today was found guilty of first-degree felony murder.

But a State Supreme Court jury recommended life imprisonment, and it was probable that Justice H. Douglass Van Duser would honor the recommendation in passing sentence Saturday.

The young ex-Marine was poker-faced as the verdict was announced.

A moment later, however, he flashed a bit of the devil-may-care nonchalance that he showed last spring when he and his teen-age sweetheart were captured in Dubuque, Ia., after a crime spree through the East and Midwest.

He squeezed the shoulder of his father, brewery executive Mose McManus and then grinned broadly as he was led away to the Ontario County jail.

A felony is one that occurs during the commission of another crime — in this case, robbery.

McManus has said he slew the five persons in order to get money and a car to take him and 16-year-old Diane Marie Weggeland west to a state with less stringent marriage laws than New York. They did not get married. The killings netted about $60 in cash.

Van Duser still can sentence McManus to death in the electric chair for the pistol-killing last March 27 of William Allan Braverman, 18, a Hobart College student from Rochester. However, in most cases, the jury's recommendation is followed.

McManus was tried on a charge of first-degree premeditated murder. Conviction on that charge would have meant a mandatory death sentence. He pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

Gls' Shocked Families Feel News Untrue

Men Quoted As Saying They Love U. S., Hope To Return Some Day

TOKYO, Friday, Sept. 25 (AP)—The Communists yesterday made public the names of 23 U. S. prisoners they said refused to go home where "those who speak out for peace and freedom are rapidly being silenced."

The quotation was from a statement, purportedly signed by all 23, handed out by a Communist correspondent at Panmunjom.

The statement quoted them as saying they still loved America and hoped to return some day but for now felt they could best work for peace behind the Bamboo Curtain.

A quick flood of reaction in the United States from anguished relatives of men named on the list was one of almost unanimous disbelief.

Would Have To Be "Deranged"

"He would absolutely have to be mentally deranged," said the father of one man.

The Communists timed their publicity fanfare with the arrival in Korea's demilitarized zone of the 23 Americans and a Briton who leaped off Red trucks singing "the Internationale," anthem of worldwide communism.

Allied observers heard some say "see you in Peiping" on leaving their Red captors for the custody of Indian troops, who will guard them while Allied explanation teams seek to change their minds.

Shortly after arrival of the 24, along with 335 South Koreans also said to be resisting repatriation, Communist correspondent Wilfred Burchett handed over names of the Americans and the Briton to Allied newsmen.

List Broadcast By Reds

Allied military censors refused to pass the list of names. But a little later the list was broadcast by Red China's Peiping radio and picked up in Tokyo, where there is no censorship on Communist broadcasts.

The names were given without home towns. Addresses for 22 of the 23 Americans were obtained from the official list of missing prisoners released earlier this month in Washington.

The statement attributed to the Americans took swipes at Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis), leader of an investigation of Communist influence in government, and at Gen. Mark Clark, U. N. Far East commander.

Hurricane Heads Into Mexican Gulf

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 24 (AP)—Hurricane Florence sped through the Yucatan Channel today and headed into the Gulf of Mexico, 250 miles west southwest of Havana, Cuba, and 400 miles southwest of Fort Myers, Fla.

The small hurricane was still in the formative stages and will increase in size and intensity during the night, said the Miami Weather Bureau in a 5 p.m., EST, advisory.

At that time the center was still in the Yucatan Channel, moving toward the northwest at about 20 miles per hour.

Winds had reached hurricane force (75 m.p.h. in squalls in the northeast quadrant and gales extended outward 75 miles in the eastern semi-circle.

The Weather Bureau said indications are for northwest to north northwest movement at a somewhat slower rate during the next 24 hours and promised it could become a "very dangerous storm" as it moved into the Gulf of Mexico. Shipping in the storm's path was advised to use caution.

Strategic Metal Seized

VARESE, Italy, Sept. 24 (AP)—Police seized more than two tons of strategic metals from four Swiss cars at a border crossing yesterday. A high Italian official said the metals apparently were headed to Iron Curtain territory.

Informer Cases Will Be Scanned

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson said tonight his department will "carefully and sympathetically" examine cases in which former American prisoners of the Chinese Communists were alleged to have made false confessions or turned informer on prisoners.

In a statement, Wilson said:

"We do not as a general principle condone those who made false confessions contrary to the interests of their country, or whose actions cause their fellow prisoners added misery.

"Such cases will be carefully and sympathetically examined by the services concerned to ascertain whether in any of them there has been an unreasonable failure to measure up to the standard of individual conduct which is expected even of a prisoner of war or deviations from standards of behavior prescribed by law."

This was a reference to the Code of Military Justice.

A Pentagon spokesman said the Army has taken an interest in the cases of several returned American POWs who have told newsmen that under pressure and torture they were forced to "dream up" stories about alleged germ warfare methods used by the United States in Korea.

Lias Deportation Hearing Adjourned

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 24 (AP)—A deportation hearing for William G. (Big Bill) Lias was adjourned by Hearing Officer Lloyd H. Matson for 60 days today to give the government more time to hunt for facts on Lias' birthplace.

The postponement was granted after the government introduced a report from Gythion, Greece, in an attempt to prove Lias was born there. Lias came to the United States in 1909 and reentered the country illegally in 1949, the government says.

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Sept. 24 (AP)—Rita Hayworth and Dick Haymes were married today in a three-minute ceremony that looked more like a Hollywood press conference than a wedding.

The bride's two little daughters, Rebecca, 8, and the Princess Yasmine, 3½, sat on a divan while their mother and Haymes went through the ceremony in a hotel. The children kept turning their heads from the photographers back to the wedding ceremony almost as though watching a tennis match.

The wedding, staged by a press agent as if it were a scene out of one of Miss Hayworth's movies, was an hour late. This was due in part to the bride's nervousness in getting dressed and to the judge's tardiness because of a jury trial he was conducting downtown.

It was the fourth marriage for each. Haymes obtained a Nevada decree only yesterday from Nora Eddington Flynn Haymes. She won a California decree last week. Rita was divorced from Moslem Prince Aly Khan in Reno last January.

Rita, smiling radiantly and looking beautiful as a movie queen should, went calmly through the ceremony until she answered with the traditional, "I do." Then big tears came to her eyes and she started fidgeting.

The ceremony was so brief it was over before the double ring part of the rite could be accomplished. Haymes got the ring on Rita's finger during the three-minute span, but after the wedding was over, hotelman Jack Entratter fished out the ring that Rita was supposed to put on Haymes' finger. So she put it on anyway.

Ike, Top Aides Meet As H-Bomb Threat Grows

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—The dread hydrogen bomb may turn out to be so cheap and simple that almost any nation can produce an arsenal of them in a few short years.

That word seeped out today as President Eisenhower met in a prolonged, 3-hour session with his National Security Council, the commanders and civilian chiefs of the armed forces, and a committee of advisers on defense of the North American continent.

Secret Session

No information was released after the secret session as to what took place. Vice President Nixon, one of the 26 participants, commented in reply to questions that meetings of the council are "always completely confidential." The extraordinary nature of the session was attested by the fact that more than twice the usual number attended.

Of primary concern, obviously, was Russia's position in the atomic arms race, and America's ability to unleash retaliatory action if the Soviet Union should start war with hydrogen bombs.

But it was the amazing progress in development of H-bombs for the American arsenal that stirred alarm.

On Track Of Cheap Bomb

Nuclear scientists are on the track of methods for making and exploding hydrogen weapons so simplified and so relatively cheap that any nation with a moderate military budget may be able to manufacture them well within the next decade.

Among other things, the American bomb makers are working on a technique for "triggering" the mighty hydrogen bomb without using the unearthly heat of a standard fission bomb to set off the atomic fusion process of hydrogen.

Pro-Red Prisoners Not Held For Trial

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—An Army spokesman said today that former American prisoners of war accused informally by some of their companions of collaborating with their Communist captors are being discharged from service as they become due for release.

In answer to questions, he said none is being held in service for court martial because no formal accusations against them have been received by the Army.

Anyone in the military service has the right to bring charges of crime, the spokesman said, but to date none have been lodged by former war prison comrades of American soldiers released by the Reds after the truce and who are now back in American custody.

Illinois Troopers Halt Touring Adlai

PONTIAC, Ill., Sept. 24 (AP)—Two state policemen patroling U. S. Highway 66, halted a new Oldsmobile sedan yesterday because it had no license plates.

The driver, who was alone, explained he had just purchased the auto and had applied for plates. He commended the officers, T. D. McNamara and D. L. McKinney, for vigilance.

Ickes' Antique Auto On Block

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—When the late self-styled Old Curmudgeon, Harold Ickes, parted with $100 of the government's money for a 1904 Cadillac he didn't figure the government would turn a 2,000 per cent profit on the deal. But it's possible.

The one-cylinder buggy, rustless and ready to roll at the twist of a side-winder crank, is up for bids by the Bureau of Public Roads.

"Dozens of people," the bureau said today, have inquired for bid forms, and $2,000 isn't a high price among antique car collectors for a specimen that not only chugs dutifully but gleams almost like new.

Besides being secretary of the interior, Ickes was public works administrator, pouring billions into federal roads and building projects to meet the great depression. He decided to buy the maroon Cadillac then in its 30s, for display in a New York exhibit dramatizing highway progress.

Public roads isn't sure just how it fell heir to the windowless, doorless, one-seater horseless carriage.

But the agency kept it in spanking condition, renovated it now and then and recently decided to invite sealed bids. They will be opened Oct. 30.

Hagerstown's Civil Defense Chief Quits

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Sept. 24 (AP)—Hagerstown Civil Defense Director Edward W. King has submitted his resignation to Gov. McKeldin.

King, who had held the post for about three years, said he was sorry the press of private employment forced him to give up the post.

Fire Levels 12 Houses

EISENSTADT, Austria, Sept. 24 (AP)—Twelve houses in the village of Dobersdorf were destroyed today, along with some cattle, chickens and farm machinery, in a fire started by children playing with matches. Three firemen were injured.

Packinghouse Union Reports Strike Possible

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 24 (AP)—An imminent strike by both AFL and CIO workers which could tie up the nation's entire meat producing industry was threatened today at the AFL convention here.

The unexpected announcement was made by Patrick E. Gorman, secretary-treasurer of the AFL Meatcutters and Butcher Workmen, from the convention rostrum.

Gorman mentioned no date but said the executive board of his union has authorized one final effort to reach an agreement with major packers. Contract negotiations have been under way since July 1, and with the Swift Packing Co. since May 11.

The AFL union has been working closely with the CIO packinghouse workers, he said, in a campaign to obtain wage increases and other benefits for the meat packing industry's 200,000 union workers.

"We have been meeting together and planning together," Gorman said. "If a strike is declared, the CIO will be fighting side by side with us."

Four Sent To Prison On Narcotics Charge

BALTIMORE, Sept. 24 (AP)—Four men received sentences of up to 10 years each today on dope charges involving $25,000 worth of narcotics removed from the "loosely conducted" pharmacy at the University of Maryland Hospital here.

Sgt. Joseph Carroll, head of the police narcotics squad, testified that nearly 7,000 morphine tablets stolen from the pharmacy would be worth $5,000 on the black market and about 26½ ounces of cocaine taken would be worth $700 and $800 an ounce in illicit traffic.

Russia Hopes To Win World Before 1980

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—A Polish delegate to the United Nations who fled to the free world said today Russia's "master plan" calls for world conquest by 1970 or 1980—but no immediate war.

Testifying at a televised hearing before the House Un-American Activities Committee, Dr. Marek Stanislaw Korowicz, 50, a Krakow University law professor, declared:

"The Kremlin feels that under present circumstances, war is not the best way to achieve their aims."

Life In Poland "Real Inferno"

Korowicz's cool, matter-of-fact description of recent life behind the Iron Curtain—a life he described as misery, slavery, a "real inferno"—was broadcast by the Voice of America and Radio Free Europe to his homeland and to most of the Communist world.

All hopes for peace and freedom, he testified, rest with the United States.

"Now I can speak the truth. In Poland, the truth is forbidden. No one dares to speak the truth. All life becomes a living lie," he said.

Revolt Impossible

Korowicz who walked out of the Polish U. N. delegation last week to seek haven under the American flag, said only 6 to 7 per cent of his people are Reds — and not more than 2 per cent of Polish voters would support the Communist party in a free election.

But any workers' revolt, such as recently flared in East Germany, would be "immediately drowned in the blood of the Polish people," he said.

Russian troops are spread through Poland to suppress any uprising, he said, and all officers in the Polish army above the rank of lieutenant colonel are actually Russians.

Hurricane Heads Into Mexican Gulf

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 24 (AP)—Hurricane Florence sped through the Yucatan Channel today and headed into the Gulf of Mexico, 250 miles west southwest of Havana, Cuba, and 400 miles southwest of Fort Myers, Fla.

The small hurricane was still in the formative stages and will increase in size and intensity during the night, said the Miami Weather Bureau in a 5 p.m., EST, advisory.

At that time the center was still in the Yucatan Channel, moving toward the northwest at about 20 miles per hour.

Winds had reached hurricane force (75 m.p.h. in squalls in the northeast quadrant and gales extended outward 75 miles in the eastern semi-circle.

The Weather Bureau said indications are for northwest to north northwest movement at a somewhat slower rate during the next 24 hours and promised it could become a "very dangerous storm" as it moved into the Gulf of Mexico. Shipping in the storm's path was advised to use caution.

Youth Who Admitted Killing Five Guilty; Faces Life Term

CANANDAIGUA, N. Y., Sept. 24 (AP)—Fred Eugene McManus, the 19-year-old Valley Stream, L. I., youth who confessed five killings, today was found guilty of first-degree felony murder.

But a State Supreme Court jury recommended life imprisonment, and it was probable that Justice H. Douglass Van Duser would honor the recommendation in passing sentence Saturday.

The young ex-Marine was poker-faced as the verdict was announced.

A moment later, however, he flashed a bit of the devil-may-care nonchalance that he showed last spring when he and his teen-age sweetheart were captured in Dubuque, Ia., after a crime spree through the East and Midwest.

He squeezed the shoulder of his father, brewery executive Mose McManus and then grinned broadly as he was led away to the Ontario County jail.

A felony is one that occurs during the commission of another crime — in this case, robbery.

McManus has said he slew the five persons in order to get money and a car to take him and 16-year-old Diane Marie Weggeland west to a state with less stringent marriage laws than New York. They did not get married. The killings netted about $60 in cash.

Van Duser still can sentence McManus to death in the electric chair for the pistol-killing last March 27 of William Allan Braverman, 18, a Hobart College student from Rochester. However, in most cases, the jury's recommendation is followed.

McManus was tried on a charge of first-degree premeditated murder. Conviction on that charge would have meant a mandatory death sentence. He pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

Gls' Shocked Families Feel News Untrue

Men Quoted As Saying They Love U. S., Hope To Return Some Day

TOKYO, Friday, Sept. 25 (AP)—The Communists yesterday made public the names of 23 U. S. prisoners they said refused to go home where "those who speak out for peace and freedom are rapidly being silenced."

The quotation was from a statement, purportedly signed by all 23, handed out by a Communist correspondent at Panmunjom.

The statement quoted them as saying they still loved America and hoped to return some day but for now felt they could best work for peace behind the Bamboo Curtain.

A quick flood of reaction in the United States from anguished relatives of men named on the list was one of almost unanimous disbelief.

Would Have To Be "Deranged"

"He would absolutely have to be mentally deranged," said the father of one man.

The Communists timed their publicity fanfare with the arrival in Korea's demilitarized zone of the 23 Americans and a Briton who leaped off Red trucks singing "the Internationale," anthem of worldwide communism.

Allied observers heard some say "see you in Peiping" on leaving their Red captors for the custody of Indian troops, who will guard them while Allied explanation teams seek to change their minds.

Shortly after arrival of the 24, along with 335 South Koreans also said to be resisting repatriation, Communist correspondent Wilfred Burchett handed over names of the Americans and the Briton to Allied newsmen.

List Broadcast By Reds

Allied military censors refused to pass the list of names. But a little later the list was broadcast by Red China's Peiping radio and picked up in Tokyo, where there is no censorship on Communist broadcasts.

The names were given without home towns. Addresses for 22 of the 23 Americans were obtained from the official list of missing prisoners released earlier this month in Washington.

The statement attributed to the Americans took swipes at Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis), leader of an investigation of Communist influence in government, and at Gen. Mark Clark, U. N. Far East commander.

Informer Cases Will Be Scanned

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson said tonight his department will "carefully and sympathetically" examine cases in which former American prisoners of the Chinese Communists were alleged to have made false confessions or turned informer on prisoners.

In a statement, Wilson said:

"We do not as a general principle condone those who made false confessions contrary to the interests of their country, or whose actions cause their fellow prisoners added misery.

"Such cases will be carefully and sympathetically examined by the services concerned to ascertain whether in any of them there has been an unreasonable failure to measure up to the standard of individual conduct which is expected even of a prisoner of war or deviations from standards of behavior prescribed by law."

This was a reference to the Code of Military Justice.

A Pentagon spokesman said the Army has taken an interest in the cases of several returned American POWs who have told newsmen that under pressure and torture they were forced to "dream up" stories about alleged germ warfare methods used by the United States in Korea.

Lias Deportation Hearing Adjourned

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 24 (AP)—A deportation hearing for William G. (Big Bill) Lias was adjourned by Hearing Officer Lloyd H. Matson for 60 days today to give the government more time to hunt for facts on Lias' birthplace.

The postponement was granted after the government introduced a report from Gythion, Greece, in an attempt to prove Lias was born there. Lias came to the United States in 1909 and reentered the country illegally in 1949, the government says.

Disbelief Expressed By Families Of GIs Who Refuse Repatriation

Many Believe Men Held Against Will

[By The Associated Press]

Shocked Americans found it hard to believe yesterday that their soldier-relatives in Korea have refused to return home.

"There must be a mistake someplace . . .

"Another Communist trick . . .

"I just don't know what to think. . . .

"I don't believe it. . . ."

These were among reactions to the Communist listings of American prisoners who reportedly refused repatriation from Communist hands. A number of kin said they believed the men were being held against their will.

Very few had any advance warning of the news. A couple or so, however, had detected a note of pro-Communist sympathy in recent letters from the men.

"If I could talk to him for at least 10 minutes I could at least make a dent in that kind of thinking," said Mrs. Portia M. Howe, of Alden, Minn., mother of Pfc. Richard R. Tenneson, 21.

"If you accept communism you turn against God.—that's what worries me right now more than anything."

She said that before her son left for Korea he told her he wouldn't consider he had done enough for his country even if he won the Medal of Honor.

As a prisoner he was sick.

"It was then," the mother said, "that his letters began praising the Communists for the treatment he was getting."

Ralph Sullivan Sr., of Omaha, Neb., whose son, Sgt. Larance V. Sullivan, was named on the list, put it this way:

"I'll never believe that. It couldn't be true. It's quite impossible . . .

"He would have to be mentally deranged. They would have to force it on him. Why, he was making a career out of the Army. He wasn't even drafted. He enlisted. . . .

"I can't figure it out. It doesn't make sense. There must be a mistake someplace."

A weeping Negro mother, Mrs. Gladys Peoples of Memphis, Tenn., declared: "It's just another Communist trick."

She said of her son, Cpl. Clarence C. Adams, 24:

"He wouldn't play ball with them. He loved his country too much for that."

"IT'S NOT TRUE"—So says Muriel Wills, 28, sister of Army Pfc. Morris R. Wills, 20, Fort Ann, N. Y. "I know he wants to come home. They're holding him against his will." Muriel displays her brother's last three letters and a picture of him. Wills' name appeared yesterday on a list of American POWs the Communists said had refused repatriation.

"Love Triangle" Hinted In Slaying

UPPER SANDUSKY, Ohio, Sept. 24 (AP)—The 19-year-old student who police say confessed he killed a pretty Ohio Wesleyan University co-ed was writing romantic letters to another girl at the time of the slaying.

Sheriff Earl Fravel of Delaware County, seat of Ohio Wesleyan, said today a search of the Delaware, Ohio, room which Roy Schinagle occupied turned up three letters from a girl at Wittenberg College, Springfield, Ohio, and one letter Schinagle had written but never mailed to the Wittenberg student. Neither the second girl's name nor the content of the letters were disclosed.

Wyandot County officials said Schinagle would appear Friday morning before Justice of the Peace Loren C. Schoenberger to answer a charge of first-degree murder.

He will be charged in the strangulation-bludgeon death of Miss Cynthia Pfeil, 19, of White Plains, N. Y., his pregnant campus sweetheart.

Dentist's Attempt To Extract Extra $20 Unsuccessful

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 24 (AP)—A dentist's attempt to extract $20 extra from a patient for broken appointments failed here today.

Civil Judge Myron L. Gordon disallowed the claim of Dr. Jack L. Williams against Richard Boho for an extra fee of $20 at the rate of $4 per hour for the time Boho allegedly was late.

Boho claimed he had a contract calling for full payment of $189 for installation of a partial plate. The judge ruled this was a written contract which could not be properly modified by notations on appointment slips.

Strike Brings Italian Industry To Standstill

ROME, Sept. 24 (AP)—A 24-hour nationwide strike by Communist and non-Communist labor unions brought Italy's industry to a virtual standstill today.

No violence was reported anywhere in the country.

But both the free and Communist-controlled labor federations hailed it as probably the most complete strike shutdown of industry since the war.

The strike began last midnight to emphasize a demand for higher wages and better security guarantees which the Italian Confederation of Industry declares would cost 500 billion lire (800 million dollars) a year.

Gamma Globulin Receives Credit For Polio Break

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP)—The ominously rising wave of polio crested and broke sharply in July, and there are cautious hopes that gamma globulin, G.G., helped break it.

It is too early yet for proof that G.G. actually was a breakwater saving thousands of children from polio.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis believes that "mass community use of G.G. has been beneficial," and is planning bigger mass shots next year.

Here is what happened:

By mid-July, the polio rate was rising rapidly, keeping pace with the 1952 record of 57,000 cases.

Suddenly in the week of July 18, the rate leveled off, then sharply declined. The rate this year is not only below last year's, but below the five-year average of 1948-52.

It was in July that mass inoculations of children under 10 were started with G.G. First in Alabama, then in North Carolina, New York, Illinois, Michigan, Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Alaska.

"It is not claimed that G.G. solely brought about these results but it is interesting to note that the decline began earlier than would ordinarily be expected, and this was coincidental with the time that mass inoculations of G.G. were conducted," a foundation official said today.

The Polio Virus is a mystery agent, following strange ways, never predictable. There could be other explanations for the July break.

Former Spanish Monarchist Dies

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, Sept. 24 (AP)—The Duke of Alba, prominent Spanish Monarchist and most titled man in Europe outside a reigning family, died at Cecil Clinic today at the age of 74, the House of Spain announced.

The nobleman, who was a controversial supporter of Generalissimo Francisco Franco during Spain's Civil War, died suddenly.

No information was available immediately as to the cause of his death.

The duke served the late King Alfonso of Spain as foreign minister in the final years of the King's reign. When the Spanish Civil War broke out in 1936 he went to London and became an outstanding champion of the Nationalist cause as an unofficial ambassador. He became the Spanish ambassador when the British government finally recognized the Franco regime.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP)—The ominously rising wave of polio crested and broke sharply in July, and there are cautious hopes that gamma globulin, G.G., helped break it.

It is too early yet for proof that G.G. actually was a breakwater saving thousands of children from polio.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis believes that "mass community use of G.G. has been beneficial," and is planning bigger mass shots next year.

Here is what happened:

By mid-July, the polio rate was rising rapidly, keeping pace with the 1952 record of 57,000 cases.

Suddenly in the week of July 18, the rate leveled off, then sharply declined. The rate this year is not only below last year's, but below the five-year average of 1948-52.

It was in July that mass inoculations of children under 10 were started with G.G. First in Alabama, then in North Carolina, New York, Illinois, Michigan, Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Alaska.

"It is not claimed that G.G. solely brought about these results but it is interesting to note that the decline began earlier than would ordinarily be expected, and this was coincidental with the time that mass inoculations of G.G. were conducted," a foundation official said today.

The Polio Virus is a mystery agent, following strange ways, never predictable. There could be other explanations for the July break.

Former Spanish Monarchist Dies

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, Sept. 24 (AP)—The Duke of Alba, prominent Spanish Monarchist and most titled man in Europe outside a reigning family, died at Cecil Clinic today at the age of 74, the House of Spain announced.

The nobleman, who was a controversial supporter of Generalissimo Francisco Franco during Spain's Civil War, died suddenly.

No information was available immediately as to the cause of his death.

The duke served the late King Alfonso of Spain as foreign minister in the final years of the King's reign. When the Spanish Civil War broke out in 1936 he went to London and became an outstanding champion of the Nationalist cause as an unofficial ambassador. He became the Spanish ambassador when the British government finally recognized the Franco regime.

Latin Is Dying All Over Again, Educator Says

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—It seems impossible, but Latin, already a dead language, is dying all over again in this country.

This is the view of Dr. John Latimer, assistant dean of the College of General Studies at George Washington University. And, as one of Latin's best friends, he thinks he has a plan for reviving it.

But, first, a look at the state of Latin's health.

"In 1934," Latimer said, "16 per cent of all high school students were taking Latin. By 1949 the percentage had dropped to 7.4, and I presume it's still going down."

Once it was considered routine for all college students to take Latin.

"But classes open here at G. W. next week," Latimer said, "and I suppose I'll have around 25 in my Latin classes." George Washington has an enrollment of 10,000, of whom 7,000 are undergraduates with a vast disinterest in Latin.

Latimer's plan for revival is surprising in that it goes back to the way Latin was taught in this country for the first 200 years.

Most recent Latin students have turned to a "pony"—that is, a store-bought translation — to help them in their work occasionally. This practice has been so severely frowned on that it could mean expulsion for the student caught at it.

Latimer thinks these hard-pressed students were on the right track. He proposes to fix up textbooks with the Latin down one side of the page and the English translation down the other.

"It will save tremendous time," Latimer said, "and we'll be able to go much faster than we could by forcing a student to look up each word for himself."

When Latimer got out of the Navy after World War II, he began a study of the history of the way classical languages had been taught in this country.

To his surprise, he found the early teachers always used books with both English and Latin texts. "It wasn't until around 1850," he said, "that this was considered sinful."

Latimer thinks this philosophy finally prevailed:

"If a thing was hard, it was good for you. The harder it was, the better it was for you."

The theory: Anyone who had rassled a Latin verb up one conjugation and down another would have no trouble solving life's other problems.

"I suppose there's something in that," Latimer said, "but it's a pointless argument if you reach a place where no one is studying Latin at all."

And Latimer, though admittedly prejudiced, feels Latin should be studied.

"Seventy per cent of all our words come from Latin," said Latin's loyal friend. "It's still the best way to understand the English language."

French Encircle 5,000 Vietminh

KESAT, Indochina, Sept. 24 (AP)—French Union troops encircled more than 5,000 Vietminh soldiers amid flooded rice fields north of the Red River today. It was the biggest drive yet in a campaign to keep the Communist-led enemy from getting set for a fall offensive.

Five infantry spearheads closed in a big area northeast of Hung Yen, a guerrilla-infested town of 4,000 in the Red River Delta 30 miles southeast of Hanoi that the French call the Vietminh's "ambush capital." Though the French Union forces appeared to out number the enemy 3 to 1, there was heavy resistance.

French artillery, naval and tank gunners spewed shells against fortified points within the vast ring formed by the riflemen, who at times had to wade waist deep through the paddies in their slow advance. French warplanes hammered steadily at the enemy.

The French hoped to kill or capture most of the entrapped troops, but did not exclude the possibility that a considerable number might escape by worming out through the rice, a waving blanket of green four feet high. The enemy soldiers, slippery as eels, were fighting in terrain they like.

In three months of campaigning within the delta, the key zone of north Indochina, the French probably have accounted for 5,000 Vietminh in all—killed, wounded and captured. Ten times that many are believed still in the delta, ready to serve the Moscow-trained Ho Chi Minh in guerrilla attacks or regular warfare when the seasonal rains end next month.

Cash Budgeting

In each successive revision of the Truman estimates since January officials of the Eisenhower administration have observed that the figures on government income, government outgo, and the prospective deficit would be different if the federal budget were on a cash basis.

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey says the country has reached "the essential turning point toward a balanced budget," as a result of the most recent cuts in expenditures, but there will still be a deficit of $3.8 billion next June 30 under present methods of accounting. A cash budget on the other hand, would show a deficit of only about a half billion.

The chief difference between the two methods of budgeting lies in the handling of the government's trust accounts. The largest of these is the old-age and survivors insurance fund. Others are the unemployment trust fund, federal employes' and railroad employes' retirement funds, and the veterans' life insurance funds Taken together they hold assets, mostly in the form of government securities, of about $30 billion.

Under a pay-as-you-go proposal now under study by a special committee on social security of the House Ways and Means Committee, the income of most of the trust funds would be mingled with other Treasury revenues, instead of being segregated, and obligations of the funds would be met out of Treasury revenues from all sources.

The old-age insurance fund received $4,086 million in payroll taxes in fiscal 1953, but paid out only $2,627 million in benefits. If it had been on a cash, pay-as-you-go basis, the old-age system would have contributed $1,459 million toward reduction of the deficit. It is easy to see the attractiveness of cash budgeting for officials struggling to bring their government income and outgo into balance.

When President Eisenhower submitted his tax program to Congress last May he recommended that the increase in old-age payroll taxes (from 1½ to 2 per cent each on employers and employes) scheduled for January 1, 1954, be postponed for one year. A little-noticed passage of his message said social security financing "should be handled more nearly on a pay-as-you-go basis." In a message shortly before adjournment, the President asked that coverage of the system be extended to 10½ million additional workers.

Congress took no action to delay the tax increase but a wide expansion of social security coverage at the 1954 session is a virtual certainty. The result will be further to swell the income of the old-age trust fund, with no corresponding increase in outgo. Benefits for the newly insured will not come due until years later. Instead of coming closer to a pay-as-you-go basis, the present method of financing will feed large additional sums into the old-age reserve account.

This process will not continue forever; there will come a time when annual benefits will exceed annual income from payroll taxes. Then the difference will have to be made up out of the general revenues. However, that point will not be reached until 1995—by which time, according to present estimates, the reserve fund will have accumulated the enormous sum of $110 billion.

All this assumes that there will be no change in social security financing, which is probably an unsafe assumption. Pressure to put the system on a pay-as-you-go basis, and perhaps to use part of the present reserve to cancel out a corresponding amount of the public debt, is growing. It may produce action by Congress at a fairly early date.

Sales Tax Talk

A federal manufacturers sales tax, Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey has said again, is "just another one of a large number of taxes that we are considering." He says further that whether any of them, and if so which, will be proposed to Congress next January depends on the revenues-expenditures outlook then.

Nevertheless, more and more talk crops up in Washington about a sales tax. For one thing, its yield would be high—an estimated $5 billion a year if at five per cent and even if foods, farm products, medicines, rents and other services were exempt.

In considering whether to propose a sales tax, the administration must consider also whether Congress would accept one if proposed. Chairman Reed (R., N. Y.) of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee has said flatly that it would not, but Reed now has less standing as a prophet on congressional action than before he took his licking on extension of the excess profits tax last July. It is worth recalling, at the same time, that back in the deep depression of 1932 the Hoover administration recommended a sales tax for only temporary use, but Congress rejected it even though the President took his appeal to the Capitol in person.

That 1932 proposal was for a tax on the finished product as it left the final manufacturer. Many suggestions for a sales tax today visualize one, rather, at a later step in the distribution process. In Great Britain, the heavy sales ("purchase") tax is levied on the price paid by the retailer as he receives the article for sale, in most cases from a jobber or wholesaler.

The big argument against a sales tax is, of course, that it is not graded by ability to pay. Advocates of the tax says that with food exempt, the tax would take more from the rich than from the poor inasmuch as the rich buy more things, and at higher prices, than do the poor. Opponents reply that by raising prices on almost everything, a federal sales tax would make moderate-income families buy still fewer things.

The Jackpot

Apparently a North Korean airman hit the jackpot with little more exertion than doing what came naturally to him: Flying his plane over a prescribed course at prescribed altitudes, and landing it at Kimpo Airbase, the American fighter base near Seoul, Korea, he delivered a shiny MIG-15 fighter, presumably in excellent working order. Under terms of an offer made last April by General Mark W. Cark, he receives $100,000 and political asylum.

This is the third such MIG to be delivered to the West. Two were flown into Denmark by Polish fliers. It is the first plane and first pilot to desert to the Allies in the Far Eastern theater. Because it follows on the heels of the escape of a Polish member of one of the UN truce teams in Korea, the psychological impact is all the greater.

That a MIG has been delivered into our hands is less important than the fact that there are those in Russian-controlled territory all over the globe who are ready to make the big jump when the chance is presented.

Expect The Worst In Driving

For many years I have believed that anticipation is the secret of safe driving. When the person at the wheel sees a youngster standing on the curb he adopts the attitude that the child might dart suddenly into the street. If he notices he sees a woman parking a car a half block ahead, he realizes she may decide to open the door on the left side and hop out. It is not a matter of trying to outguess the other fellow, but to be alert in case he does the worst possible thing at the moment your car is within striking distance.

I was happy to read in a recent issue of Esquire that one of the foremost auto racers, John Fitch, feels the same way. He has no particular objection to speeding, but believes the driver should develop the mental attitute that "every possible human, animal, and vehicle within range of striking or obstructing your car is going to do both." On the highway this means that from every farmyard a tractor or a rattletrap Ford may emerge. Cattle on the edge of the road are waiting to step in front of the speeding car in order to wreck it. Just over the hill or around the curve there is a stalled steam roller in the middle of the road or a bridge that has collapsed. Such anticipation allows just the right mixture of speed and caution. It lends intelligence to driving and makes the driver responsible for avoiding all accidents under any situation that might arise. This would obviate the old excuse, "When I started to pass him how did I know he was going to make a left turn?"

According to Fitch the average car weighs 3,500 pounds and when it hits something while going 100 miles an hour the impact is equal to a fall from a 33 story building (335 feet). At this speed most cars will smash through a brick house, and the force is considerably greater when a head-on collision occurs. For this reason, few survive collisions of this type and it is safer to take a chance on running off the road. This plan at least offers a chance of survival because anything that reduces speed at the moment will lessen the impact of an abrupt stop. Lucky are those who crash through a fence and into a field, or even roll over into the ditch. But the decision must be made instantaneously when a crash appears inevitable because the next moment may be too late. This is not new, but apparently everybody expects the other fellow to run off the road, not realizing they are gambling with the lives of all concerned.

Physicians have a vital interest in automobile accidents because last year they caused more than 38,000 deaths and injured more than 1,350,000 persons. The cost of these accidents was estimated to be $3,750,000,000. It is a heartbreaking situation because this slaughter occurs in an era when so many lives are being saved through advances in medicine and surgery. The crippling effects are just as disabling as those produced by polio and the disfigurement equals the most horrible skin disease. How often I have watched the struggle to keep gangrene from spreading so that amputation could be avoided. Yet in needless traffic accidents, several of the survivors may lose one or more limbs within a second. Death may be instantaneous, but it can be as lingering and painful as cancer. Hospitals always have a bed or two that has been occupied by an accident victim for months or years. Some make it, but others don't.

CANKER SORES

L. S. writes: I develop small sores on my tongue every now and then. Is this allergy?

REPLY

Sensitivity to certain foods or other substances often is responsible for canker sores. Fungous infections also play a role. In other instances, the cause cannot be found. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on canker sores.

DRUGS IN TREATMENT

P. D. writes: Fifty years ago a Keokuk physician said: "Take quinine, calomel, and whisky out of medicine and there would be little left." Was he right then? We have made progress with our penicillin and sulfas but people still die and plenty of M. D.'s among them.

REPLY

Despite medical progress, we remain mortal, not immortal. The Keokuk physician was right 50 years ago and modern physicians say the same about the sulfonamides and penicillin and other antibiotics. I wish I knew what the medical profession will say 50 years from now.

TOUCHINESS

D. W. writes: Why are women more irritable during pregnancy than at other times? My wife is so cranky I hardly know how to act.

REPLY

Women vary. Some, like your wife, are irritable. Others say, "I never feel better than when I'm pregnant."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Eisenhower Gave Green Light For Sales Tax Prior To Boston Speech; Would Be Called "Manufacturers' Tax"; State Department Wants Ike To Go To Paris.

WASHINGTON — There's been a lot of speculation as to what General Eisenhower meant by the use of that ominous word "tax" when in Boston he said that "no sacrifice, no labor, no tax, no service" was too hard for us to bear in defense of our freedom.

Light may be thrown on this statement when you know that a week or 10 days ago Ike gave the green light to his fiscal aides to prepare a far-reaching national sales tax.

The details have been carefully guarded, and may be subject to change, but the present plan is to propose to Congress an unprecedented "federal manufacturers' excise tax."

Treasury experts concluded some weeks ago that such a tax was necessary but were hesitant about putting it forward in the face of certain hostility on Capitol Hill. However, Treasury aides figure that if the new tax doesn't have to be collected by the retailer every time he makes a sale, it won't be quite so unpopular with the public.

The Treasury has taken as its model the Canadian sales tax which exempts food and a few other essentials, but hits almost all other consumer products. It will be collected from the manufacturer, not the retailer.

Ike was told there would be terrific resentment from some groups in Congress at the proposal of a national sales tax, but despite this he indicated he was ready to take the political consequences. He has great confidence in Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey, feels that anything he proposes must be sound.

The above tax discussion took place before Congressman Dan Reed of New York sounded off against a national sales tax. Nevertheless, White House insiders say the President hasn't changed his mind. Hence the Boston speech build-up.

Washington Whirl

When Herbert Brownell first took office he let it be known he would select the highest type lawyer possible for the office of solicitor general. He even sought the advice of the late chief justice, Fred Vinson, to help pick such a man. Eight months have now passed, and Brownell still hasn't been able to pick a solicitor general. . . . . Adlai Stevenson was about to be hauled off to another Chicago cocktail party by Congressman Harold Cooley of North Carolina last week, when Margaret Truman grabbed his arm and kept him at the one where he was guest of honor. . . . Remarked Bill Kittrell of Texas at the Chicago Democratic dinner: "When you see Chip Robert, Ed Pauley and Dick Reynolds, three ex-treasurers of the Democratic party, turn out in full force, then you can be sure things are picking up for the Democrats.". . . . Bob Hutchins, former president of the University of Chicago, is being groomed by John B. Elliott to run for the Senate from California. . . . Sen. Theodore Francis Green, one of the few millionaires in the U. S. Senate, devotes part of his time to helping refugees and the foreign-born. . . . Archie Underwood of Lubbock, Texas, director of the Denver and Fort Worth Railroad, was one Texan who remained loyal to Stevenson-Truman last year. The other day at Chicago he found himself with the best table at the Democratic dinner — right under Truman's nose.

San Francisco's Chinatown

After the State Department proposed that the Korean peace conference be held in San Francisco, Honolulu or Geneva, someone suddenly woke up to a horrible thought. As a result, the State Department has been quietly needling our British and French friends to get the Korean conference held in almost anyplace except San Francisco or Honolulu; Geneva Switzerland, is still okay.

What the State Department woke up to was the large number of Chinese in both San Francisco and Manila and that this might cause two complications:

1. Chinese Communist delegates at the peace conference might be in danger of assassination from Nationalist Chinese.

2. Non-Nationalist Chinese in San Francisco's Chinatown or in Manila might be swayed by Communist Chinese propaganda and stage demonstrations.

So the State Department now wishes it had proposed Geneva only as the meeting place for the Korean peace conference.

Ike To Paris??

Some of Ike's foreign-policy advisers are urging him to attend the NATO foreign ministers' conference in Paris this December in order to pep up the European defense program.

If the general goes to Paris where he once served as commander of SHAPE, advisers say he'll dramatize the fact that he's worried over the possibility of Russian aggression and show that the United States intends to stand shoulder to shoulder with Free Europe. Also he'll remove some of the sting from decreased American aid.

Advisers also suggest that Prime Minister Churchill would make the trip across the Channel and join the President for an important conference.

New York Elections

The city of New York is probably, all-in-all, the largest in all the world. New York houses the major economic interests of the country. Among 8,500,000 human beings, there should be a larger number of managerial brains. New York undoubtedly contains an extraordinarily large number. For instance, the best managed economic units in the United States, the United States Steel Corporation, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, the Standard Oil Companies of New York and New Jersey are situated in New York.

Nevertheless, the city is not competently managed. Despite local patriotism, which grows angry whenever such an obvious fact is mentioned, it is an unusually filthy city. I travel a good deal and I have never seen an equally unkempt city. Yet, it was, in my childhood, a clean and even beautiful place, except for a few slums.

Under Fiorello La Guardia, the city tried to become a welfare state, thus attracting families who prefer to live on relief to an astonishing number. New slum areas were thus developed; even more, some of the finest streets have been reduced to slums. Yet a citizen, living under such conditions has the same kind of vote as one living on Fifth Avenue — the north end of which is now a blighted area. The politicians try to hold such votes by doing small favors which in the aggregate reduce the finances of the city and benefit no one.

New York, is operating one of the largest railway systems—the subways. This requires managerial skill of the highest order. It requires a complete divorcement from partisan politics. For years, the subway system was a political football until it was actually bankrupt. Some efforts are now being made to operate it on a business-like basis, but with only small success. The kind of man who is willing to be New York's mayor is generally unfit by training and experience to handle so huge a problem. Few citizens of outstanding capacity have presented themselves for this position in nearly 40 years. The last one was John Purroy Mitchel, who was mayor from 1914 to 1917.

The recent Democratic primaries disclosed all the weaknesses of a city in which 8,500,000 human beings live. At first, a number of singularly incompetent politicians presented themselves for the nomination, including the present incumbent, Vincent Impellitteri. None of the candidates possesses managerial qualifications. The most competent public administrator the city has known for decades, Robert Moses, declines to run for mayor because he will not engage in a quarrel over religious, racial and sectarian issues—which is what these municipal campaigns are reduced to.

Robert Wagner Jr., who won the Democratic nomination, is the son of the senator who gave his name to the Wagner Act—a law that Lee Pressman, who had admitted that he once was a Communist, wrote for him. The junior Wagner is a personable gentleman but he lacks managerial experience. He is in a political partnership with Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., whose greatest claim is that he is not only his father's son but bears his name. The junior Roosevelt aspires to become governor of the State of New York, in imitation of his father's emergence to the presidency.

While handsome, affable, even gay, the junior Roosevelt possesses no managerial skills. He is no more fit to be governor of the huge State of New York than he would be to manage the United States Steel Corporation. Yet, should Wagner be elected mayor and come into control of the decadent Tammany Hall, the junior Roosevelt might be nominated as governor and even elected, a sorry successor to the administratively competent Dewey.

The fact is that too large a part of the better population of New York that works there, lives outside the city limits. Also, many who continue to live in this large city have lost interest in its political affairs. They have thrown up their hands in disgust and distress. Thus, too many of those who have a vested interest in the prosperity, competent management of the city, and the orderly processes of municipal administration, do not vote in its elections and play no part in its politics.

In a way, this is understandable because it grows increasingly difficult to vote at all, to make a choice between Mr. Nobody and Mr. Nothing. Therefore, one stops voting. It is all wrong, but it is understandable.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Government-by-headline seems to be a rather painful experience sometimes — if one sympathizes at all with the people in business, industry and finance who have the daylights scared out of them by a speech by the President of the United States which they read in the morning papers, only to be followed in the afternoon papers by a prompt reassurance from the secretary of the Treasury that there was really no cause for alarm.

The sequence of events and the facts thereon are interesting to examine as an example of how jitters are often produced in the business community.

On Monday afternoon of this week — several hours before President Eisenhower was scheduled to deliver his address in Boston over the radio and television — copies were made available at the White House to all members of the press. There was ample opportunity to read the text and discover, somewhere along about the middle of the address, a startling paragraph which spoke of how the enemy was "equipped with the most terrible weapons of destruction" and warning the world that for America "there is no sacrifice — no labor, no tax, no service — too hard for us to bear to support a logical and necessary defense of our freedom."

Unknown To Cabinet

What did this mean? The reporters had plenty of time to ask the President both before and after he delivered the speech whether it meant that the scheduled repeal of certain tax rates on January 1 next had been decided against by the administration or whether these tax reductions all of a sudden had become matters of doubt and conjecture.

But no such information was obtained for the morning papers, either because the reporters didn't ask the President or because the White House staff didn't find out his views for the reporters, if they did present such queries.

Actually, Mr. Eisenhower must have been talking of what he would recommend to Congress if the Soviets forced America and the free world into a war. During a world war, of course, everybody knows there is hardly a limit on taxes or controls. If Mr. Eisenhower had anything else but such a theoretical emergency in mind when he spoke in Boston, it certainly was unknown to any member of his cabinet.

Now let's switch to Washington. The secretary of the Treasury, George Humphrey, for several days had been working on a speech he was to deliver on Tuesday of this week before the annual convention of the American Bankers Association. On Monday evening, like a dutiful cabinet officer, he interrupted his labor on his own speech and, with his aides surrounding him at his home, watched and heard the President on television. Nothing that the President said seemed to Mr. Humphrey afterward to be in conflict with what he himself intended to say the next morning on taxes, and he wasn't at all conscious of any reason to revise that section of his address to the bankers.

Right On The Button

But the next morning, when Secretary Humphrey read the newspapers and saw the headlines emphasizing the doubt that had been raised by the President's reference to taxes, he was surprised. He was sure Mr. Eisenhower had not intended to create any such doubts about the tax program for next January. But he decided to call the President anyway and read to him over the telephone the tax section of his proposed speech to the American Bankers Association. The President approved the passage at once and told the secretary the speech was right on the button. It will be recalled that the secretary emphasized to the bankers that the planned reductions for January 1 were the same as had been announced weeks ago. The Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday morning headlines displayed Mr. Humphrey's prediction of tax reductions — which would not have been front-page news but for the doubts expressed in Tuesday morning's papers. The stock market, instead of taking a nose-dive Tuesday afternoon, actually started upward.

It appears that the President himself was somewhat surprised, too, by the headlines about his Boston speech, because he was talking only about the extent of the sacrifice that would be made if a war crisis developed. If that information had been obtained by the press on Monday, some nervous hours for the business men of America would have been avoided. And maybe if the matter had been drawn to the President's attention early Monday evening he might have clarified the paragraph in question so that it would not have been the subject of a nation-wide apprehension — that the whole fiscal program was being radically altered and that some new and unforeseen emergency had arisen.

Such are the mercurial aspects of news-gathering around a President of the United States day by day — and, alas, it has always been that way.

Matter Of Fact

MANILA, P. I.

Probably the most trying characteristic of the new world in which we live is that what is distant often matters more than what is near. Whether Gov. Thomas E. Dewey leaves politics or runs for re-election in 1954 will certainly matter to the people of New York State. But even to New Yorkers, it can perhaps be less important in the long run than whether Elpidio Quirino is beaten or is re-elected in the current contest for the Philippine presidency.

But why should this be so? The answer has to be deduced from the circumstances of the Philippine election itself. These may be briefly summarized as follows:

First, all impartial observers here agree that there is almost no doubt about the popular verdict. Quirino and his Liberals have altogether lost the support of the country. Since Gen. Carlos P. Romulo boldly led his Democrats into coalition with the Nationalists, the Nationalist-Democratic candidate, Ramon Magsaysay, is certain of a huge popular majority.

From the country people of the barrios to the businessmen of Manila, from the leftwing labor leaders to the famous Philippine multi-millionaire, Col. Soreanu (who still has great influence here although now an American citizen) — the support for Magsaysay is impressively solid and passionately enthusiastic. Quirino, by contrast, seems to have no real adherents except the members of his political machine and the beneficiaries of the Machine's special favor.

Fear Force or Fraud

In these circumstances, it is clear that Quirino can only win by force or fraud or a combination of both. The question everyone now asks in Manila is not whether Magsaysay is in the lead. That is taken for granted. The question asked is, rather, whether Magsaysay's lead is huge enough to overcome any attempt to steal the election. The Quirino administration is now reshuffling the provincial and municipal treasurers, who have the largest share in reporting the vote.

The removal of the Philippine army's able and impartial chief of staff. Gen. Calixto Duque, has only been prevented by premature publicity. In the army's lower ranks, however, the capable, non-political officers promoted under Magsaysay have recently been transferred to school assignments and the like, while, important provincial commands have suddenly been conferred on officers purged or passed over for incompetence and bad behavior.

Perhaps Quirino will choose differently in the end but his partisans are at least readying the instruments of force and fraud. Nor is the force wholly on Quirino's side. Magsaysay was a brilliant guerrilla leader in the last war. There is some evidence that a guerrilla organization supporting him, sworn to "enforce a free election" is growing up in key provinces.

As these words are written, moreover, Manila is ringing with talk—and talk that is not groundless either—that there will be a revolution if Quirino steals the election. In these circumstances, the Philippine Senate, which is predominantly Nationalist, will first refuse to certify that Quirino has been duly elected. But if this should fail, the most solid and respectable Nationalist and Democratic party leaders say they will "go to the hills."

Choice Of U. S.

"If Quirino allows a free election and wins, that's our bad luck," one of these men told this reporter. "But if the will of our people is going to be defied, we may as well fight now rather than later."

Such are the explosive ingredients now bubbling away in this Philippine electoral pot. There are several reasons why the outcome, whatever it may be, must be of great interest to Americans.

In a practical sense, in the first place, Magsaysay is the American candidate. He has become so without American governmental action or American support of any kind. But he is the American candidate none the less, by virtue of his past close links with American policy, when he was fighting the Huks; and by virtue, too, of the known though unspoken preference of the Washington administration. Perfect correctness has been maintained by Ambassador Raymond Spruance, but the practical situation is such that a new American ambassador will have to be named if Quirino is re-elected.

Vastly more important, the re-election of Quirino, if achieved by fraud and force, will write finis to the hopeful political development of the Philippines, the most politically mature of the free nations of Asia. Such a defeat for the cause of free government in Asia will be a sore blow in itself.

In the Philippines, meanwhile, the surface of affairs may remain unchanged for a little. But discontent will smolder angrily beneath the surface even if it does not break out in rebellion. The authority of government, already precarious, will be weakened still further. And the first external shock, such as a drop in world demand for Philippine products and a resulting of poverty and unemployment, will then be likely to give the Philippine game to the Communist Hukbalahaps, who are still capable of a strong comeback.

Maybe Manila opinion is wholly misleading. Maybe the Philippines are strong for Quirino instead of Magsaysay. If the election here is reasonably honest, there is little to fear either way. But on present prospects one kind of election result promises to build the Philippines into a bastion of freedom in Asia, while the other threatens their eventual loss as a significant partner of the Free World.

Cash Budgeting

In each successive revision of the Truman estimates since January officials of the Eisenhower administration have observed that the figures on government income, government outgo, and the prospective deficit would be different if the federal budget were on a cash basis.

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey says the country has reached "the essential turning point toward a balanced budget," as a result of the most recent cuts in expenditures, but there will still be a deficit of $3.8 billion next June 30 under present methods of accounting. A cash budget on the other hand, would show a deficit of only about a half billion.

The chief difference between the two methods of budgeting lies in the handling of the government's trust accounts. The largest of these is the old-age and survivors insurance fund. Others are the unemployment trust fund, federal employes' and railroad employes' retirement funds, and the veterans' life insurance funds Taken together they hold assets, mostly in the form of government securities, of about $30 billion.

Under a pay-as-you-go proposal now under study by a special committee on social security of the House Ways and Means Committee, the income of most of the trust funds would be mingled with other Treasury revenues, instead of being segregated, and obligations of the funds would be met out of Treasury revenues from all sources.

The old-age insurance fund received $4,086 million in payroll taxes in fiscal 1953, but paid out only $2,627 million in benefits. If it had been on a cash, pay-as-you-go basis, the old-age system would have contributed $1,459 million toward reduction of the deficit. It is easy to see the attractiveness of cash budgeting for officials struggling to bring their government income and outgo into balance.

When President Eisenhower submitted his tax program to Congress last May he recommended that the increase in old-age payroll taxes (from 1½ to 2 per cent each on employers and employes) scheduled for January 1, 1954, be postponed for one year. A little-noticed passage of his message said social security financing "should be handled more nearly on a pay-as-you-go basis." In a message shortly before adjournment, the President asked that coverage of the system be extended to 10½ million additional workers.

Congress took no action to delay the tax increase but a wide expansion of social security coverage at the 1954 session is a virtual certainty. The result will be further to swell the income of the old-age trust fund, with no corresponding increase in outgo. Benefits for the newly insured will not come due until years later. Instead of coming closer to a pay-as-you-go basis, the present method of financing will feed large additional sums into the old-age reserve account.

This process will not continue forever; there will come a time when annual benefits will exceed annual income from payroll taxes. Then the difference will have to be made up out of the general revenues. However, that point will not be reached until 1995—by which time, according to present estimates, the reserve fund will have accumulated the enormous sum of $110 billion.

All this assumes that there will be no change in social security financing, which is probably an unsafe assumption. Pressure to put the system on a pay-as-you-go basis, and perhaps to use part of the present reserve to cancel out a corresponding amount of the public debt, is growing. It may produce action by Congress at a fairly early date.

Sales Tax Talk

A federal manufacturers sales tax, Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey has said again, is "just another one of a large number of taxes that we are considering." He says further that whether any of them, and if so which, will be proposed to Congress next January depends on the revenues-expenditures outlook then.

Nevertheless, more and more talk crops up in Washington about a sales tax. For one thing, its yield would be high—an estimated $5 billion a year if at five per cent and even if foods, farm products, medicines, rents and other services were exempt.

In considering whether to propose a sales tax, the administration must consider also whether Congress would accept one if proposed. Chairman Reed (R., N. Y.) of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee has said flatly that it would not, but Reed now has less standing as a prophet on congressional action than before he took his licking on extension of the excess profits tax last July. It is worth recalling, at the same time, that back in the deep depression of 1932 the Hoover administration recommended a sales tax for only temporary use, but Congress rejected it even though the President took his appeal to the Capitol in person.

That 1932 proposal was for a tax on the finished product as it left the final manufacturer. Many suggestions for a sales tax today visualize one, rather, at a later step in the distribution process. In Great Britain, the heavy sales ("purchase") tax is levied on the price paid by the retailer as he receives the article for sale, in most cases from a jobber or wholesaler.

The big argument against a sales tax is, of course, that it is not graded by ability to pay. Advocates of the tax says that with food exempt, the tax would take more from the rich than from the poor inasmuch as the rich buy more things, and at higher prices, than do the poor. Opponents reply that by raising prices on almost everything, a federal sales tax would make moderate-income families buy still fewer things.

The Jackpot

Apparently a North Korean airman hit the jackpot with little more exertion than doing what came naturally to him: Flying his plane over a prescribed course at prescribed altitudes, and landing it at Kimpo Airbase, the American fighter base near Seoul, Korea, he delivered a shiny MIG-15 fighter, presumably in excellent working order. Under terms of an offer made last April by General Mark W. Cark, he receives $100,000 and political asylum.

This is the third such MIG to be delivered to the West. Two were flown into Denmark by Polish fliers. It is the first plane and first pilot to desert to the Allies in the Far Eastern theater. Because it follows on the heels of the escape of a Polish member of one of the UN truce teams in Korea, the psychological impact is all the greater.

That a MIG has been delivered into our hands is less important than the fact that there are those in Russian-controlled territory all over the globe who are ready to make the big jump when the chance is presented.

Expect The Worst In Driving

For many years I have believed that anticipation is the secret of safe driving. When the person at the wheel sees a youngster standing on the curb he adopts the attitude that the child might dart suddenly into the street. If he notices he sees a woman parking a car a half block ahead, he realizes she may decide to open the door on the left side and hop out. It is not a matter of trying to outguess the other fellow, but to be alert in case he does the worst possible thing at the moment your car is within striking distance.

I was happy to read in a recent issue of Esquire that one of the foremost auto racers, John Fitch, feels the same way. He has no particular objection to speeding, but believes the driver should develop the mental attitute that "every possible human, animal, and vehicle within range of striking or obstructing your car is going to do both." On the highway this means that from every farmyard a tractor or a rattletrap Ford may emerge. Cattle on the edge of the road are waiting to step in front of the speeding car in order to wreck it. Just over the hill or around the curve there is a stalled steam roller in the middle of the road or a bridge that has collapsed. Such anticipation allows just the right mixture of speed and caution. It lends intelligence to driving and makes the driver responsible for avoiding all accidents under any situation that might arise. This would obviate the old excuse, "When I started to pass him how did I know he was going to make a left turn?"

According to Fitch the average car weighs 3,500 pounds and when it hits something while going 100 miles an hour the impact is equal to a fall from a 33 story building (335 feet). At this speed most cars will smash through a brick house, and the force is considerably greater when a head-on collision occurs. For this reason, few survive collisions of this type and it is safer to take a chance on running off the road. This plan at least offers a chance of survival because anything that reduces speed at the moment will lessen the impact of an abrupt stop. Lucky are those who crash through a fence and into a field, or even roll over into the ditch. But the decision must be made instantaneously when a crash appears inevitable because the next moment may be too late. This is not new, but apparently everybody expects the other fellow to run off the road, not realizing they are gambling with the lives of all concerned.

Physicians have a vital interest in automobile accidents because last year they caused more than 38,000 deaths and injured more than 1,350,000 persons. The cost of these accidents was estimated to be $3,750,000,000. It is a heartbreaking situation because this slaughter occurs in an era when so many lives are being saved through advances in medicine and surgery. The crippling effects are just as disabling as those produced by polio and the disfigurement equals the most horrible skin disease. How often I have watched the struggle to keep gangrene from spreading so that amputation could be avoided. Yet in needless traffic accidents, several of the survivors may lose one or more limbs within a second. Death may be instantaneous, but it can be as lingering and painful as cancer. Hospitals always have a bed or two that has been occupied by an accident victim for months or years. Some make it, but others don't.

CANKER SORES

L. S. writes: I develop small sores on my tongue every now and then. Is this allergy?

REPLY

Sensitivity to certain foods or other substances often is responsible for canker sores. Fungous infections also play a role. In other instances, the cause cannot be found. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on canker sores.

DRUGS IN TREATMENT

P. D. writes: Fifty years ago a Keokuk physician said: "Take quinine, calomel, and whisky out of medicine and there would be little left." Was he right then? We have made progress with our penicillin and sulfas but people still die and plenty of M. D.'s among them.

REPLY

Despite medical progress, we remain mortal, not immortal. The Keokuk physician was right 50 years ago and modern physicians say the same about the sulfonamides and penicillin and other antibiotics. I wish I knew what the medical profession will say 50 years from now.

TOUCHINESS

D. W. writes: Why are women more irritable during pregnancy than at other times? My wife is so cranky I hardly know how to act.

REPLY

Women vary. Some, like your wife, are irritable. Others say, "I never feel better than when I'm pregnant."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Eisenhower Gave Green Light For Sales Tax Prior To Boston Speech; Would Be Called "Manufacturers' Tax"; State Department Wants Ike To Go To Paris.

WASHINGTON — There's been a lot of speculation as to what General Eisenhower meant by the use of that ominous word "tax" when in Boston he said that "no sacrifice, no labor, no tax, no service" was too hard for us to bear in defense of our freedom.

Light may be thrown on this statement when you know that a week or 10 days ago Ike gave the green light to his fiscal aides to prepare a far-reaching national sales tax.

The details have been carefully guarded, and may be subject to change, but the present plan is to propose to Congress an unprecedented "federal manufacturers' excise tax."

Treasury experts concluded some weeks ago that such a tax was necessary but were hesitant about putting it forward in the face of certain hostility on Capitol Hill. However, Treasury aides figure that if the new tax doesn't have to be collected by the retailer every time he makes a sale, it won't be quite so unpopular with the public.

The Treasury has taken as its model the Canadian sales tax which exempts food and a few other essentials, but hits almost all other consumer products. It will be collected from the manufacturer, not the retailer.

Ike was told there would be terrific resentment from some groups in Congress at the proposal of a national sales tax, but despite this he indicated he was ready to take the political consequences. He has great confidence in Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey, feels that anything he proposes must be sound.

The above tax discussion took place before Congressman Dan Reed of New York sounded off against a national sales tax. Nevertheless, White House insiders say the President hasn't changed his mind. Hence the Boston speech build-up.

Washington Whirl

When Herbert Brownell first took office he let it be known he would select the highest type lawyer possible for the office of solicitor general. He even sought the advice of the late chief justice, Fred Vinson, to help pick such a man. Eight months have now passed, and Brownell still hasn't been able to pick a solicitor general. . . . Adlai Stevenson was about to be hauled off to another Chicago cocktail party by Congressman Harold Cooley of North Carolina last week, when Margaret Truman grabbed his arm and kept him at the one where he was guest of honor. . . . Remarked Bill Kittrell of Texas at the Chicago Democratic dinner: "When you see Chip Robert, Ed Pauley and Dick Reynolds, three ex-treasurers of the Democratic party, turn out in full force, then you can be sure things are picking up for the Democrats."... Bob Hutchins, former president of the University of Chicago, is being groomed by John B. Elliott to run for the Senate from California. . . . Sen. Theodore Francis Green, one of the few millionaires in the U. S. Senate, devotes part of his time to helping refugees and the foreign-born. . . . Archie Underwood of Lubbock, Texas, director of the Denver and Fort Worth Railroad, was one Texan who remained loyal to Stevenson-Truman last year. The other day at Chicago he found himself with the best table at the Democratic dinner — right under Truman's nose.

San Francisco's Chinatown

After the State Department proposed that the Korean peace conference be held in San Francisco, Honolulu or Geneva, someone suddenly woke up to a horrible thought. As a result, the State Department has been quietly needling our British and French friends to get the Korean conference held in almost anyplace except San Francisco or Honolulu; Geneva Switzerland, is still okay.

What the State Department woke up to was the large number of Chinese in both San Francisco and Manila and that this might cause two complications:

1. Chinese Communist delegates at the peace conference might be in danger of assassination from Nationalist Chinese.

2. Non-Nationalist Chinese in San Francisco's Chinatown or in Manila might be swayed by Communist Chinese propaganda and stage demonstrations.

So the State Department now wishes it had proposed Geneva only as the meeting place for the Korean peace conference.

Ike To Paris??

Some of Ike's foreign-policy advisers are urging him to attend the NATO foreign ministers' conference in Paris this December in order to pep up the European defense program.

If the general goes to Paris where he once served as commander of SHAPE, advisers say he'll dramatize the fact that he's worried over the possibility of Russian aggression and show that the United States intends to stand shoulder to shoulder with Free Europe. Also he'll remove some of the sting from decreased American aid.

Advisers also suggest that Prime Minister Churchill would make the trip across the Channel and join the President for an important conference.

New York Elections

The city of New York is probably, all-in-all, the largest in all the world. New York houses the major economic interests of the country. Among 8,500,000 human beings, there should be a larger number of managerial brains. New York undoubtedly contains an extraordinarily large number. For instance, the best managed economic units in the United States, the United States Steel Corporation, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, the Standard Oil Companies of New York and New Jersey are situated in New York.

Nevertheless, the city is not competently managed. Despite local patriotism, which grows angry whenever such an obvious fact is mentioned, it is an unusually filthy city. I travel a good deal and I have never seen an equally unkempt city. Yet, it was, in my childhood, a clean and even beautiful place, except for a few slums.

Under Fiorello La Guardia, the city tried to become a welfare state, thus attracting families who prefer to live on relief to an astonishing number. New slum areas were thus developed; even more, some of the finest streets have been reduced to slums. Yet a citizen, living under such conditions has the same kind of vote as one living on Fifth Avenue — the north end of which is now a blighted area. The politicians try to hold such votes by doing small favors which in the aggregate reduce the finances of the city and benefit no one.

New York is operating one of the largest railway systems—the subways. This requires managerial skill of the highest order. It requires a complete divorcement from partisan politics. For years, the subway system was a political football until it was actually bankrupt. Some efforts are now being made to operate it on a business-like basis, but with only small success. The kind of man who is willing to be New York's mayor is generally unfit by training and experience to handle so huge a problem. Few citizens of outstanding capacity have presented themselves for this position in nearly 40 years. The last one was John Purroy Mitchel, who was mayor from 1914 to 1917.

The recent Democratic primaries disclosed all the weaknesses of a city in which 8,500,000 human beings live. At first, a number of singularly incompetent politicians presented themselves for the nomination, including the present incumbent, Vincent Impellitteri. None of the candidates possesses managerial qualifications. The most competent public administrator the city has known for decades, Robert Moses, declines to run for mayor because he will not engage in a quarrel over religious, racial and sectarian issues—which is what these municipal campaigns are reduced to.

Robert Wagner Jr., who won the Democratic nomination, is the son of the senator who gave his name to the Wagner Act—a law that Lee Pressman, who had admitted that he once was a Communist, wrote for him. The junior Wagner is a personable gentleman but he lacks managerial experience. He is in a political partnership with Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., whose greatest claim is that he is not only his father's son but bears his name. The junior Roosevelt aspires to become governor of the State of New York, in imitation of his father's emergence to the presidency.

While handsome, affable, even gay, the junior Roosevelt possesses no managerial skills. He is no more fit to be governor of the huge State of New York than he would be to manage the United States Steel Corporation. Yet, should Wagner be elected mayor and come into control of the decadent Tammany Hall, the junior Roosevelt might be nominated as governor and even elected, a sorry successor to the administratively competent Dewey.

The fact is that too large a part of the better population of New York that works there, lives outside the city limits. Also, many who continue to live in this large city have lost interest in its political affairs. They have thrown up their hands in disgust and distress. Thus, too many of those who have a vested interest in the prosperity, competent management of the city, and the orderly processes of municipal administration, do not vote in its elections and play no part in its politics.

In a way, this is understandable because it grows increasingly difficult to vote at all, to make a choice between Mr. Nobody and Mr. Nothing. Therefore, one stops voting. It is all wrong, but it is understandable.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Government-by-headline seems to be a rather painful experience sometimes — if one sympathizes at all with the people in business, industry and finance who have the daylights scared out of them by a speech by the President of the United States which they read in the morning papers, only to be followed in the afternoon papers by a prompt reassurance from the secretary of the Treasury that there was really no cause for alarm.

The sequence of events and the facts thereon are interesting to examine as an example of how jitters are often produced in the business community.

On Monday afternoon of this week — several hours before President Eisenhower was scheduled to deliver his address in Boston over the radio and television — copies were made available at the White House to all members of the press. There was ample opportunity to read the text and discover, somewhere along about the middle of the address, a startling paragraph which spoke of how the enemy was "equipped with the most terrible weapons of destruction" and warning the world that for America "there is no sacrifice — no labor, no tax, no service — too hard for us to bear to support a logical and necessary defense of our freedom."

Unknown To Cabinet

What did this mean? The reporters had plenty of time to ask the President both before and after he delivered the speech whether it meant that the scheduled repeal of certain tax rates on January 1 next had been decided against by the administration or whether these tax reductions all of a sudden had become matters of doubt and conjecture.

But no such information was obtained for the morning papers, either because the reporters didn't ask the President or because the White House staff didn't find out his views for the reporters, if they did present such queries.

Actually, Mr. Eisenhower must have been talking of what he would recommend to Congress if the Soviets forced America and the free world into a war. During a world war, of course, everybody knows there is hardly a limit on taxes or controls. If Mr. Eisenhower had anything else but such a theoretical emergency in mind when he spoke in Boston, it certainly was unknown to any member of his cabinet.

Now let's switch to Washington. The secretary of the Treasury, George Humphrey, for several days had been working on a speech he was to deliver on Tuesday of this week before the annual convention of the American Bankers Association. On Monday evening, like a dutiful cabinet officer, he interrupted his labor on his own speech and, with his aides surrounding him at his home, watched and heard the President on television. Nothing that the President said seemed to Mr. Humphrey afterward to be in conflict with what he himself intended to say the next morning on taxes, and he wasn't at all conscious of any reason to revise that section of his address to the bankers.

Right On The Button

But the next morning, when Secretary Humphrey read the newspapers and saw the headlines emphasizing the doubt that had been raised by the President's reference to taxes, he was surprised. He was sure Mr. Eisenhower had not intended to create any such doubts about the tax program for next January. But he decided to call the President anyway and read to him over the telephone the tax section of his proposed speech to the American Bankers Association. The President approved the passage at once and told the secretary the speech was right on the button. It will be recalled that the secretary emphasized to the bankers that the planned reductions for January 1 were the same as had been announced weeks ago. The Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday morning headlines displayed Mr. Humphrey's prediction of tax reductions — which would not have been front-page news but for the doubts expressed in Tuesday morning's papers. The stock market, instead of taking a nose-dive Tuesday afternoon, actually started upward.

It appears that the President himself was somewhat surprised, too, by the headlines about his Boston speech, because he was talking only about the extent of the sacrifice that would be made if a war crisis developed. If that information had been obtained by the press on Monday, some nervous hours for the business men of America would have been avoided. And maybe if the matter had been drawn to the President's attention early Monday evening he might have clarified the paragraph in question so that it would not have been the subject of a nation-wide apprehension — that the whole fiscal program was being radically altered and that some new and unforeseen emergency had arisen.

Such are the mercurial aspects of news-gathering around a President of the United States day by day — and, alas, it has always been that way.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

MANILA, P. I.

Probably the most trying characteristic of the new world in which we live is that what is distant often matters more than what is near. Whether Gov. Thomas E. Dewey leaves politics or runs for re-election in 1954 will certainly matter to the people of New York State. But even to New Yorkers, it can perhaps be less important in the long run than whether Elpidio Quirino is beaten or is re-elected in the current contest for the Philippine presidency.

But why should this be so? The answer has to be deduced from the circumstances of the Philippine election itself. These may be briefly summarized as follows:

First, all impartial observers here agree that there is almost no doubt about the popular verdict. Quirino and his Liberals have altogether lost the support of the country. Since Gen. Carlos P. Romulo boldly led his Democrats into coalition with the Nationalists, the Nationalist-Democratic candidate, Ramon Magsaysay, is certain of a huge popular majority.

From the country people of the barrios to the businessmen of Manila, from the leftwing labor leaders to the famous Philippine multi-millionaire, Col. Soreanu (who still has great influence here although now an American citizen) — the support for Magsaysay is impressively solid and passionately enthusiastic. Quirino, by contrast, seems to have no real adherents except the members of his political machine and the beneficiaries of the Machine's special favor.

Fear Force or Fraud

In these circumstances, it is clear that Quirino can only win by force or fraud or a combination of both. The question everyone now asks in Manila is not whether Magsaysay is in the lead. That is taken for granted. The question asked is, rather, whether Magsaysay's lead is huge enough to overcome any attempt to steal the election. The Quirino administration is now reshuffling the provincial and municipal treasurers, who have the largest share in reporting the vote.

The removal of the Philippine army's able and impartial chief of staff. Gen. Calixto Duque, has only been prevented by premature publicity. In the army's lower ranks, however, the capable, non-political officers promoted under Magsaysay have recently been transferred to school assignments and the like, while, important provincial commands have suddenly been conferred on officers purged or passed over for incompetence and bad behavior.

Perhaps Quirino will choose differently in the end but his partisans are at least readying the instruments of force and fraud. Nor is the force wholly on Quirino's side. Magsaysay was a brilliant guerrilla leader in the last war. There is some evidence that a guerrilla organization supporting him, sworn to "enforce a free election" is growing up in key provinces.

As these words are written, moreover, Manila is ringing with talk—and talk that is not groundless either—that there will be a revolution if Quirino steals the election. In these circumstances, the Philippine Senate, which is predominantly Nationalist, will first refuse to certify that Quirino has been duly elected. But if this should fail, the most solid and respectable Nationalist and Democratic party leaders say they will "go to the hills."

Choice Of U. S.

"If Quirino allows a free election and wins, that's our bad luck," one of these men told this reporter. "But if the will of our people is going to be defied, we may as well fight now rather than later."

Such are the explosive ingredients now bubbling away in this Philippine electoral pot. There are several reasons why the outcome, whatever it may be, must be of great interest to Americans.

In a practical sense, in the first place, Magsaysay is the American candidate. He has become so without American governmental action or American support of any kind. But he is the American candidate none the less, by virtue of his past close links with American policy, when he was fighting the Huks; and by virtue, too, of the known though unspoken preference of the Washington administration. Perfect correctness has been maintained by Ambassador Raymond Spruance, but the practical situation is such that a new American ambassador will have to be named if Quirino is re-elected.

Vastly more important, the re-election of Quirino, if achieved by fraud and force, will write finis to the hopeful political development of the Philippines, the most politically mature of the free nations of Asia. Such a defeat for the cause of free government in Asia will be a sore blow in itself.

In the Philippines, meanwhile, the surface of affairs may remain unchanged for a little. But discontent will smolder angrily beneath the surface even if it does not break out in rebellion. The authority of government, already precarious, will be weakened still further. And the first external shock, such as a drop in world demand for Philippine products and a resulting of poverty and unemployment, will then be likely to give the Philippine game to the Communist Hukbalahaps, who are still capable of a strong comeback.

Maybe Manila opinion is wholly misleading. Maybe the Philippines are strong for Quirino instead of Magsaysay. If the election here is reasonably honest, there is little to fear either way. But on present prospects one kind of election result promises to build the Philippines into a bastion of freedom in Asia, while the other threatens their eventual loss as a significant partner of the Free World.

W. Wallace McKaig Protests Overhead Bridge In Letter To City Officials

The "possibility of a state highway overhead bridge passing over the business section of Cumberland and ruining a vast quantity of property" is being protested by W. Wallace McKaig of the Cumberland Steel Company.

In a letter to the Mayor and Council McKaig declared:

"This overhead bridge would in no way help our traffic problem which we can handle ourselves, I feel sure without any difficulty. We have to first get our flood control problem out of the way and then we are faced with the sewer disposal plant and other matters so it would seem advisable not to take on the expense at this time of $220,000 each year."

The remaining text of the letter follows:

"We understand that the value of the property taken for the overhead bridge will be over $2,000,000. The tax rate is about 3 per cent so each year the city would lose $60,000 in taxes. The city would have to borrow $2,000,000 and I believe they would have to pay 3 per cent for that money or $60,000. The $2,000,000 would have to be amortized and probably 20 years would be the time allowed for amortization which would be $100,000 a year. Adding the three items together, the cost for the city of Cumberland for a highway to go over the business section would be $220,000 each year.

"Furthermore $220,000 a year will have to be raised. The only way the city has to raise it is by taxes. This means every property holder in Cumberland and Allegany County (Frostburg, Lonaconing, Westernport, Mt. Savage, Flintstone and etc.) will have to have taxes raised so as to pay for something that does not do him any good, as you cannot take $2,000,000 off the county tax books without raising the tax rate if the county is to have the same income after the $2,000,000 was taken off as it had before.

"Do you realize that to allow the State Roads Commission to run the highway over top of our city to which we have no use that 200 homes approximately would have to be destroyed together with other valuable property. Many men and women have saved for years to be able to get a home. You are taking their homes away from them and many of them, due to age and the high cost of building, will never be able to have a home of their own again."

Six Area Veterans On Rotation Leave

Six area veterans of the Far East Command arrived this week at Fort Meade for 30-day rotation leaves.

On furlough are Cpl. Leo A. Wilson, 221 Fulton Street; Pfc. Raymond Bridges, Mt. Savage; Sgt. First Class Gerald A. Raygor, Corriganville; Cpl. Homer K. Hanft, Accident; Master Sgt. Pierce E. Glotfelty and Cpl. Lester F. Moon, Oakland.

Pfc. Bridges was wounded in action in Korea.

Upon completion of their leaves, they will report back to Fort Meade for new assignments.

Two Men Injured In Auto Mishaps

Two men were admitted to Memorial Hospital yesterday following separate traffic accidents in nearby West Virginia.

Attendants said Con Ryan, of Paw Paw, suffered possible nose, chest and rib injuries and facial lacerations when his car went over an embankment and hit a tree about two miles southwest of Paw Paw. The mishap occurred at 2:40 a. m.

Page Rannells, 28, of Hagerstown, arrived at the hospital about 5:30 a. m. with pain over the kidney region and a right leg injury. His auto plunged over an embankment one and a half miles from Okonoko.

Attaches reported no one else was hurt in the accidents. X-rays were taken to determine the extent of injuries sustained by Ryan and Rannells.

17-Year Locusts Find Homes Until A May Morning, 1970

On lawns, in woodlands, along highway edges from Vermont to Georgia and west to the Mississippi, billions of tiny wormlike creatures late this summer tumbled to the ground from the tips of twigs where they were hatched.

Each gray larva, no more than one-twentieth of an inch long, has buried itself in the soil. Some are only a foot below the surface. Others may be still digging and will go down to 10 of even 20 feet.

When each feels that it is deep enough to be safe from the frost, it will hollow out a little cave—perhaps a quarter of an inch across — next to the root of a tree. The cave will be its home, says the National Geographis Society, and the root will be its storehouse, for the juice of tree roots is the pap of baby cicadas or "17-year locusts."

The larva will grow: it may even move to another root, and it will shed its skin several times before next it sees the light of day—on a soft May morning in 1970!

Suspended Drama

Thus, with the new generation of Brood Ten—the Great Brood—of periodic cicadas put to bed, one of Nature's longest and strangest dramas of the insect world rings down the curtain. There will be revivals, as there have been from time immemorial, but there are never more than six revivals in a century.

The 1953 appearance of the locusts, hatched from eggs laid in 1936, came off as scheduled. Last May, stirred by some mysterious signal as, many as 404,000 cicada nymphs emerged from the ground in one night under a single large oak tree. Stealthy, they moved to the nearest bush or tree and started to climb. Some reached the high limbs but many more got only part way up when the need for one last shedding of the skin seized them.

Clinging to the bark with their lobsterlike claws, the immature cicadas pulsed rythmically. The old skins split down the back and out crawled the full grown 17-year locusts. By morning, the creamy-white creatures had turned dark. Their eyes were red as fire. Their micalike wings with the characteristic black W at the base which the superstitious say foretells war — were dry and ready for flight.

Sound of Drums

The abdominal drums sported by the males were ready to begin their tireless sounding of four quite distinct notes—the prolonged burr, the "Pha-a-a-roah" which reminded the Pilgrim Fathers of the locust plagues of Egypt, the low continuous purr, and the loud squawk of surprise or fright.

And presently, after a brief season of clumsy fly and frolic, the silent femals were ready to lay their 400 to 600 eggs. With single-minded purpose, they sought out the tender limb tips of their favorite trees — oak, hickory, apple and peach. With their sharp, two-edged ovipositors they made a series of gashes in the twigs and laid 10 to 20 white eggs in each small gash. Exhausted from their labors, they fell to the ground or water, food for birds and squirrels or fish.

Now, at summer's end, the eggs laid last May and June have hatched. Earth itself will shelter and nourish the young while a generation of men moves and passes above them. And when Spring comes in 1970, there will be for the Great Brood of periodic cicadas a not inglorious resurrection.

It takes an average adult American about 50 days to consume his own weight in food.

GI Training Deadline Cited For Vets Of Korean Conflict

The deadline for starting training under the Korean GI Bill is less than a year away for nearly 1,000,000 Korean veterans, Veterans Administration announced.

The veterans are those who served since Korea, who were discharged or separated before August 20, 1952, and who have not yet taken advantage of the GI training benefit.

Under the law, they actually must "enroll in and begin GI training by August 20, 1954, in order to continue afterwards. The mere filing of an application beforehand, with an intention of starting some time after that date, is not enough, VA said.

VA emphasized that the 1954 cut-off date applies only to post-Korean veterans who left service before August 20, 1952. Those separated after that date need not concern themselves with the 1954 deadline. Instead, they have two years from the time they left the armed forces in which to get started.

Generally, a veteran is expected to be in the classroom or at the training bench when his GI Bill cut-off date comes around, if he wants to continue beyond that time. But so long as he started before the deadline, there will be no objection if he not actually in training on the cut-off date because of the normal summer vacation, or for other reasons beyond his control, or for circumstances that VA deems to be excusable.

In fact, he even has the right to suspend his GI training for as long as a year—with part of the suspension coming after the cut-off date—and still be permitted to resume training afterwards. If he does so, VA will consider that his failure to be in training on the deadline date was for an "excusable reason." The veteran won't be required to account to VA for his absence.

But if the suspension lasts for more than a year, the veteran will have to show VA that the absence in excess of 12 months was caused by conditions beyond his control. In this case, he must have VA's approval before he may go on with his Korean GI Bill studies.

VA said that these cut-off date rules and regulations apply only to veterans training under the Korean GI Bill. They have nothing at all to do with those in training under the World War II Bill.

17-Year Locusts Find Homes Until A May Morning, 1970

On lawns, in woodlands, along highway edges from Vermont to Georgia and west to the Mississippi, billions of tiny wormlike creatures late this summer tumbled to the ground from the tips of twigs where they were hatched.

Each gray larva, no more than one-twentieth of an inch long, has buried itself in the soil. Some are only a foot below the surface. Others may be still digging and will go down to 10 of even 20 feet.

When each feels that it is deep enough to be safe from the frost, it will hollow out a little cave—perhaps a quarter of an inch across — next to the root of a tree. The cave will be its home, says the National Geographis Society, and the root will be its storehouse, for the juice of tree roots is the pap of baby cicadas or "17-year locusts."

The larva will grow: it may even move to another root, and it will shed its skin several times before next it sees the light of day—on a soft May morning in 1970!

Suspended Drama

Thus, with the new generation of Brood Ten—the Great Brood—of periodic cicadas put to bed, one of Nature's longest and strangest dramas of the insect world rings down the curtain. There will be revivals, as there have been from time immemorial, but there are never more than six revivals in a century.

The 1953 appearance of the locusts, hatched from eggs laid in 1936, came off as scheduled. Last May, stirred by some mysterious signal as, many as 404,000 cicada nymphs emerged from the ground in one night under a single large oak tree. Stealthy, they moved to the nearest bush or tree and started to climb. Some reached the high limbs but many more got only part way up when the need for one last shedding of the skin seized them.

Clinging to the bark with their lobsterlike claws, the immature cicadas pulsed rythmically. The old skins split down the back and out crawled the full grown 17-year locusts. By morning, the creamy-white creatures had turned dark. Their eyes were red as fire. Their micalike wings with the characteristic black W at the base which the superstitious say foretells war — were dry and ready for flight.

Sound of Drums

The abdominal drums sported by the males were ready to begin their tireless sounding of four quite distinct notes—the prolonged burr, the "Pha-a-a-roah" which reminded the Pilgrim Fathers of the locust plagues of Egypt, the low continuous purr, and the loud squawk of surprise or fright.

And presently, after a brief season of clumsy fly and frolic, the silent femals were ready to lay their 400 to 600 eggs. With single-minded purpose, they sought out the tender limb tips of their favorite trees — oak, hickory, apple and peach. With their sharp, two-edged ovipositors they made a series of gashes in the twigs and laid 10 to 20 white eggs in each small gash. Exhausted from their labors, they fell to the ground or water, food for birds and squirrels or fish.

Now, at summer's end, the eggs laid last May and June have hatched. Earth itself will shelter and nourish the young while a generation of men moves and passes above them. And when Spring comes in 1970, there will be for the Great Brood of periodic cicadas a not inglorious resurrection.

It takes an average adult American about 50 days to consume his own weight in food.

GI Training Deadline Cited For Vets Of Korean Conflict

The deadline for starting training under the Korean GI Bill is less than a year away for nearly 1,000,000 Korean veterans, Veterans Administration announced.

The veterans are those who served since Korea, who were discharged or separated before August 20, 1952, and who have not yet taken advantage of the GI training benefit.

Under the law, they actually must "enroll in and begin GI training by August 20, 1954, in order to continue afterwards. The mere filing of an application beforehand, with an intention of starting some time after that date, is not enough, VA said.

VA emphasized that the 1954 cut-off date applies only to post-Korean veterans who left service before August 20, 1952. Those separated after that date need not concern themselves with the 1954 deadline. Instead, they have two years from the time they left the armed forces in which to get started.

Generally, a veteran is expected to be in the classroom or at the training bench when his GI Bill cut-off date comes around, if he wants to continue beyond that time. But so long as he started before the deadline, there will be no objection if he not actually in training on the cut-off date because of the normal summer vacation, or for other reasons beyond his control, or for circumstances that VA deems to be excusable.

In fact, he even has the right to suspend his GI training for as long as a year—with part of the suspension coming after the cut-off date—and still be permitted to resume training afterwards. If he does so, VA will consider that his failure to be in training on the deadline date was for an "excusable reason." The veteran won't be required to account to VA for his absence.

But if the suspension lasts for more than a year, the veteran will have to show VA that the absence in excess of 12 months was caused by conditions beyond his control. In this case, he must have VA's approval before he may go on with his Korean GI Bill studies.

VA said that these cut-off date rules and regulations apply only to veterans training under the Korean GI Bill. They have nothing at all to do with those in training under the World War II Bill.

Pullen Says 558,900 Children Will Need School Space By '59

BALTIMORE, Sept. 24 (AP) — The superintendent of Maryland public schools said today that 558,900 children will be demanding space in the state's public schools by 1959-60.

"We know the children are coming," Dr. Thomas G. Pullen told the Budget and Finance Committee of the Legislative Council. "The buildings should be ready for them."

"It is simply the part of wisdom of the Legislature and those in fiscal authority to anticipate this problem," Pullen added.

Pullen made the statement as the committee started hearings on a bill which would double the state's maximum contribution to the school incentive fund, from the present $10 to $20.

There were 300,000 children in school 10 years ago, Pullen said, and there are now 400,000. His figure of 558,900 by 1959 was based on foreseeable trends.

The superintendent said that in spite of an enormous building program—some 225 million dollars has been spent on school construction since 1947 — "we do not have enough space to take care of the children now."

"It boils down to these facts," Pullen told the lawmakers. "The children are here. We're going to have to have classrooms for them. It's going to cost money."

Sen. Goldstein (D-Calvert), recalling the money the state is spending for roads and other facilities, asked Pullen:

"Why not let the state build the schools?"

Pullen grinned.

"I'm not in a position to take a stand on that right now," he replied, "but we'll certainly follow your lead."

He said that real estate tax returns, used by political subdivisions largely to finance schools, had doubled in the last 12 years and added that the situation is such that "certain sections cannot continue to bond themselves much more against real estate."

Earlier, the committee heard requests from tax authorities from Baltimore City and a number of counties that they be allowed to put property assessments into effect the year they are made.

Present law requires subdivisions to re-assess one-third of the property within the subdivision annually, but the assessments are not put on the books until the end of the three-year period.

Baltimorean Held In Death Of His Bride

BALTIMORE, Sept. 24 (AP)—Roger Wilkerson was held without bail today, charged with brutally stabbing to death the girl he married three months ago.

He also is charged with stabbing his wife's companion when he found the two together yesterday afternoon in the man's apartment.

Police found Cara Wilkerson, 35, sprawled partly clothed across a blood spattered bed in the first floor apartment, the bed afire from a cigarette.

Her companion, Walter Frank, 55 was in a state of collapse from severe wounds. The room had been wrecked, the radio, television and one window smashed.

State police picked up the 40-year-old husband six hours later along Ritchie Highway, where they said he was hitch-hiking to his father's home on the Eastern Shore.

A note found in the bedroom read:

"Dear Police — Walter Frank caused it all. I tried but I couldn't make it. I was messed up before. I just can't take it, believe me and God forgive me. I loved her."

Wilkerson was suffering a stab wound in the chest when police picked him up. He said it had been inflicted by Frank, police said.

Frank told police he met Mrs. Wilkerson, a long-time friend, in a tavern yesterday about 1 a.m. He said she asked to stay in his apartment since her husband had threatened to kill her, he told police.

Frank said he refused, but that the woman followed him home.

He told them Wilkerson knocked on the apartment door about 4:30 p.m., then climbed in a window and attacked him when he would not open the door. He said he ran and hid in the bathroom, but returned to find the woman across the bed.

Two Thugs Rob Check Casher

BALTIMORE, Sept. 24 (AP)—Two thugs slipped up behind an 86-year-old Baltimore check casher today and grabbed from his hands a satchel containing $4,500, police reported.

The victim, William Baum, said he had just taken the money out of a branch bank to be ready to cash the paychecks of a group of laundry employes tomorrow.

"I had it (the satchel) solid and all of a sudden he had it and it was gone," said Baum.

He said the thieves approached from the rear and escaped in a car.

Traffic Safety Group Calls For More Troopers

BALTIMORE, Sept. 24 (AP)—The Maryland Traffic Safety Commission today called for more state police on the highways and a lighting test on the Baltimore-Washington Boulevard.

At a luncheon meeting at Woodholme Country Club the group announced a resolution calling for formation of a committee to call on the legislative council and seek that body's support in the quest for more state police.

The commission also resolved to submit its resolution to Gov. McKeldin.

The need for more state police was termed "one of the very first steps in curtailing the loss of life and the unnecessary injuries of thousands of our citizens on Maryland's streets and highways."

Another resolution called upon the State Roads Commission to make a "thorough and detailed test for the need of lighting the Washington boulevard."

The group suggested that a stretch of the highway be equipped with lights and observed as an experiment.

Byrd's Tenure As U. Of Md. Head Will End Dec. 31

BALTIMORE, Sept. 24 (AP)—Dr. H. C. Byrd's tenure as president of the University of Maryland will end Dec. 31 of this year, but he'll stay on the payroll one year longer.

The university president gets $22,500 a year.

Dr. Byrd, who has admitted informally that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor in the primary next spring, had asked to be relieved of his duties as of the end of this year.

The Board of Regents of the university adopted today a resolution ending Byrd's term as president on Dec. 31, conferring on him the title of president-emeritus as of Jan. 1, 1954, and providing:

"That Dr. Byrd, on his retirement from the presidency, be provided adequate facilities to write a complete history of the University and render such consultative service to the University as may be requested by the new president and the Board of Regents, and that in consideration of the foregoing Dr. Byrd continue to receive his present salary until Dec. 31, 1954."

Further, the board authorized the preparation of a "suitable statement in recognition of Dr. Byrd's term of 41 years of devoted and notable service uninterrupted by vacation or leave of absence."

In taking action, the regents adopted recommendations of a committee composed of Judge William P. Cole Jr., chairman, Dr. E. Paul Knotts, Charles P. McCormick, Dr. Arthur O. Lovejoy and Edward P. Holter.

The same committee is to "immediately apply itself to the recomendation of a successor to Dr. Byrd."

Should the committee not find it possible to make such recommendation before Jan. 1, 1954, it was asked to recommend a temporary administrative set-up to take over Byrd's duties.

Dr. Byrd was 64 last Feb. 12. He has been associated with the University since 1912 and has been president since June, 1935. He taught English and history and coached football before becoming president.

Kill Devil Hill, N. C., where the Wright brothers took off in their historic flight, got its name, according to legend, from a brand of rum so potent that it could "kill the devil."

GUILTY—Fred E. McManus (right) was found guilty yesterday at Canandaigua, N. Y., of first degree murder in the pistol slaying of William A. Braverman. The jury recommended life imprisonment. Ontario County Deputy Leonard Richmond is shown with McManus leaving the court room. The young ex-Marine had confessed five killings during a crime spree through the East and Midwest.

Polish Consul Deserts Reds

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—Officials reported today that Jan Galewicz, Polish consul general at New York earlier this year, has broken with his Communist government and fled to Latin America.

At the same time it was learned from responsible informants that two Polish Press Service newsmen at New York—Michat Wionczek and Henryk Gall—stopped their work for that official agency and went to Mexico City several months ago.

The State Department confirmed the reports that Galewicz had defected from his official position and said it understood he is in Montevideo, Uruguay. He left the United States on June 19.

The State Department press office stated in response to questions that it had no official word that either Gall or Wionczek had broken with the Polish government.

But it said it had been informed by the Polish Embassy that Gall had ceased to be a correspondent for the Polish Press Service and had left the United States by car for Mexico last May 9.

Britain Optimistic Over Russian Policy Improvement

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Sept. 24 (AP)—Britain's Selwyn Lloyd said today he is cautiously optimistic about what he called a welcome improvement in Soviet policy since Premier Stalin died. He urged the Russians to maintain this slightly relaxed policy and settle East-West issues one by one.

The British minister of state said in a policy statement to the U. N. Assembly that the Soviet Union could start with settlements on Korea, Germany, Austria and disarmament. He also said there must be an end to the war in Indochina, but did not definitely link Moscow to it.

He called on the assembly to show leadership and said he personally believed "there is a real hope of further progress in the next 12 months."

At the same time, Lloyd said that until it is determined that the Communist and non-Communist nations can live peacefully side by side it would be the "height of folly for the countries of the free world immediately to cast aside their defenses or to relax their efforts to maintain their strength."

Lloyd thus lined up beside U. S. Secretary of State Dulles in urging the Russians to negotiate on definite and limited problems such as Germany and Austria.

Lloyd said Soviet Premier Malenkov had stated as recently as Aug. 8 that there could be peaceful co-existence of the systems, Communist and non-Communist but that Soviet Delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky seemed in his speech to the assembly last Monday to be in conflict with Malenkov.

He called on Vishinsky, who was not in the hall at the time, to get away from the old "stereotyped language of abuse."

Lloyd said the change in the Soviet attitude had made possible the Korean armistice and contributed toward an easing in international tension.

"We believe it to be a mistake to assume that nothing can be settled with Soviet Russia unless and until everything is settled," Lloyd said. "A settlement of two or three of our difficulties would be an important gain to every peace loving country. That is why we favor taking outstanding problems one by one and seeking to negotiate the settlements."

He supported again the American suggestion that the Korean peace conference decide after it meets whether to invite neutrals to take part. He opposed further delay in opening the conference.

Gourmets of the gaslit Nineties gladly paid $100 and more a dozen for diamondback terrapin, but today few people consider it worth the trouble to prepare it.

Social Security Extension Urged By Mrs. Hobby

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 24 (AP)—Secretary of Welfare Hobby expressed hope today that "one of the first matters to be taken up when Congress reconvenes in January" will be extension of social security insurance coverage.

Mrs. Hobby said in a speech for the convention of the American Federation of Labor that proposed legislation based on recommendations of a 12-member advisory group was sent to Congress in the closing days of the last session with "hearty endorsement" from President Eisenhower.

This legislation would extend old age and survivors insurance coverage to about 10 million persons not now under the program.

Mrs. Hobby also revealed that another proposed revision in the Social Security Act, to raise the present $75 a month limit on the amount of money which a covered worker over 65 years may earn without forfeiting his insurance benefits, is under study. Proposals have been made in Congress to raise the limit to $100 or higher.

Mrs. Hobby praised the work being done by the Public Health Service in the field of industrial medicine, and the co-operation of management and labor.

"About 30 years ago, according to life insurance estimates, a worker entering a factory job could expect to live 10 years less than his fellow Americans," she said. "Today, the factory worker has a life expectancy equal to that of anyone else."

GUARDS AGAINST INTERFERENCE

In the studio—under controlled conditions—cameras pick up perfect image. Diagram represents television wave pattern as it appears on engineer's oscilloscope.

But outside interference—a passing truck, a neighbor's vacuum cleaner—can distort TV waves. Such interference scrambles the wave pattern like this.

Crosley Picture-Sentry (an advanced electronic circuit) controls TV wave pattern; guards against scrambling. The image on your '54 Crosley stays clear, sharp . . . as in the studio.

Before you put down one penny for a television set—go see the new Crosleys. Turn the dial on a Crosley, take a good long look at the picture. See how clear it is . . . how it almost breathes.

GUARDS AGAINST INTERFERENCE

In the studio—under controlled conditions—cameras pick up perfect image. Diagram represents television wave pattern as it appears on engineer's oscilloscope.

But outside interference—a passing truck, a neighbor's vacuum cleaner—can distort TV waves. Such interference scrambles the wave pattern like this.

Crosley Picture-Sentry (an advanced electronic circuit) controls TV wave pattern, guards against scrambling. The image on your '54 Crosley stays clear, sharp . . . as in the studio.

Church Bells Ringing As Tradition That Nearly Got Lost Comes Back

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP)—The church bells are ringing.

It's a religious tradition that nearly got lost on the modern syncopated American scene, but today it's coming back into custom.

Take a stroll at twilight or on a Sunday morning and you'll hear the peal of bells from a growing number of churches.

"A very much larger percentage of churches today are using carillons," says George J. Schulmerich of Sellersville, Pa., a leading producer of bell instruments.

His company alone has installed bell equipment in about 3,000 churches across the country within the last 10 years.

A couple of centuries ago, bells were considered an essential fixture of a church. They still are in tradition-steeped Europe but in America, a kind of plain, unadorned church evolved—often without bells.

"But the interest in bells is growing," says E. M. Fritsen of Chicago, agent and member of a historic Holland family of bellfounders.

In small towns and large ones, churches of various faiths that once stood silent while congregations gathered, now toll the call to worship.

And along many a residential street echo the tones of the Angelus.

"Today, there is a steadily mounting interest in this form of music," said Jack Deagon of Chicago, also head of a bell equipment firm.

"More churches every year come to regard bells or chimes as a means of communicating their message."

(Up to 22 bells constitute a chime of bells, while it takes at least 23 bells to make a true carillon on which most hymns can be played.)

Where bells have been newly installed in churches, many ministers say it adds an ethereal quality to the church grounds—like melodies from above.

"The bells bring a distinct spiritual overtone to the life of the community," said the Rev. John R. Bouldin of Grace Church (Evangelical United Brethren), Streator, Ill.

"We feel they help to heal life's discords," said the Rev. Albert A. Habgood of First Methodist Church, Portland, Ind.

"A source of inspiration," said the Rev. Joseph Costanzo of St. Peter and Paul's Church, San Francisco.

One factor in the increased use of church bells has been the development of "electronic carillons," as substitutes for sets of heavy, bronze cast bells.

Schulmerich, who handles both types, says the electronic devices mean a revolution in church bell music—because they cost less and don't require strong, massive towers nor highly skilled carilloneurs.

The carillons can be played from a console-type keyboard that looks like a small upright piano, or operated automatically from punched rolls and set to play by time clocks.

A basic set of 25 "carillonic bells" costs about $1,800. A 61-note set costs about $20,000 and weighs a few hundred pounds. A corresponding set of cast bells weighs 275,372 pounds. Tubular chimes differ from both.

Along The Potomac

by Rep. DeWitt S. Hyde

WASHINGTON—When the voters of this country went to the polls last year, they made one thing crystal clear: They wanted an end to the "five percenter" racket in Washington.

Evidently there are still some persons in the capital who didn't read the election returns right, because we now have evidence that this shady activity is still going on. A committee headed by Representative Hess (R-Ohio) has turned up the first case of a man using political contacts here to get secret information and help a manufacturer land a government contract.

For this he would collect four per cent of the contract price. But in this case the manufacturer, knowing the activity to be improper, reported it to the government and the investigation began.

There is no law against this sort of thing, and it would be difficult to write one because companies who wish to do business with Uncle Sam do need some kind of contact. The problem is that some people don't know where to draw the line—they make unwarranted use of secret information or tempt government officers to give them favored treatment, and it doesn't take much of this to give a whole administration a bad moral complexion.

This new case made public by Rep. Hess did not involve any of the men President Eisenhower has placed in his administration. We can hope that the prompt publicity given to the case will discourage other potential four- or five-percenters before we have another series of scandals on our hands such as we did under the old administration.

There is one possible way to deal with manufacturers' agents to keep them on the straight and narrow—through a registration law similar to the one which controls lobbyists. Perhaps if they had to submit to financial reports and list their names with the Congress they would curb their underhanded deals.

No one, no matter how good a Republican, will claim that the new administration is perfect. But its first responsibility is to stay perfectly honest and perfectly moral. And the Republican party has promptly shown its good faith with America's voters by kicking this first offending "four percenter" out of its organization.

On my calendar: This Sunday I will look forward to meeting members of the Seven Oaks Citizens Association at their garden party at 301 Ellsworth Drive in Silver Spring . . . Next Thursday I have been invited to speak to the Cosmos Club of Washington on my experiences as a freshman congressman . . . I'll be visiting the Hagerstown Fair this weekend, and the Frederick Fair two weeks from now.

Costly Sneeze

MISHAWAKA, Ind., Sept. 25 (AP)—Samuel J. Strang, 40, lost control of his auto today, sideswiped a parked car, plowed through a lawn and smacked into a tree. Mishawaka police estimated the damage at $450.

Strang explained that he sneezed.

The average whisker in a man's beard has a greater tensile strength than iron.

by Rep. DeWitt S. Hyde

WASHINGTON—When the voters of this country went to the polls last year, they made one thing crystal clear: They wanted an end to the "five percenter" racket in Washington.

Evidently there are still some persons in the capital who didn't read the election returns right, because we now have evidence that this shady activity is still going on. A committee headed by Representative Hess (R-Ohio) has turned up the first case of a man using political contacts here to get secret information and help a manufacturer land a government contract.

For this he would collect four per cent of the contract price. But in this case the manufacturer, knowing the activity to be improper, reported it to the government and the investigation began.

There is no law against this sort of thing, and it would be difficult to write one because companies who wish to do business with Uncle Sam do need some kind of contact. The problem is that some people don't know where to draw the line—they make unwarranted use of secret information or tempt government officers to give them favored treatment, and it doesn't take much of this to give a whole administration a bad moral complexion.

This new case made public by Rep. Hess did not involve any of the men President Eisenhower has placed in his administration. We can hope that the prompt publicity given to the case will discourage other potential four- or five-percenters before we have another series of scandals on our hands such as we did under the old administration.

There is one possible way to deal with manufacturers' agents to keep them on the straight and narrow—through a registration law similar to the one which controls lobbyists. Perhaps if they had to submit to financial reports and list their names with the Congress they would curb their underhanded deals.

No one, no matter how good a Republican, will claim that the new administration is perfect. But its first responsibility is to stay perfectly honest and perfectly moral. And the Republican party has promptly shown its good faith with America's voters by kicking this first offending "four percenter" out of its organization.

On my calendar: This Sunday I will look forward to meeting members of the Seven Oaks Citizens Association at their garden party at 301 Ellsworth Drive in Silver Spring . . . Next Thursday I have been invited to speak to the Cosmos Club of Washington on my experiences as a freshman congressman . . . I'll be visiting the Hagerstown Fair this weekend, and the Frederick Fair two weeks from now.

Costly Sneeze

MISHAWAKA, Ind., Sept. 25 (AP)—Samuel J. Strang, 40, lost control of his auto today, sideswiped a parked car, plowed through a lawn and smacked into a tree. Mishawaka police estimated the damage at $450.

Strang explained that he sneezed.

The average whisker in a man's beard has a greater tensile strength than iron.

Cabs Will Lose Parking Places In Westernport

Privilege To End Saturday, Oct. 31

WESTERNPORT—The privilege of taxis parking on Main Street between Church and Washington Street will be terminated on October 31 Mayor Okey E. Michael and Commissioners have ordered.

When the town's new parking lot was put in operation September 11, all parking except for taxis was eliminated on that section of Main Street.

Mrs. Katherine Dailey, city clerk, was instructed to write the taxi companies of the town decision to give them time to make arrangements in carrying on their business.

John Kazlo asked that a fire plug be installed in the vicinity of his home on Riordan Road. He stated there was no fire plug within a quarter of mile and there are seven houses in that area.

Mayor Michael told him the council agreed with him and would make a survey as to the cost but did not know whether they could do it at this time.

Scott Grove, Lee Michael and Bernard Lee, residents of Wood Street Extended, asked that water be made available to them by extending the line. The city officials will meet with them on Tuesday at 6 p. m. and go over the situation with the Wood Street residents.

Larry Cavallora said he did not have a hose connection which he was charged a dollar for the quarter. An inspection will be made.

Richard Hayes asked that a street light be placed at his home at the corner of Fifth Street and Poplar Street. He also requested that something be done to the road there. It becomes very muddy after a rain, he asserted.

WANDA SUE HARDY, 11, of Louisville, Ky., who is very frail because of a mysterious malady, hurdled one of several serious handicaps when her eyesight was restored by surgery. Doctors who have been treating the girl, shown here playing with her doll, hope to build her up physically and correct a deficiency that keeps her from walking. They have not determined the cause of her condition. (International Exclusive)

Keyser Engineers To Draw Plans For Swimming Pool

KEYSER — The local engineering firm, Blundon, Snyder and Small, has been selected by the Mayor and City Council, City Planning Commission and Board of Recreation to furnish plans and supervise work on the proposed local swimming pool for which $65,000 is available.

The recreation board, through Edgel Grayson, secretary, recommended the local firm over competitors from Baltimore and Sewickley, Pa., because of its proximity to the place of operation.

Graydon said the board hopes bids for excavation and construction work may be submitted about December 1.

The board secretary reports that the recreation board believes that a 50-by-100 foot basin can be built now with the $65,000. Later, as money is available, a bath house, wading pool, landscaping, underwater lighting and other features will be added. These additions probably will bring cost to about $90,000.

WOOD'S PERMANENT PASTURE MIXTURES

Pasture in Edgecombe Co., N. C., seeded 25 years ago, is as productive as ever.

FURNISH MORE GRAZING

More economical, productive, nutritious and palatable than Ladino Clover with Orchard Grass or Tall Fescue alone. Improved by many years of experience, they grow off faster, flourish in dry summers, crowd out weeds and bear abundantly for many years. With Ladino, Orchard and Ky. 31 Fescue as a base, they contain 9 legumes and 9 grasses which make their maximum growth at different times throughout the year, for abundant year 'round grazing and furnish a balanced diet which will not cause bloat.

WOOD'S GRAIN PASTURE MIXTURE

Furnishes more grazing in less time and at less cost than other crops. It keeps more animals per acre in good healthy condition in winter, when feed costs are high, and permanent pastures are short. Saves expensive labor in feeding. Highly nutritious. Relished by all livestock and poultry. For continuous grazing in fall, winter and spring it has ideal proportions of rye grass, crimson clover, winter grains and rape to supply protein for growth and warmth, but cannot cause bloat.

On The Line

by Bob Considine

NEW YORK—(INS)—No football coach in history ever had to do what Gen. Curt Lemay has done the past five years—keep a team in peak form for a game scheduled for the next day which is constantly being postponed.

In effect, that is the great problem that confronts Lemay's Strategic Air Command, whose mission is defined in these terms: "We must be prepared at all times to deliver concentrated atomic attack against the vital elements of an enemy's war-making capacity, to strike at his long-range bomber fleet, and to support appropriate area commanders with attacks on suitable targets."

How do you keep men at a pitch which would enable them to take off on an instant's notice and head for, let us say, the remotest target in Russia?

SAC does it in a variety of ways. It starts with certain advantages. It is the greatst band of professional airmen in the world. Every aircraft commander in SAC shows an average of 36 combat missions. SAC crews have lived together, slept together, flown together and thought together for years.

But every time this big game is postponed, the spirit of even the most eager of the beavers are inclined to droop or collect rust. A condition like that cannot be tolerated in SAC. The security of the free world depends more upon the readiness of SAC than on any other tool in the arsenal of democracy.

Lemay, a soft-spoken man from Ohio who can be as tough as an angry bear if a man does not play square with him, is a man who has won for himself a brand of loyalty among his men that is hard to put into words. Every man who works for him knows that Lemay, come the big game, will be in the first plane. He has devised a rigorous and constant training program that tests every man in his outfit every day in a way in which he would test himself.

There are no "breathers" on Lemay's mythical schedule. There is only one big game, and he might be called upon to send his team into the air against the big opponent on a moment's notice.

His men work a 16-hour day. Their medical charts are always up to date. Their bags are packed. Their personal affairs are always in order. No SAC bomber is ever incapacitated in a repair shop for any length of time. Leaves are handled so as not to break the unity of any crew. No important SAC crewman ever takes two weeks at a beach away from a telephone. With SAC, the war is never cold.

Key officers and crewmen in SAC carry sidearms for a very simple reason. If Russia started a shooting war tomorrow the very first targets of her host of saboteurs in this country unquestionably would be the B-36s, B-47s and B-50s which make up the bulk of SAC's ability to reprise with a horrendous Sunday punch.

When you realize that one SAC bomber can now deliver a blow comparable to that of literally hundreds of B-17s and B-24s of World War II vintage, common sense requires that those bombers and men who have been trained at great cost to find the targets, be protected.

A crewman who truly distinguishes himself on SAC's practice missions is eligible for spot promotion. Often, entire crews are jumped a grade. SAC has more lieutenant colonels and majors piloting its big bombers than it has captains. But if a crew grows fat or stale, or even one member of it goofs off, the entire team can be lowered one rank.

Their pay, brand of quarters, etc., etc., falls off if they don't come up with redeeming performances within the following 30 days.

Keeps the boys alive and ready.

One sample of how SAC, and its incredible refueling-in-the-air program, has shrunken the world: Swarms of B-36s recently flew nonstop across the Pacific and droned over some of our less certain friends out that way. Flights of B-47s regularly cross the Atlantic in four hours. Squadrons of F-84s, SAC's A-bomb carrying Republic aviation fighter, have flown nonstop from Georgia to North Africa, thanks to refueling at sea. A group of B-36s, ordered to fly to Dayton, O., non-stop from Japan, and drum over the field there at the same time a group of B-47s flew in from Britain, did so within one minute of the fly-by of the B-47s.

You can sleep better tonight because Coach Lemay has found a way to keep his boys perpetually primed for the big game.

Too Far South In Dixie

What the Democrats would like to do is turn a powerful minority into a weak majority.

That was the general hum of the September hassel in Chicago. It was the last row of summer.

Those Southern Democrats have been refusing to buy a political pig in a committee poke. No Dixiecrat wants to be handcuffed by a handshake.

The north-of-the-thirty-eighth-parallel Democrats have been trying to jam a loyalty pledge through. On the theory that one plank is better than a lot of splinters.

But the southerners are as independent as a pelican with its own fish hatchery.

This is a scuffle between those misplaced Democrats in the north and the Jeffersonian aristocrats of the Deep South. They're cousins but they're not kissing.

After having given 12 sons to the executive mansion the South wants to be known as the smother of presidents. It walked out on Franklin Roosevelt, senior, and Harry Truman.

It is walking out on Franklin Roosevelt, junior. Walking out on the Roosevelts can be a career.

The Dixiecrats have been commuting between the subject and the nearest exit.

This does not make for solidarity. A House divided against itself must have two kitchens. What price southern cooking?

The Dixiecrats are free spirits who do not intend to be fenced in by dotted lines. Nor will they be battered to death by nods.

And they argue it still takes two to make a gentleman's agreement.

Amending An Amendment

Just fermented a dreadful thought that the Bill of Rights endorses the monopoly of the individual over the preponderance of the plebiscite.

How else could the mouthpiece for the Commies make a running noose out of the legal loophole?

We know that one person can assemble peacefully anywhere except in parking space already occupied. And that the freedom of talking to yourself shall not be abridged by a constitutional stutter.

And that no soldier shall be quartered in your trailer during times of peace without the consent of the finance company.

And the right of protest against unreasonable searches shall include your trousers at night.

Andrew Baluch Is Given Parole

Andrew Baluch, sentenced to 12 years in the Maryland penitentiary in March, 1949, for a second degree murder, is one of 84 prisoners of four state penal institutions who have been granted paroles.

The parole was granted by the Parole Board headed by James M. Hepbron, chairman. The board has the power to grant paroles. This function was taken away from the governor by legislative action.

Donald Smith, given two years in the Maryland Reformatory for Males last October in Allegany County Circuit Court on a larceny charge, was also paroled.

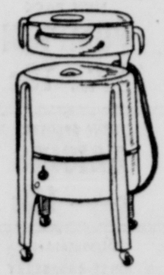
WHAT YOUR NEIGHBORS ARE SAYING . . .

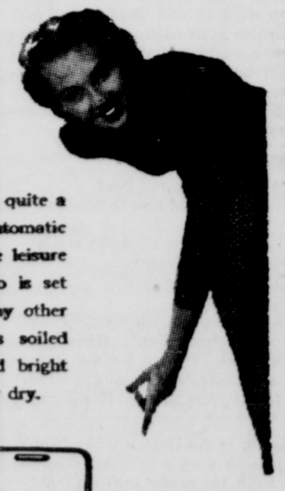


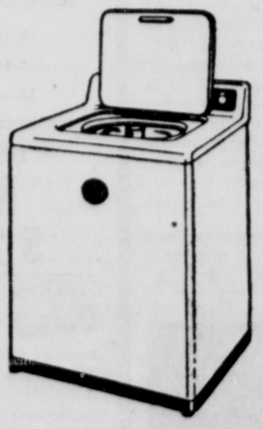
I HAVE A WRINGER WASHER—

We're saving for a home so my husband and I decided to get an electric washer that would do a big job yet not strain our small budget. Our wringer washer does a wonderful job, cuts down our laundry bills and saves us money toward our "dream house."

MY FAVORITE'S THE AUTOMATIC WASHER—

I'm a busy housewife with quite a family to care for. My automatic washer gives me lots more leisure time for all I have to do is set the dial, then go about my other chores while the family's soiled clothes are washed, rinsed bright and clean and spun nearly dry.





A YOUNG BRIDE TAUGHT ME A LESSON I'M GRATEFUL FOR—

For years and years I had been hauling soggy, heavy clothes up the cellar stairs and out to the clothesline. It was a pain in the back—literally! Then my next-door neighbor, a new bride, showed me her modern new electric dryer. After seeing the speedy job it did in all types of weather, I got one. Now, I wouldn't be without it. Rain or shine, day or night, I can dry clothes indoors, with no clothesline, clothes-pin or weather worries.

NEW YORK—(INS)—No football coach in history ever had to do what Gen. Curt Lemay has done the past five years—keep a team in peak form for a game scheduled for the next day which is constantly being postponed.

In effect, that is the great problem that confronts Lemay's Strategic Air Command, whose mission is defined in these terms: "We must be prepared at all times to deliver concentrated atomic attack against the vital elements of an enemy's war-making capacity, to strike at his long-range bomber fleet, and to support appropriate area commanders with attacks on suitable targets."

How do you keep men at a pitch which would enable them to take off on an instant's notice and head for, let us say, the remotest target in Russia?

SAC does it in a variety of ways. It starts with certain advantages. It is the greatst band of professional airmen in the world. Every aircraft commander in SAC shows an average of 36 combat missions. SAC crews have lived together, slept together, flown together and thought together for years.

But every time this big game is postponed, the spirit of even the most eager of the beavers are inclined to droop or collect rust. A condition like that cannot be tolerated in SAC. The security of the free world depends more upon the readiness of SAC than on any other tool in the arsenal of democracy.

Lemay, a soft-spoken man from Ohio who can be as tough as an angry bear if a man does not play square with him, is a man who has won for himself a brand of loyalty among his men that is hard to put into words. Every man who works for him knows that Lemay, come the big game, will be in the first plane. He has devised a rigorous and constant training program that tests every man in his outfit every day in a way in which he would test himself.

There are no "breathers" on Lemay's mythical schedule. There is only one big game, and he might be called upon to send his team into the air against the big opponent on a moment's notice.

Beef Stew Meat In Tempting Dishes

VERSATILE BEEF STEW MEAT—You can save money on your food bills by buying beef stew meat often for dinner and varying the way it's prepared. Here are three appetizing dishes made from the lean beef now on the market in such plentiful supply—chili con carne on rice, oven-cooked beef stew and barbecued beef cubes on toasted buns.

When you see beef stew at your meat counter, do you immediately envisage a dish of hearty stew, replete with tender beef cubes, potatoes and bright colored carrots? Chances are that you do — but it's well to remember that beef stew meat can be used in a variety of other ways, too. Braised beef cubes on rice or noodles, beef and kidney pie, barbecued beef on buns and chili con carne are a few examples.

Beef stew meat is one of the specials in today's lineup of lean beef cuts now on the market in such plentiful supply. This beef is from cattle which has been fed entirely on the grassy plains and mountains of the West and has come to market without any corn "finishing". Because lean beef costs less to produce then corn-fed beef, it can be marketed at attractive prices.

Lean, economy beef is ideal for use in such dishes as Swiss steaks, pot roasts and stews and usually needs slightly longer cooking time than beef containing more fat.

Here are three home-kitchen tested recipes using beef stew meat which will help you to take advantage of the supplies of lean beef on the market:

The first is a novel chili con carne, a somewhat heartier dish when made with diced beef instead of ground beef; the second is an oven-cooked beef stew which needs no stirring or watching during cooking; the third, barbecued beef on buns — ideal for late evening snacking, Saturday night supper, after-the-football game, etc.

Chili Con Carne

1½ pounds beef stew meat
2 cups chopped celery
2 medium green peppers
4 medium onions
No. 2 can tomatoes (2½ cups)
No. 2 can kidney beans (2½ cups)
Salt, pepper, chili powder

Cut meat into ½ inch cubes and brown in a little hot fat in a Dutch oven or other large, heavy utensil. Add celery, chopped green pepper, chopped onions and tomatoes. Season with ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon chili powder. Add hot water to barely cover meat. Cover and cook over low heat 1½ hours. Add kidney beans, cook another 30 minutes, then add salt, pepper and chili powder to suit taste. Thicken, if necessary, with a flour and water paste.

Oven-Cooked Beef Stew

stalk celery, sliced
1 pound beef stew meat
Salt, pepper, flour, lard
2 medium onions
1¾ cups water
1 can condensed tomato soup
small bay leaf
3 whole cloves
4 carrots, sliced
3 medium potatoes, cut in eighths
1 cup canned peas (8 oz. can)

Cut meat into 1-inch cubes; sprinkle with salt and pepper and roll in flour. Melt 3 tablespoons lard in a skillet and in it brown meat well. Transfer meat to a 2-quart casserole. Lightly brown onion in fat and add to meat. Mix water with tomato soup and pour over meat. Add seasonings and celery and stir well. Cover and bake in a 325 degrees F. oven for 1½ hours. Add vegetables, sprinkle with salt and pepper and stir into meat. Cover and continue baking for 45 minutes. 4 servings.

Barbecued Beef On Buns

Brown one-inch beef cubes in a little fat, add seasonings (salt, pepper and spices and herbs, if desired) and just a little water. Cover and cook over low heat until tender, one to 1½ hours. Add water in small amounts to keep from sticking. When meat is tender, add some thick barbecue sauce, either bottled or homemade, or chili sauce with extra seasonings. Heat well and serve hot on toasted buns.

Cows in South Dakota are being nose-printed as a means of identification.

Indoor Or Outdoor Casserole

Here's an easy-to-prepare casserole which you'll like for outdoor picnicing or indoor buffet service. It's an economical ground beef, potato and corn mixture moistened with cream of tomato soup. All that's needed to accompany this casserole is a crisp carrot and cabbage slaw.

Buffet Casserole

1 pound ground beef
1 cup sliced onions
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 cups cooked, sliced potatoes
1 can whole kernel corn (2 cups)
1 can tomato soup
½ cup milk

Brown meat in a little hot fat; push to one side and lightly brown onions. Add salt and pepper. In a greased 2-quart casserole, arrange layers of meat and onions, potatoes and corn. Pour over all tomato soup diluted with milk; lift up layers to thoroughly moisten the ingredients. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for 20 minutes. 6 servings.

Round Steak Variation

Tailored describes round steak. It can be cut to fit or suit most any occasion. Here the steak is teamed with a relish mixture. It's browned, then covered with sliced sweet pickle, onion, celery, pimiento and parsley. Cooked slowly until tender, this is the perfect dish to add sparkle to your menus.

Swiss Steak-Relish

2 pounds beef round steak, cut 1 inch thick
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup sliced onions
½ cup sliced sweet pickles
1 cup diced celer.
¼ cup chopped pimiento
2 tablespoons minced parsley
½ cup water

Pound flour into both sides of steak. Brown in melted lard or drippings until well browned on both sides. Season. Cover with onions, pickles, celery, pimiento and parsley. Add water and cover tightly. Cook slowly for about 1½ hours. 6 servings.

Hearty Beef Loaf

A natural choice for a hearty main dish is this Beef-Rice Loaf. Complete your menu with a tomato juice appetizer, buttered frenched green beans, hashed brown potatoes, a jellied vegetable salad, hard rolls and a dessert of blueberry pie.

Meat-Rice Loaf

1½ pounds ground beef
1 cup cooked rice
1 egg
3 tablespoons chopped onion
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¾ cup milk
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning

Mix all ingredients thoroughly. Pack into a greased 5 x 9-inch loaf pan and bake in a slow oven (300° F.) for 1½ hours. 8 to 10 servings.

Risotto is the Italian way of cooking rice in such a manner that the rice may be made into any number of delicious main dishes. The rice is slowly cooked in oil or fat until it is the color of ripe yellow corn. Hot stock is slowly poured over the rice. Tomato paste and grated Parmesan cheese may be added before the Risotto is baked in the oven until the rice is soft but still firm.

Imaginative Touch

Imagination goes a long way in planning and preparing attractive meals. For instance, these crisp-coated beef croquettes served with a different sauce each time can add variety to your menu in a thrifty manner. Consider serving them with a tomato, barbecue, mushroom or cheese sauce, or with creamed peas or other creamed vegetable.

Economy Croquettes

1 pound ground beef
1 cup grated carrots
1 cup fine moist bread crumbs
¼ cup grated onion
1 egg
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Dry bread crumbs
Milk
Lard for deep-fat frying

Combine all ingredients, except dry crumbs and milk. Divide into 12 parts and shape into croquettes. Roll in crumbs then in milk and again in crumbs. Cook until brown in deep hot lard at 365 degrees F. Drain on absorbent paper. If desired, serve with hot tomato sauce. 6 servings.

Beef Stew Meat In Tempting Dishes

VERSATILE BEEF STEW MEAT—You can save money on your food bills by buying beef stew meat often for dinner and varying the way it's prepared. Here are three appetizing dishes made from the lean beef now on the market in such plentiful supply—chili con carne on rice, oven-cooked beef stew and barbecued beef cubes on toasted buns.

When you see beef stew at your meat counter, do you immediately envisage a dish of hearty stew, replete with tender beef cubes, potatoes and bright colored carrots? Chances are that you do — but it's well to remember that beef stew meat can be used in a variety of other ways, too. Braised beef cubes on rice or noodles, beef and kidney pie, barbecued beef on buns and chili con carne are a few examples.

Beef stew meat is one of the specials in today's lineup of lean beef cuts now on the market in such plentiful supply. This beef is from cattle which has been fed entirely on the grassy plains and mountains of the West and has come to market without any corn "finishing". Because lean beef costs less to produce then corn-fed beef it can be marketed at attractive prices.

Lean, economy beef is ideal for use in such dishes as Swiss steaks, pot roasts and stews and usually needs slightly longer cooking time than beef containing more fat.

Here are three home-kitchen tested recipes using beef stew meat which will help you to take advantage of the supplies of lean beef on the market:

The first is a novel chili con carne, a somewhat heartier dish when made with diced beef instead of ground beef; the second is an oven-cooked beef stew which needs no stirring or watching during cooking; the third, barbecued beef on buns — ideal for late evening snacking, Saturday night supper, after-the-football game, etc.

Chili Con Carne

1½ pounds beef stew meat
2 cups chopped celery
2 medium green peppers
4 medium onions
No. 2 can tomatoes (2½ cups)
No. 2 can kidney beans (2½ cups)
Salt, pepper, chili powder

Cut meat into ½ inch cubes and brown in a little hot fat in a Dutch oven or other large, heavy utensil. Add celery, chopped green pepper, chopped onions and tomatoes. Season with ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon chili powder. Add hot water to barely cover meat. Cover and cook over low heat 1½ hours. Add kidney beans, cook another 30 minutes, then add salt, pepper and chili powder to suit taste. Thicken, if necessary, with a flour and water paste.

Oven-Cooked Beef Stew

stalk celery, sliced
1 pound beef stew meat
Salt, pepper, flour, lard
2 medium onions
1¾ cups water
1 can condensed tomato soup
small bay leaf
3 whole cloves
4 carrots, sliced
3 medium potatoes, cut in eighths
1 cup canned peas (8 oz. can)

Cut meat into 1-inch cubes; sprinkle with salt and pepper and roll in flour. Melt 3 tablespoons lard in a skillet and in it brown meat well. Transfer meat to a 2-quart casserole. Lightly brown onion in fat and add to meat. Mix water with tomato soup and pour over meat. Add seasonings and celery and stir well. Cover and bake in a 325 degrees F. oven for 1½ hours. Add vegetables, sprinkle with salt and pepper and stir into meat. Cover and continue baking for 45 minutes. 4 servings.

Barbecued Beef On Buns

Brown one-inch beef cubes in a little fat, add seasonings (salt, pepper and spices and herbs, if desired) and just a little water. Cover and cook over low heat until tender, one to 1½ hours. Add water in small amounts to keep from sticking. When meat is tender, add some thick barbecue sauce, either bottled or homemade, or chili sauce with extra seasonings. Heat well and serve hot on toasted buns.

Cows in South Dakota are being nose-printed as a means of identification.

Indoor Or Outdoor Casserole

Here's an easy-to-prepare casserole which you'll like for outdoor picnicing or indoor buffet service. It's an economical ground beef, potato and corn mixture moistened with cream of tomato soup. All that's needed to accompany this casserole is a crisp carrot and cabbage slaw.

Buffet Casserole

1 pound ground beef
1 cup sliced onions
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 cups cooked, sliced potatoes
1 can whole kernel corn (2 cups)
1 can tomato soup
½ cup milk

Brown meat in a little hot fat; push to one side and lightly brown onions. Add salt and pepper. In a greased 2-quart casserole, arrange layers of meat and onions, potatoes and corn. Pour over all tomato soup diluted with milk; lift up layers to thoroughly moisten the ingredients. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for 20 minutes. 6 servings.

Round Steak Variation

Tailored describes round steak. It can be cut to fit or suit most any occasion. Here the steak is teamed with a relish mixture. It's browned, then covered with sliced sweet pickle, onion, celery, pimiento and parsley. Cooked slowly until tender, this is the perfect dish to add sparkle to your menus.

Swiss Steak-Relish

2 pounds beef round steak, cut 1 inch thick
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup sliced onions
½ cup sliced sweet pickles
1 cup diced celery
¼ cup chopped pimiento
2 tablespoons minced parsley
½ cup water

Pound flour into both sides of steak. Brown in melted lard or drippings until well browned on both sides. Season. Cover with onions, pickles, celery, pimiento and parsley. Add water and cover tightly. Cook slowly for about 1½ hours. 6 servings.

Hearty Beef Loaf

A natural choice for a hearty main dish is this Beef-Rice Loaf. Complete your menu with a tomato juice appetizer, buttered frenched green beans, hashed brown potatoes, a jellied vegetable salad, hard rolls and a dessert of blueberry pie.

Meat-Rice Loaf

1½ pounds ground beef
1 cup cooked rice
1 egg
3 tablespoons chopped onion
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¾ cup milk
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning

Mix all ingredients thoroughly. Pack into a greased 5 x 9-inch loaf pan and bake in a slow oven (300° F.) for 1½ hours. 8 to 10 servings.

Risotto is the Italian way of cooking rice in such a manner that the rice may be made into any number of delicious main dishes. The rice is slowly cooked in oil or fat until it is the color of ripe yellow corn. Hot stock is slowly poured over the rice. Tomato paste and grated Parmesan cheese may be added before the Risotto is baked in the oven until the rice is soft but still firm.

Imaginative Touch

Imagination goes a long way in planning and preparing attractive meals. For instance, these crisp-coated beef croquettes served with a different sauce each time can add variety to your menu in a thrifty manner. Consider serving them with a tomato, barbecue, mushroom or cheese sauce, or with creamed peas or other creamed vegetable.

Economy Croquettes

1 pound ground beef
1 cup grated carrots
1 cup fine moist bread crumbs
¼ cup grated onion
1 egg
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Milk
Lard for deep-fat frying

Combine all ingredients, except dry crumbs and milk. Divide into 12 parts and shape into croquettes. Roll in crumbs then in milk and again in crumbs. Cook until brown in deep hot lard at 365 degrees F. Drain on absorbent paper. If desired, serve with hot tomato sauce. 6 servings.

From Sassamanesh To Cranberry Sass

The Indians had a word for the bright red berries that provided Cape Cod tribes with food and medicine and the word was "Sassamanesh." They gathered the fruit wild from the lowlands, ground it into a pulpy mixture with dried deer meat, and made pemmican. This art they passed on to the Pilgrims who made the native berry into a traditional American dish at Thanksgiving.

How and when the name "cranberry" was first derived is not historic fact, but one has only to look closely at the delicate pink blossoms, nodding on their graceful stems like miniature crane's heads, to guess that the name might have once been "crane berry" before it was shortened.

The Indian name disappeared as did the Indian recipes. Enterprising farmers began cranberry cultivation which spread from Massachusetts to New Jersey, Wisconsin, Washington and Oregon. Growers' cooperatives were formed to market the increasing crops and soon cranberries became a nationwide industry. The uses of cranberries expanded, too. Cranberry canning and later the processing of cranberry juice made it possible for the healthful fruit to become a favorite all year 'round dish in all parts of the country.

But, although cranberries have progressed wth the times, an aura of their historic background still clings to them. Though they go out on the tennis courts in cool, refreshing drinks, sparkling with vitality, though they hobnob with chicken, ham and other meats 12 months of the year, they have never given up their place on the Thanksgiving table. And as the plates are heaped with holiday turkey on November 26, someone is bound to revert to an abbreviation of the old Indian name and say, "Please pass the cranberry sass."

Here is a quickie to make the family sit up and take notice. Mix together 3 cups of cooked rice, 1, 16 ounce can pork and beans, 1 cup water, ½ cup catsup and pour into a greased baking dish. Top with pineapple slices dotted with butter or margarine and brown sugar. Bake at 350°F. until the pineapple is glazed and the mixture is hot.

Fruit Breads Made With Cereal Popular 'Round Clock

Breads, flavored with fruit or jelly, are rich, tasty and versatile! They make popular adjuncts to luncheon or dinner menus; are considered a necessity when planning tea or party sandwiches; and are perfect toasted and served with butter for breakfast.

The breads can be made in your own kitchen, using the fruit flavoring you prefer. The three recipes that follow are made according to the quick method and feature an extra "flavor" ingredient: ready-to-eat bran cereal. Quickly mixed and requiring approximately one hour baking, they come from the oven temptingly fragrant and delicious!

Apple Butter Bran Bread

1 cup ready-to-eat- bran
1½ cups apple butter
¼ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
1 egg
1¾ cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup seedless raisins

Combine bran, apple butter and lemon juice; let stand until most of moisture is taken up. Blend shortening and sugar thoroughly; add egg and beat well. Stir in bran mixture. Sift together flour, baking powder, soda and salt. All together with raisins to shortening mixture, stirring only until combined. Spread in greased 9½ x 4¼-inch loaf pan. Bake in slow oven (325°F.) about 1¼ hours. Yield: 1 loaf.

Honey Orange Bread

2 tablespoons shortening
1 cup honey
1 egg
1½ tablespoons grated orange rind
2½ cup sifted flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup orange juice
1 cup ready-to-eat bran

Blend shortening and honey; add egg and orange rind and beat well. Sift together flour, baking powder, soda and salt and stir into first mixture alternately with orange juice. Stir in bran. Pour into greased loaf pan and bake in slow oven (325°F.) for 1 hour and 10 minutes. Yield: 1 loaf (5¼ x 9⅓ inch pan).

Bran Prune Bread

1¼ cup boiling water
1½ cups ready-to-eat bran
1½ cup chopped dried prunes
2 tablespoons shortening
1 egg, well-beaten
1½ cup sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup sugar
½ cup chopped nutmeats

Pour boiling water over bran, prunes and shortening; let stand until most of moisture is taken up. Stir in egg. Sift together flour, baking powder, soda, salt and sugar; mix with nutmeats. Add to first mixture, stirring only until combined. Spread in greased 9½ x 4¼-inch loaf pan. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) about 50 minutes. Yield: 1 loaf.

Pilgrim Mothers Were Cooking With Cranberries

Cranberry dishes originated by the Indians were pemmican and succotash but it was a Pilgrim lady who made the first cranberry sauce. She stewed the berries according to the English way of stewing fruit and started the American tradition of serving cranberry sauce with turkey and chicken.

She also made cranberry juice and here is a recipe which appeared in the "Compleat Cook's Guide" published in 1683.

CRANBERRY JUICE

"Put a teacupful of cranberries into a cup of water and mash them. In the meantime boil 2 quarts and a pint of water with one large spoonful of oatmeal and a very large bit of lemon peel. Then add the cranberries and as much fine Lisbon sugar as shall leave a smart."

Sugar in those days were imported from Lisbon, Portugal, hence the reference to "fine Lisbon sugar."

Lose Weight Wisely

For more pep and fewer pounds, start counting calories after breakfast. The latest advice for reducers is, "Eat a hearty morning meal." Not as hearty as in William the Conqueror's time—when 9 a. m. was the dinner hour—but nevertheless substantial.

Recent nutrition studies have demonstrated that food eaten in the morning is more apt to be used as energy than stored as fat Further, after a good breakfast midmorning snacks (the caloric kind) are more resistible. That hungry feeling seems to be related to the amount of sugar in the blood. After a hearty breakfast the blood sugar level goes up, appetite is checked, and stays checked until lunchtime. By a hearty breakfast, we mean fruit or juice, ready-to-eat cereal with milk, eggs or a breakfast meat or both, toast with butter or margarine and a beverage.

Dr. Frederick J. Stare, Harvard University nutritionist, sums it up this way: "Instead of a starvation breakfast of toast and coffee, start off the day with a good, hearty meal: fruit, cereal, eggs with ham or bacon, two slices of toast and coffee. This keeps the blood sugar up, whereas the skimpy breakfast lets it fall in midmorning, and then you slip out for another sweet roll . . ." So lose weight wisely by eating well in the morning!

Better Breakfast Recipes

Bran Flakes Pan Bread

1½ cups bran flakes
⅔ cup milk
1 egg
¼ cup soft shortening
1 cup sifted flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup sugar

Combine bran flakes, milk, egg and shortening and beat well. Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add to first mixture, stirring only until combined. Spread in greased 8 x 8-inch pan. Bake in moderately hot oven (400° F.) about 30 minutes.

Yield: 9 2½-inch squares.

Honey Currant Upside Down Bran Muffins

2 cups ready-to-eat bran
¾ cup honey
1¼ cups milk
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 cup sifted flour
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup currants

Combine bran, ½ cup of the honey and milk; let stand until most of moisture is taken up. Stir in egg. Sift together flour, soda and salt. Add to first mixture, stirring only until combined. Put 1 teaspoon of remaining honey into bottom of each greased muffin cup; sprinkle with about 1 teaspoon currants. Fill about ⅔ full with batter. Bake in moderately hot oven (400° F.) about 25 minutes. Let stand about 5 minutes before removing from pans. Serve currant side up.

Yield: 12-15 muffins, 2¼-inches in diameter.

WHETHER you're off to work, off to school, or staying home to tackle the housework, you'll do a better job if you give yourself the bonus of having a good breakfast first. What's more, you'll probably get more fun out of it because you'll feel better.

Let's say you're the man of the house. Your breakfast may have something to do with your paycheck. In fact, a study of a group of factory workers paid on a piece basis shows that some workers were much more efficient than others. Their work production was much higher.

Breakfast Habits

A close look at the food habits of the entire group showed that some had the habit of skipping breakfast. And they were the ones who had the low work output records. When they started eating a good breakfast, they were able to turn out more work.

What happens to men who work after skipping or skimping on breakfast happens to working women—at home or in an office, to students, in fact, to everyone. You can't be at peak efficiency and feel at your best during the morning without breakfast.

Easy Menu

Eating a good breakfast isn't a sentence; rather, it's a daily experience to be enjoyed. Gather your family around the breakfast table for an appetizing yet easy-to-fix array such as this: orange juice, ready-to-eat oat cereal, coffeecake squares, butter, milk for children to drink and to top the cereal, coffee for adults.

Such a breakfast gives most people ¼ to ⅓ of their day's food needs, the amount you need at breakfast time to feel better and work better.

Ground Beef And Cabbage

All wrapped up! That's the situation with these ground beef rolls. The ground beef is loosely formed into rolls, then wrapped with cabbage leaves and slowly baked until tender. It's wise to plan on at least two rolls per serving.

Cabbage Meat Rolls

1½ pounds ground beef; 1½ teaspoon salt; ½ teaspoon pepper; ½ cup grated onion; ½ cup rice or barley; 1 loose head of cabbage; 3 cups water.

Combine meat, seasonings, and rice or barley. Shape into 12 loosely formed rolls. Remove core from cabbage and steam until the leaves begin to wilt. Separate cabbage leaves and wrap each meat roll with a leaf. Place in baking pan and cover with water. Cover, and cook in a slow oven (300°F.) for 1½ hours, or until rice or barley is done and meat is cooked. 6 servings.

For The Adventuresome Cook

Adventuresome cooks find great fun in trying new recipes. This Puerto Rican Pot-Roast is sure to capture the imagination for the surface of a heel of round pot-roast (boneless wedge-shape cut from lower part of beef round) is slit at intervals and alternately filled with stuffed olives and salt pork. It's cooked in tomato juice, with a resulting flavorful tomato gravy.

Puerto Rican Pot-Roast

3 pound beef heel of round pot-roast
1 small bottle stuffed olives
1 slice salt pork, cut ¼ inch thick
2 tablespoons lard or bacon drippings
½ cup hot water
1 cup tomato juice
1 medium onion, chopped
Salt and pepper

Cut small slits in both cut surfaces of the meat at 3-inch intervals. Stuff slits alternately with olives and inch strips of salt pork. Brown meat in lard or drippings. Add water, tomato juice and chopped onion. Cover tightly and simmer gently 3 hours or until tender. Thicken liquid and serve the tomato gravy with the meat.

Unsulphured Molasses Cookies Earn Fame

Cookies to enchant by their wondrous goodness of taste...cookies to make when your club or young friends want a baking session... cookies to package as gifts or to sell as a money-making plan... all these charms are rolled out and up in these molasses treats.

Unsulphured molasses gives gingerbread men, gingersnaps, and soft molasses cookies the spicy, fragrant touch that has made them classics for hundreds of years.

Note how inexpensive are the ingredients. The Rolled Molasses Wafers cost about 2 cents a dozen! The Gingersnaps average a bit more than 7 cents a dozen. The Gingerbread Men are about 3 cents per lad.

Count on sweet, unsulphured molasses to provide these cookies with good keeping qualities and flavor excellence!

Coffee Concentrate Ready For Iced Coffee

Some folks like their coffee hot, and some like it cold. Here's a nifty idea for those of the cold coffee school ... it's coffee, spiced and iced! This is a new version of a last summer's favorite ... Instant Iced Coffee Concentrate. This variation is called Spiced Iced Coffee Concentrate.

The trick is to make a concentrate using pure instant coffee. It requires 1 cup of instant coffee (one 2 ounce jar) and takes a minute of your time. Add spices, 1 quart of warm water, stir or shake ...store in your refrigerator until needed. Spiced Coffee Concentrate will stay fresh for weeks in your refrigerator if kept under normal conditions. Whenever thirst needs quenching, or when mealtime rolls around, pour the concentrate over ice cubes, all cold water and serve. Plain or sweetened whipped cream sprinkled with chocolate sprinkles will add a festive note to this beverage with a slightly exotic flavor.

Spiced Coffee Concentrate

(Makes about 20 servings)

To Make Concentrate: (Makes 1 quart) 1 quart warm water; 1 cup Instant Coffee*; ¼ teaspoon ground ground cloves; 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Empty instant coffee into suitable container or jar. Add cloves and cinnamon. Slowly add water. Stir or shake to dissolve coffee and spices. Cover and stir or shake before using.

To Use The Concentrate: For each serving pour 3 tablespoons concentrate over ice cubes into an 8-ounce glass. Add cold water. Sweeten to taste. If desired, serve with plain or whipped. Garnish with nutmeg. * As it comes from jar.

Unsulphured Molasses Cookies Earn Fame

Cookies to enchant by their wondrous goodness of taste...cookies to make when your club or young friends want a baking session... cookies to package as gifts or to sell as a money-making plan... all these charms are rolled out and up in these molasses treats.

Unsulphured molasses gives gingerbread men, gingersnaps, and soft molasses cookies the spicy, fragrant touch that has made them classics for hundreds of years.

Note how inexpensive are the ingredients. The Rolled Molasses Wafers cost about 2 cents a dozen! The Gingersnaps average a bit more than 7 cents a dozen. The Gingerbread Men are about 3 cents per lad.

Count on sweet, unsulphured molasses to provide these cookies with good keeping qualities and flavor excellence!

Old Fashioned Soft Molasses Cookies *Cost Per Dozen .11

1 cup shortening; 1-½ cups unsulphured molasses; ¼ cup sugar; 4 cups sifted all-purpose flour; 1½ teaspoons salt; 2 teaspoons soda; 2+ teaspoons cinnamon; 1½ teaspoons ginger; ½ teaspoon cloves; 1 egg.

Melt shortening in saucepan large enough for mixing cookies. Stir in unsulphured molasses and sugar; cool. Sift together flour, salt, soda, and spices. Mix in small amount of flour; beat in egg. Add remaining flour, blending until smooth. Chill dough about 2 hours. Shape into 1-inch balls. Place on ungreased cookie sheet about 2 inches apart. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 15 minutes. If desired, spread cookies while warm with glaze made with 1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar and 1 tablespoon water. Store in tightly covered container. YIELD: 5 dozen cookies.

Coffee Concentrate Ready For Iced Coffee

Some folks like their coffee hot, and some like it cold. Here's a nifty idea for those of the cold coffee school ... it's coffee, spiced and iced! This is a new version of a last summer's favorite ... Instant Iced Coffee Concentrate. This variation is called Spiced Iced Coffee Concentrate.

The trick is to make a concentrate using pure instant coffee. It requires 1 cup of instant coffee (one 2 ounce jar) and takes a minute of your time. Add spices, 1 quart of warm water, stir or shake ...store in your refrigerator until needed. Spiced Coffee Concentrate will stay fresh for weeks in your refrigerator if kept under normal conditions. Whenever thirst needs quenching, or when mealtime rolls around, pour the concentrate over ice cubes, all cold water and serve. Plain or sweetened whipped cream sprinkled with chocolate sprinkles will add a festive note to this beverage with a slightly exotic flavor.

Spiced Coffee Concentrate

(Makes about 20 servings)

To Make Concentrate: (Makes 1 quart) 1 quart warm water; 1 cup Instant Coffee*; ¼ teaspoon ground ground cloves; 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Empty instant coffee into suitable container or jar. Add cloves and cinnamon. Slowly add water. Stir or shake to dissolve coffee and spices. Cover and stir or shake before using.

To Use The Concentrate: For each serving pour 3 tablespoons concentrate over ice cubes into an 8-ounce glass. Add cold water. Sweeten to taste. If desired, serve with plain or whipped. Garnish with nutmeg. * As it comes from jar.

Quick-Easy Ground Beef Casseroles

One of the grand features of ground beef is that it may be prepared in so many different casserole dishes. Likewise, many of these casseroles are of the quick and easy variety, a wonderful aid to today's busy homemaker.

A ground beef and noodle combination is just such a casserole. Tt prepare this dish simply brown the ground chuck and combine it with cooked noodles. Season with tomato sauce, minced green pepper and heat in a moderate oven for about 45 minutes.

Ground beef and rice are another team. Again brown the beef, then combine with cooked rice, sauteed celery and minced onion. Add a can of undiluted condensed mushroom soup and bake in a moderate oven for about 35 minutes.

For still another dish, brown the ground beef with minced onion. To it add 1 No. 303 can of tomatoes. Season with Worcestershire sauce and salt. Place in a casserole, top with a layer of thinly sliced raw potato, a layer of whole kernel corn and one of lima beans. Sprinkle the top with grated cheddar cheese and bake in a moderate oven for 45 minutes or until vegetables are cooked.

Beef Dinner In A Dish

To please a hungry family what could be better than tender round steak? For a subtle flavor, in this recipe the beef steak is cut into rectangular pieces, then wrapped around carrot sticks and slowly cooked, along with potatoes and onions, in mushroom soup.

Skillet Steak Dinner

1½ pounds beef round steak, cut ½ inch thick; ¼ cup flour; 1 teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon pepper; ¼ cup lard or drippings; 4 or 5 small carrots, cut in strips; 4 peeled potatoes; 4 small onions; 1 can mushroom soup.

Cut steak into pieces about 3 x 5 inches. Combine flour, salt and pepper. Dredge meat with seasoned flour. Place 3 or 4 carrot sticks on each piece of steak. Wrap steak around carrots and fasten with a wooden pick. Brown rolls slowly on all sides in lard or drippings. Add potatoes and onions to steak and pour mushroom soup over all. Cover closely and simmer in a slow oven (300°F.) or on top of range 1½ to 2 hours, or until meat is tender and vegetables are done. 4 servings.

Peas Go With Salmon In Checkerboard Meal

COLORFUL casserole cookery is at its best in combinations like Creamed Peas and Salmon with Cornbread Checkerboard. Canned peas and canned salmon help make this a 30-minute quickie to prepare.

Uncommon foods are common on the tables of America today because of the miracle of the tin can. Peas, for example, were once a luxury of three or four weeks in early summer; in cans they are ready to eat all year long. Salmon in fresh form is found only in coastal waters and goes to market in limited areas only; in cans, everyone can enjoy its ocean tang. Together these ready-to-eat canned foods make a delicious combination served with cornbread shortcake squares.

SALMON AND PEA CHECKERBOARD CASSEROLE

Cornmeal Cheese Pastry

½ cup sifted all purpose flour
½ cup yellow cornmeal
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ cup shortening
½ cup grated American cheese
3 tablespoons milk

Sift together flour, cornmeal, salt and baking powder. Cut in shortening and cheese. Stir in milk. Pat or roll on lightly floured board or between two sheets waxed paper into an oblong 8 inches long and 4 inches wide; cut into 8 squares. Bake in a hot oven (425° F.) 15 minutes.

Salmon and Peas

1 1-pound can peas
1 1-pound can salmon
Evaporated milk
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon Tabasco

Drain peas and salmon; flake salmon. Add enough milk to salmon and pea liquid to make 2 cups; reserve. Melt butter. Blend in flour, salt, mustard and Tabasco; stir to a smooth paste. Add reserved liquid and cook stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Add peas and salmon. Turn into a 10x6x2-inch casserole. Place cornmeal squares checkerboard fashion on top of casserole. YIELD: 6 servings.

Vary Each Pot Roast Serving

When mealtime calls for a flavorful, homey dish, a beef pot-roast is an unanimous answer. With abundant supplies of beef on the market, pot - roasts are an especially wise purchase today.

Just because pot-roasts are classed in one general group is no reason why they must all be prepared alike. First of all there is a variety of cuts to use—beef arm or blade pot-roasts or rump cuts are excellent.

The cooking method used for pot-roasts—known as braising — also offers opportunity for variation because it calls for liquid and each liquid adds its own particular flavor to the meat. It might be tomatoes, tomato juice or other vegetable juice, milk, sour cream, cream, diluted vinegar or meat stock.

Taking a cue from Swiss steak, you might have a Swiss pot-roast for a variation. To prepare this dish, dredge the meat with seasoned flour. Then brown well on both sides in lard or drippings, using a heavy utensil such as a Dutch oven or a heavy frying-pan with a cover. Slice 2 or 3 medium onions and place slices on meat. Then add liquid, tomato juice or canned tomatoes. For a 3 to 4-pound pot-roast 1½ to 2 cups of tomatoes will be sufficent.

Then cover the utensil closely and let the pot-roast cook clowly until tender, about 3 or 4 hours. When pot-roast is done, remove from pan and thicken the liquid for gravy.

One of the grand features of ground beef is that it may be prepared in so many different casserole dishes. Likewise, many of these casseroles are of the quick and easy variety, a wonderful aid to today's busy homemaker.

A ground beef and noodle combination is just such a casserole. Tt prepare this dish simply brown the ground chuck and combine it with cooked noodles. Season with tomato sauce, minced green pepper and heat in a moderate oven for about 45 minutes.

Ground beef and rice are another team. Again brown the beef, then combine with cooked rice, sauteed celery and minced onion. Add a can of undiluted condensed mushroom soup and bake in a moderate oven for about 35 minutes.

For still another dish, brown the ground beef with minced onion. To it add 1 No. 303 can of tomatoes. Season with Worcestershire sauce and salt. Place in a casserole, top with a layer of thinly sliced raw potato, a layer of whole kernel corn and one of lima beans. Sprinkle the top with grated cheddar cheese and bake in a moderate oven for 45 minutes or until vegetables are cooked.

Beef Dinner In A Dish

To please a hungry family what could be better than tender round steak? For a subtle flavor, in this recipe the beef steak is cut into rectangular pieces, then wrapped around carrot sticks and slowly cooked, along with potatoes and onions, in mushroom soup.

Skillet Steak Dinner

1½ pounds beef round steak, cut ½ inch thick; ¼ cup flour; 1 teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon pepper; ¼ cup lard or drippings; 4 or 5 small carrots, cut in strips; 4 peeled potatoes; 4 small onions; 1 can mushroom soup.

Cut steak into pieces about 3 x 5 inches. Combine flour, salt and pepper. Dredge meat with seasoned flour. Place 3 or 4 carrot sticks on each piece of steak. Wrap steak around carrots and fasten with a wooden pick. Brown rolls slowly on all sides in lard or drippings. Add potatoes and onions to steak and pour mushroom soup over all. Cover closely and simmer in a slow oven (300°F.) or on top of range 1½ to 2 hours, or until meat is tender and vegetables are done. 4 servings.

Peas Go With Salmon In Checkerboard Meal

COLORFUL casserole cookery is at its best in combinations like Creamed Peas and Salmon with Cornbread Checkerboard. Canned peas and canned salmon help make this a 30-minute quickie to prepare.

Uncommon foods are common on the tables of America today because of the miracle of the tin can. Peas, for example, were once a luxury of three or four weeks in early summer; in cans they are ready to eat all year long. Salmon in fresh form is found only in coastal waters and goes to market in limited areas only; in cans, everyone can enjoy its ocean tang. Together these ready-to-eat canned foods make a delicious combination served with cornbread shortcake squares.

SALMON AND PEA CHECKERBOARD CASSEROLE

Cornmeal Cheese Pastry

½ cup sifted all purpose flour
½ cup yellow cornmeal
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ cup shortening
½ cup grated American cheese
3 tablespoons milk

Sift together flour, cornmeal, salt and baking powder. Cut in shortening and cheese. Stir in milk. Pat or roll on lightly floured board or between two sheets waxed paper into an oblong 8 inches long and 4 inches wide; cut into 8 squares. Bake in a hot oven (425° F.) 15 minutes.

Salmon and Peas

1 1-pound can peas
1 1-pound can salmon
Evaporated milk
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon Tabasco

Drain peas and salmon; flake salmon. Add enough milk to salmon and pea liquid to make 2 cups; reserve. Melt butter. Blend in flour, salt, mustard and Tabasco; stir to a smooth paste. Add reserved liquid and cook stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Add peas and salmon. Turn into a 10x6x2-inch casserole. Place cornmeal squares checkerboard fashion on top of casserole. YIELD: 6 servings.

Vary Each Pot Roast Serving

When mealtime calls for a flavorful, homey dish, a beef pot-roast is an unanimous answer. With abundant supplies of beef on the market, pot - roasts are an especially wise purchase today.

Just because pot-roasts are classed in one general group is no reason why they must all be prepared alike. First of all there is a variety of cuts to use—beef arm or blade pot-roasts or rump cuts are excellent.

The cooking method used for pot-roasts—known as braising — also offers opportunity for variation because it calls for liquid and each liquid adds its own particular flavor to the meat. It might be tomatoes, tomato juice or other vegetable juice, milk, sour cream, cream, diluted vinegar or meat stock.

Taking a cue from Swiss steak, you might have a Swiss pot-roast for a variation. To prepare this dish, dredge the meat with seasoned flour. Then brown well on both sides in lard or drippings, using a heavy utensil such as a Dutch oven or a heavy frying-pan with a cover. Slice 2 or 3 medium onions and place slices on meat. Then add liquid, tomato juice or canned tomatoes. For a 3 to 4-pound pot-roast 1½ to 2 cups of tomatoes will be sufficent.

Then cover the utensil closely and let the pot-roast cook clowly until tender, about 3 or 4 hours. When pot-roast is done, remove from pan and thicken the liquid for gravy.

3. Cranberries are grown in all of the following states except one. Which is it? Massachusetts . . . New Jersey . . . North Dakota . . . Wisconsin . . . Washington . . . Oregon . . .

4. Cranberry growers don't like birds, because they eat the berries. True .... False.

5. If a cranberry will bounce, it is (a) firm and sound . . . (b) worthless because it is hollow . . .

6. Dusting cranberry bogs by helicopter is popular because it means larger crops. True .. False.

7. Cranberries are harvested by a machine resembling a cement mixer. True .... False.

8. Which of the following sports is practiced on cranberry bogs in the winter? Fishing . . . Duck Hunting . . . Skating . . .

9. The Mashpee Indians built the first commercial cranberry bog. True .... False.

10. Cape Cod sailing ships in the old days carried cranberries around the world. True .... False.

Calves lose their teeth like humans do and develop another set when they are about a year and a half old.

Answers To Cranberry Quiz

1. False. Cranberries grow on thick, low-lying vines . . . and a cranberry "bog" isn't wet! It's as dry as your front lawn. Apparently the word "bog" comes from the fact that cranberry bogs are built on peat swamps which have been cleared and drained.

2. True. Cranberries were growing wild along the Massachusetts shore when the Pilgrims landed, and the Indians showed them how to use Nature's bountiful gift.

3. North Dakota. The other five states produce cranberries, although about 60% of the nation's crop still comes from Plymouth and Barnstable counties in Massachusetts.

4. False. Birds (whose tastes are sometimes peculiar) prefer insects to cranberries. Growers invite birds by hospitably placing birdhouses near their bogs.

5. (a) Firm and sound. Every cranberry must pass a rigid bounce test. If it can't leap successfully over one of four slanted boards — it's out.

6. True. When dusting by ground machines, growers must walk over the bog, crushing vines and berries, whereas a helicopter touches nary a leaf. This can mean a crop increase of as much as 10%.

7. True. Cranberry harvesting is still largely unmechanized. Rows of gaily dressed pickers move through the bog on their knees, combing the berries off the vines with a rocking motion of the traditional tooth-edged wooden cranberry scoop. (Decorators consider cranberry scoops a rare prize. They make unusual magazine racks or flower and plant holders).

8. Ice Skating. Bogs are flooded during the winter to protect the vines from cold, drying winds, and the skating is ideal since solid ground lies only six or seven inches below the surface. You won't catch any fish!

9. False. The first commercial bog, now over 100 years old, was built by Henry Hall at Dennis on Cape Cod and still produces a crop of cranberries every year. Properly cared for, a cranberry bog will bear indefinitely.

10. True. Trading vessels carried barrels of cranberries in water because they knew that something in the cranberries protected the crew against scurvy. We call it Vitamin C. Cranberries are rich in minerals, too. They have a lot to offer besides their good looks!

Marciano Scores TKO Over LaStarza In Eleventh Round

Referee Halts Slaughter At Polo Grounds

Challenger Is Given Beating In Last Five Rounds; 40,000 Attend

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP)—Rocky Marciano, crude and awkward in the early rounds, wore down Roland LaStarza with raw animal power to stop the game, blood-spattered challenger from the Bronx on a technical knockout in 1:31 of the 11th round tonight in the second defense of his world heavyweight championship.

Sliced around both eyes and bleeding from a cut on the bridge of his nose, LaStarza took a tremendous beating in the last five rounds before Referee Ruby Goldstein wisely stopped the slaughter.

A stunning right-left-right barrage to the head earlier in the 11th round knocked LaStarza through the ropes and onto the ring apron. The determined ex-City College student gamely pulled himself up at about the five-count to climb back through the ropes as the referee's count hit nine.

Groggy and obviously hurt after putting up a savage battle, LaStarza reeled into a neutral corner under another furious barrage from the Brockton Blockbuster, to bring Goldstein to the rescue.

But this was no cakewalk for the 29-year-old champ. While he was able to stave off the Rock's heavy guns, Roland gave a splendid account of himself.

At times, LaStarza made the champ look like an amateur, flailing and floudering in his wild misses. Even in the 10th round, Marciano slipped down in Roland's own corner. It was no knockdown, merely a miss and slip.

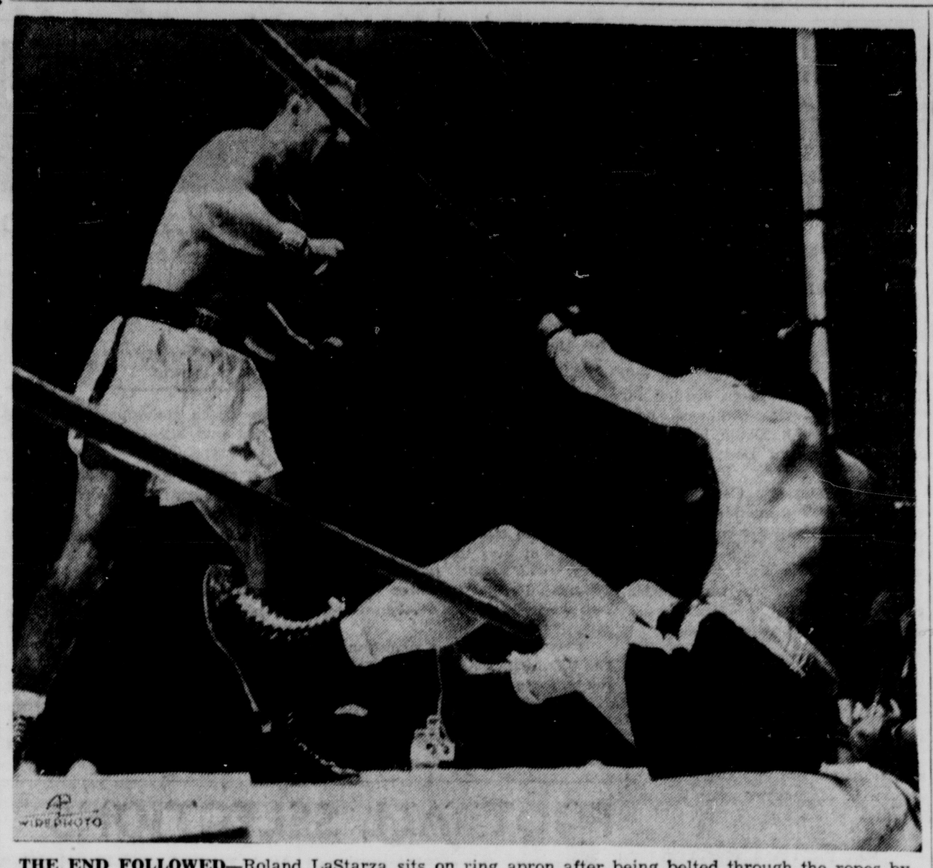
Goldstein had to warn Marciano repeatedly for infractions of the rules, taking away the sixth round for a low blow. He drew other warnings for a butt in the second, when LaStarza's right eye was cut, hitting on the break in the third and again in the seventh for a low left that landed near the borderline.

The 26-year old LaStarza shook off stunning punishment before he finally was forced to surrender with banners flying.

The officials had Marciano leading at the finish. Judge Harold Barnes saw it 5-5 at the end of 10. But he had Rocky in front on points 10-5.

Judge Arthur Susskind had Marciano out front 6-4, and referee Goldstein saw the champ leading 7-3. One of the rounds he left, of course, was the sixth on a low blow.

The big crowd of about 40,000 that turned out on a clear, cool night at the Polo Grounds booed Rocky for his infractions. But they stayed to cheer him at the end as his booming power finally swung the issue.



THE END FOLLOWED—Roland LaStarza sits on ring apron after being belted through the ropes by champion Rocky Marciano in the eleventh round of heavyweight title fight last night at the Polo Grounds, New York City. Shortly after, Referee Ruby Goldstein stopped the fight on a technical K. O. It marked the second successful defense of his title by the Brockton Blockbuster.

PROMISING FROSH—Al Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Wilson, Bedford Road, makes his debut on the Allegheny College football team this season as one of the most promising of the pre-season crop of freshmen at Meadville, Pa. Wilson, who lettered last season for Bullis Prep, of Washington, D. C., received All-City honorable mention when he played at Fort Hill High School several years ago. The 200-pound freshman plays equally well at both tackle and guard and is expected to give the Gators added strength where graduation day took its biggest toll. Wilson is a pre-medical student at Allegheny College.

Franklin Reports Sunday Game Site Is Undetermined

FRANKLIN, W. Va., Sept. 24—Site of the second game of the series for the playoff trophy in the South Branch Valley Baseball League had not been determined late this afternoon, according to J. G. Ashenfelter, league president.

At the first game last Sunday, which Franklin won, 9-6, Pat Patterson, manager of the Romney Rockets, said he was not sure the Romney field would be available for Sunday's game because football bleachers had been erected for high school games. Patterson said he would call Leo Skidmore, Franklin manager, not later than Wednesday regarding the location of the second game, which would be a home contest for the Rockets.

Romney has failed to notify Franklin where the game is to be played. Skidmore announced that the Franklin team will appear on Romney Sunday for the game and will expect it to be played. The Romney management is responsible for making all arrangements for this contest.

Mrs. Bibby Is Eliminated By Mrs. Maurice Glick, 5-4

Mary Downey Is Other State Golf Finalist

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP) — Mrs. Maurice Glick and Mary Ann Downey will continue their rivalry in the finals of the Maryland State Women's Golf Championship tomorrow morning in an 18-hole match at Columbia Country Club.

The Baltimore golfers won their semifinal matches by the same 5 and 4 margins today. Mrs. Glick defeated Mrs. William Bibby of Cumberland Country Club and Miss Downey won over Mrs. Martin Wasserkrug of Woodholme, which also is the home club of Mrs. Glick.

Mrs. Glick defeated Miss Downey, 2 up, in the title match here last year for her seventh title. Miss Downey interrupted the streak in 1949 final, winning 1 up.

Mrs. Glick was out in 39 against Mrs. Bibby today and was 2 up as Mrs. Bibby, the tournament medalist, was out in 41. Mrs. Glick came back in 4-4-5-5-4 and the match ended on the 14th green.

Miss Downey had the best 9-hole round of the tournament to date, a 36, against Mrs. Wasserkrug but the Baltimore Country Club player slipped on the back nine with 5-5-6-3-5 and had par in for a 75 when the match was over.

Mrs. Glick and Miss Downey are even in their state final matches with Miss Downey winning in '49 and Mrs. Glick last year.

Keyser And LaSalle High Gridders Will Clash Here Tonight

Tornado Tests Explorers In 18th Contest

Ridgeley Plays Host To Berkeley Springs; PVC Has Two Games

Rivals on the gridiron since 1930, LaSalle and Keyser will clash tonight in their 18th contest at the local stadium at 8 o'clock.

It will be the third start for each team. Coach Fred "Tack" Clark's Golden Tornado has defeated Charlestown 27-13 and Beall 14-0 while the Explorers lost to Fort Hill, 7-0, and downed Petersburg 27-0.

In 17 previous meetings LaSalle holds a 9-7 edge in victories. One of the contests ended in a tie.

Coach Clark last night reported that four of his regulars, namely, Dick Burns, end; Gary Athey, guard; Dave Mason, center, and Ernie Courrier, fullback, may miss tonight's contest on account of illness and injuries. There is a possibility that one or two of the players will see limited action.

Probable starting lineups:

Berkeley At Ridgeley

Coach Chester Payne's Ridgeley High Blackhawks will be shooting for their third victory today when they do battle with Berkeley Springs High School on the Ridgeley High Field at 2:30 o'clock.

The Hawks have defeated the Alumni, 13-6, and Circleville, 7-0, but the opposition should be much stiffer in today's contest. Berkeley Springs handed Ridgeley a 45-0 setback last year.

Two Potomac Valley Conference games are on tap for today. Jesse Riggleman's Petersburg Vikings are scheduled to meet Moorefield at Petersburg while Franklin will engage the Pioneers of Coach Richard "Dick" McElwee at Romney.

Romney Is Favorite

Franklin, victorious over Staunton and Hot Springs, will be making its P.V.C. debut today as will Romney which defeated two non-conference members, Berkeley Springs and Charles Town by scores of 22-6 and 41-12. Romney has scored a long string of wins over Franklin and is conceded the edge in today's game.

Petersburg won its lone start in the conference, beating Thomas, 13-7 while Moorefield also defeated the Tucker Countians by the score of 25-7. The Vikings held the Yellow Jackets to a 7-7 deadlock last year.

Parsons High's Panthers will invade Kingwood to play the Stags of Kingwood High today. The Tucker countians will be striving for their first win after having lost to Shinnston and Fort Hill.

In night games, Westminster is at Hagerstown, Martinsburg at Waynesboro (Pa.) and Bedford at Shade Township.

Reynolds May Pitch Opener For Yankees

Lopat May Oppose Dodgers In Second

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP) — It now looks like Allie Reynolds will hurl the World Series opener for the New York Yankees next Wednesday with Eddie Lopat facing the Brooklyn Dodgers in the second game.

Yankee Manager Casey Stengel refused to be pinned down today on his first game starter except to say that Reynolds and Lopat would pitch the first two games. He did not say in what order, though.

Raschi Or Ford In 3rd

Stengel still had not decided on his third game pitcher but indicated the choice lies between righthander Vic Raschi and southpaw Eddie Ford.

Either Raschi or Ford will work against the Boston Red Sox on Saturday. Whichever gets the nod for that game most likely will be the No. 3 starter. The other probably will pitch the fourth game.

Stengel, gunning for his fifth consecutive world title, expressed his satisfaction with the pitching of both Reynolds and Lopat in their last outings. Each worked seven innings and was credited with a victory over the Philadelphia Athletics.

"Reynolds never looked better," enthused Stengel. "As for Lopat, he, too, showed he was ready for Brooklyn. Reynolds was more spectacular but Lopat wasn't pressing himself. He was just breezing."

Sain Is Hop-Up Man

A note of interest was Stengel's use of Johnny Sain, the veteran righthander, as hop-up man in a majority of recent games.

Asked if there was any significance, Casey smiled and said:

"I want John to have his arm oiled up. There may be things for him to do against Brooklyn."

Parker And Slade To Fight Tonight

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP)—It's almost a secret in the big town but James J. Parker, Toronto heavyweight, and Jimmy Slade, New York light heavyweight contender, are going to meet in a telecast ten rounder at St. Nicholas Arena tomorrow night.

Tonight's Rocky Marciano-Roland La Starza heavyweight title bout has completely blanketed out news of any other fisticuffing activity around here.

Slade got the bout the other day when Danny Nardico, Parker's original opponent, was forced out because of illness. Jimmy is the fifth ranking light heavyweight and a legitimate 175-pounder. He will spot the 6-3 Parker about 25 pounds when they tangle at 9 p. m. EST.

The bout will be broadcast (ABC) and telecast (NBC) coast to coast.

Frisco Owner Sells Seals To League

SAN FRANCISC, Sept. 24 (AP)—Paul I. Fagan, millionaire owner of the San Francisco baseball club, announced today he had sold the franchise and players to the Pacific Coast League. The sale terms were not disclosed.

The league also took a five-star lease on Seals Stadium.

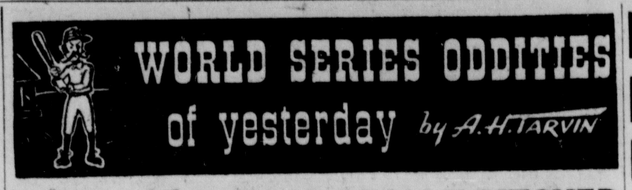
The new agreement will guarantee baseball for San Francisco next year.



WHEN ALEXANDER REALLY PITCHED

WHEN St. Louis won the National league pennant in 1926, first the town experienced since 1888, the Mound City went wild.

And the interest kept mounting for the Cardinal-Yankee series of '26 was a thrilling affair.

Jesse Haines was on the mound for St. Louis, with Waite Hoyt opposing. Scene was New York.

In the seventh frame, the aging Haines was visibly tiring, and the 39-year-old Grover Cleveland Alexander, who had pitched the second game and also the sixth, winning both, was sent in to relieve Haines, despite the fact that he had worked the day before and had not warmed up.

It was an ominous situation for the Cardinals when Alexander took his place on the mound.

Two Yankees had been retired, but the bases were full, and the slugful "Poosh 'Em Up" Tony Lazzeri was at bat.

The world championship hinged on just one hit—any kind of hit. Or a walk.

But the "cold" Alexander was utterly unperturbed.

He pitched only four balls to Tony, and three of them were strikes.

During the remaining two innings, not a Yankee reached first, excepting Babe Ruth, who was passed for the fourth time in that game.

It was a 3-2 triumph for St. Louis and if Grover Cleveland Alexander had not long before taken his place among the diamond immortals, he took it in this game—and how!

Keyser And LaSalle High Gridders Will Clash Here Tonight

Tornado Tests Explorers In 18th Contest

Ridgeley Plays Host To Berkeley Springs; PVC Has Two Games

Rivals on the gridiron since 1930, LaSalle and Keyser will clash tonight in their 18th contest at the local stadium at 8 o'clock.

It will be the third start for each team. Coach Fred "Tack" Clark's Golden Tornado has defeated Charlestown 27-13 and Beall 14-0 while the Explorers lost to Fort Hill, 7-0, and downed Petersburg 27-0.

The teams appear evenly matched and tonight's game is expected to be closely contested.

In 17 previous meetings LaSalle holds a 9-7 edge in victories. One of the contests ended in a tie.

Coach Clark last night reported that four of his regulars, namely, Dick Burns, end; Gary Athey, guard; Dave Mason, center, and Ernie Courrier, fullback, may miss tonight's contest on account of illness and injuries. There is a possibility that one or two of the players will see limited action.

Probable starting lineups:

Pos.	Keyser	LaSalle
LE	Snyder (40)	Wilt (20)

Berkeley At Ridgeley

Coach Chester Payne's Ridgeley High Blackhawks will be shooting for their third victory today when they do battle with Berkeley Springs High School on the Ridgeley High Field at 2:30 o'clock.

The Hawks have defeated the Alumni, 13-6, and Circleville, 7-0, but the opposition should be much stiffer in today's contest. Berkeley Springs handed Ridgeley a 45-0 setback last year.

Two Potomac Valley Conference games are on tap for today. Jesse Riggleman's Petersburg Vikings are scheduled to meet Moorefield at Petersburg while Franklin will engage the Pioneers of Coach Richard "Dick" McElwee at Romney.

Romney Is Favorite

Franklin, victorious over Staunton and Hot Springs, will be making its P.V.C. debut today as will Romney which defeated two non-conference members, Berkeley Springs and Charles Town by scores of 22-6 and 41-12. Romney has scored a long string of wins over Franklin and is conceded the edge in today's game.

Petersburg won its lone start in the conference, beating Thomas, 13-7 while Moorefield also defeated the Tucker Countians by the score of 25-7. The Vikings held the Yellow Jackets to a 7-7 deadlock last year.

Parsons High's Panthers will invade Kingwood to play the Stags of Kingwood High today. The Tucker countians will be striving for their first win after having lost to Shinnston and Fort Hill.

In night games, Westminster is at Hagerstown, Martinsburg at Waynesboro (Pa.) and Bedford at Shade Township.

Reynolds May Pitch Opener For Yankees

Lopat May Oppose Dodgers In Second

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP) — It now looks like Allie Reynolds will hurl the World Series opener for the New York Yankees next Wednesday with Eddie Lopat facing the Brooklyn Dodgers in the second game.

Yankee Manager Casey Stengel refused to be pinned down today on his first game starter except to say that Reynolds and Lopat would pitch the first two games. He did not say in what order, though.

Raschi Or Ford In 3rd

Stengel still had not decided on his third game pitcher but indicated the choice lies between right-hander Vic Raschi and southpaw Eddie Ford.

Either Raschi or Ford will work against the Boston Red Sox on Saturday. Whichever gets the nod for that game most likely will be the No. 3 starter. The other probably will pitch the fourth game.

Stengel, gunning for his fifth consecutive world title, expressed his satisfaction with the pitching of both Reynolds and Lopat in their last outings. Each worked seven innings and was credited with a victory over the Philadelphia Athletics.

"Reynolds never looked better," enthused Stengel. "As for Lopat, he, too, showed he was ready for Brooklyn. Reynolds was more spectacular but Lopat wasn't pressing himself. He was just breezing."

Sain Is Hop-Up Man

A note of interest was Stengel's use of Johnny Sain, the veteran righthander, as hop-up man in a majority of recent games.

Asked if there was any significance, Casey smiled and said:

"I want John to have his arm oiled up. There may be things for him to do against Brooklyn."

Parker And Slade To Fight Tonight

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP)—It's almost a secret in the big town but James J. Parker, Toronto heavyweight, and Jimmy Slade, New York light heavyweight contender, are going to meet in a telecast ten rounder at St. Nicholas Arena tomorrow night.

Tonight's Rocky Marciano, Roland La Starza heavyweight title bout has completely blanketed out news of any other fisticuffing activity around here.

Slade got the bout the other day when Danny Nardico, Parker's original opponent, was forced out because of illness. Jimmy is the fifth ranking light heavyweight and a legitimate 175-pounder. He will spot the 6-3 Parker about 25 pounds when they tangle at 9 p. m. EST.

The bout will be broadcast (ABC) and telecast (NBC) coast to coast.

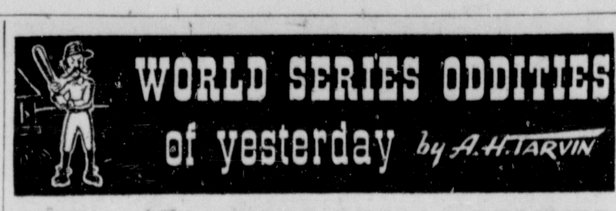
Frisco Owner Sells Seals To League

SAN FRANCISC, Sept. 24 (AP—Paul I. Fagan, millionaire owner of the San Francisco baseball club, announced today he had sold the franchise and players to the Pacific Coast League. The sale terms were not disclosed.

The league also took a five-star lease on Seals Stadium.

The league will back the club until a purchaser can be found.

The new agreement will guarantee baseball for San Francisco next year.



WHEN ALEXANDER REALLY PITCHED

WHEN St. Louis won the National league pennant in 1926, first the town experienced since 1888, the Mound City went wild.

And the interest kept mounting for the Cardinal-Yankee series of '26 was a thrilling affair.

The big thrill came in the seventh and final game.

Jesse Haines was on the mound for St. Louis, with Waite Hoyt opposing. Scene was New York.

In the seventh frame, the aging Haines was visibly tiring, and the 39-year-old Grover Cleveland Alexander, who had pitched the second game and also the sixth, winning both, was sent in to relieve Haines, despite the fact that he had worked the day before and had not warmed up.

It was an ominous situation for the Cardinals when Alexander took his place on the mound.

Two Yankees had been retired, but the bases were full, and the slugful "Poosh 'Em Up" Tony Lazzeri was at bat.

The world championship hinged on just one hit—any kind of hit. Or a walk.

But the "cold" Alexander was utterly unperturbed.

He pitched only four balls to Tony, and three of them were strikes.

During the remaining two innings, not a Yankee reached first, excepting Babe Ruth, who was passed for the fourth time in that game.

It was a 3-2 triumph for St. Louis and if Grover Cleveland Alexander had not long before taken his place among the diamond immortals, he took it in this game—and how!

Woman To Be Tried On Information In Shooting

Miss Teresa Hamburg, 22, of the 1100 block of Virginia Avenue, has waived indictment by the grand jury and will be taken into Circuit Court next week on criminal information in connection with a charge of intent to kill a local businessman.

William H. Geppert, attorney for Miss Hamburg, said he will file a petition to try the case on criminal information. The case probably will not be heard until later next week as the judges are scheduled to open the criminal term of Garrett County Circuit Court on Monday.

Miss Hamburg has signed a statement in connection with the case, according to State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher. He said she allegedly shot at E. J. Bognar on the evening of September 11 at the latter's home where she is a domestic.

As related by the state's attorney, Miss Hamburg had been employed in the Bognar residence for the past six years. She was friendly with Mrs. Bognar, but showed a dislike for Bognar, he added. About a week prior to the shooting, Bognar discharged Miss Hamburg by letter and then left on a business trip. The Hamburg woman disregarded the letter and continued on at the home in her usual routine, Fletcher said.

Bognar returned home on September 11 about 8:30 p. m. and when he drove his car to the garage at the rear of his residence at 812 Camden Avenue the young woman saw him. Fletcher said that in her anger at the man she went to the basement and obtained a .32 caliber pistol she had hidden.

As Bognar entered the home Miss Hamburg allegedly shot at him as he turned on the light, Fletcher said. The missile missed Bognar and he fled afoot. Miss Hamburg was taken into custody a few hours later. Last week she was released under $1,500 bond in a preliminary hearing in Trial Magistrates' Court.

Escapee From Prison Is Back In Custody

A 28-year-old convicted burglar who fled September 8 from a West Virginia prison road gang surrendered to Baltimore police and was returned to the penitentiary at Moundsville.

The fugitive, Louis James Rizer, of Baltimore, escaped at Evans in Jackson County where he was serving a one-to-ten-year sentence for breaking into and stealing a quantity of whisky from the Ridgeley store of the Liquor Control Commission.

After arriving in Baltimore, he was persuaded by his wife and mother to give himself up and serve the sentence imposed in Mineral County Circuit Court at Keyser.

Rizer reported to Baltimore authorities who held him for West Virginia police.

Conover Makes Record Album

About 10 years ago Willis Conover was a local radio announcer.

For the past seven years he had been a disc jockey and bandleader in Washington.

On October 1 he'll reach a new milestone in his career when Brunswick Records (a subsidiary of Decca) will bring out Volume 1 of "Willis Conover's House of Sounds," a long-playing album of records featuring Conover and his orchestra.

Volume I of the Conover album features 12 musical selections, seven of which are original compositions. The originals are "Playground," "Pillbox," "Willis," "Light Green," "Sheriff Crane of Jackpot County," "One for Kenny" and "The Tiger." Other numbers include "Flamingo," "Moonlight in Vermont" and "I've Got You Under My Skin," "The Song Is You" and a medley of popular tunes.

In describing the music of Volume I, Conover says it is a combination of Woody Herman, Stan Kenton and some original ideas.

The Conover group is a 15-piece band that has been featured for the past two years in jazz concerts in the Washington area as well as numerous theaters and night clubs. The recordings are a climax to seven years of Conover effort to popularize modern music.

Conover has had some earlier recognition. When the United States Treasury Department decided to incorporate jazz greats in its transcribed "Guest Star" radio series, Conover was hired as narrator. Two shows, featuring Pianist Art Tatum and Duke Ellington, were recorded for use on 2,800 radio stations throughout the nation.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 24 (INS) — There's no doubt that Donald O'Connor was really disappointed at not doing "White Christmas." Well, now he can cheer up because he and Ethel Merman will be together again on the 20th Century-Fox lot in "No Business Like Show Business," and my dear friends, that isn't all!

A 14-karat gold cast has been lined up with Marilyn Monroe, Mitzie Gaynor, Dan Dailey and, of course, Johnnie Ray.

Irving Berlin, who finishes his chores on "White Christmas" in a few days, moves right to 20th to start work on "No Business Like Show Business." He had already had a meeting with Producer Sol Siegel and Director Walter Lang and the picture goes in early February.

Dinah Shore's favorite man around the house — and it could be nobody but George Montgomery — has been chosen as the star of "Bat Masterson, Badman," which Sam Katzman puts into work early in 1954.

Of course, as I remember Bat he wasn't nearly as handsome as George, but I met up with him in his late years and he might have been very good looking when he was a young sheriff, the first in Dodge City.

George is doing all right at Columbia. Sam Katzman has signed him for "Indian Scout," too, and, of course, both of these will be in Technicolor with all the trimmings.

The big romance between Maureen O'Hara and the wealthy Mexican is all over. Maureen is seen everywhere with her brother and she's made up her mind to stay in Europe long enough to forget.

She leaves any day now for Ireland with her daughter, and after she deposits Bronwyn with her family there she'll go to Spain to make "Fire Over Africa," which, as I told you some time ago, she's doing with MacDonald Carey.

One bone of contention it's said in the Eleanor Parker-Bert Friedlob muddled marital troubles is Eleanor's desire that the three minor children not be taken away from the house. She permits Bert to see them whenever he pleases, but she does not want him to take them off the premises.

I was frankly shocked when Bert took this matter to the child conciliation court without telling Eleanor, and asked them to effect a reconciliation. Everytime I saw Bert he insisted there was no chance of them getting back together.

I have a feeling that their attorneys, Greg Bautzer and Judge Lester Roth, will work out some kind of arrangement.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Although Myrna Loy's aunt, Mrs Lou Wilder, is out of danger, Myrna has moved into her old home at the beach and will remain with her for some time. She's reading scripts and may do a movie.

Barbara Stanwyck and Gilbert Roland were certainly a new twosome at the opening of "The Robe." Gilbert is among the first ten in popularity in Mexico.

Linda Darnell's wealthy boy friend, Philip Liebmann, has visited her in Rome. Hear tell Linda's director, Guiseppe Amato, wasn't too happy about it.

Another Will Rogers biography is on the way. This one, by Homer Croy, "Our Own Will Rogers," is due on the bookstands early next month.

Ann Harding's birthday present from Werner Jenssen, her husband, was a magnificent ranch mink coat specially designed by Al Teitelbaum. It's nice to hear of such a happy marriage.

Broderick Crawford and his Kay are sending postcards to all their pals in Hollywood. They're like regular honeymooners and will visit Italy, Spain and Portugal after Brod finishes "Night People" in Munich.

Dorothy Lamour opens October 7 in Denver with her own stage revue including the South Sea Islanders. Then Dottie tells me she will do 50 one night stands, so it looks like we won't see her for some time.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

odd appetite to be toastmaster at banquets and things and has somehow rounded up the title of Toastmaster General of the United States, conceivably the least coveted title in our history. He also likes to deliver eulogies at funerals and has buried some very eminent men. In fact, if you haven't got Jessel at your funeral, you just aren't anybody much and your relatives ought to be properly ashamed.

In recognition of his toastmaster activities ABC has framed him a show set up like a banquet and, I'm afraid, resembling its more dismal qualities. First a stuffed shirt introduces the speaker of the evening—Mr. Jessel, naturally. Mr. Jessel tells stories. Jessel knows some very funny ones but the night I watched he wasn't at his best.

Then comes the entertainment. Besides "Romeo and Juliet" this memorable evening, Miss O'Brien also recited the last part of the Gettysburg Address, thus completing the strangest parlay in show business history. (For years to come people are going to boast that they witnessed Margaret O'Brien playing Lincoln and Juliet on the same night and no one will believe them).

Mr. Fisher sang, which wasn't hard to take, and then a double-talk artist performed, which was. One of the highlights of the evening was Mr. Jessel delivering his own commercials.

"I wonder how much thought you people have given to your watchbands lately," he said at one point.

Why, Mr. Jessel! I've thought of nothing else for weeks.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

The quality of restraint is an important test of any woman's charm. Whether a matter of color, of jewelry, of accessories, of gifts, of adjectives, of home decor or of the number of courses served at a party dinner, a woman's restraint is a measure of her excellence. Even kindness can be overdone.

We admire restraint, for one thing, because of its genuineness. Intuitively we are aware that the person who exercises restraint has a well of reserve, a strength and an ability beyond the moment.

Distrust Of Show

Where restraint is not present, there is a feeling that the person is striving too hard, that making an impression is more important than being real. We are a little embarrassed by the show that is being put on and we wish that the person would relax a bit, rely on her own sense of relative values and not be so anxious over the opinions of others. Experience has shown us that wherever there is a false front there is apt to be little else.

Restraint is particularly important to keep in mind when you are invited to some occasion and want to make the best impression. In "dressing up for the party" there is a danger of over-dressing and thereby missing your mark by the widest margin. When you want to look lovely, chic and as though you were accustomed to such affairs, be sure that part of your costume is as plain as possible.

Fancy Not Fashion

If your dress has much detail, your shoes have bows, buckles or straps, your gloves are fancily cut, your hat is trimmed and of more than one color, your hair is curled and you wear a corsage, and your jewelry consists of a clip, earrings, bracelet and necklace and your purse is fancy, too, you give yourself away as having gone just about as far as you could in your desire to impress. Rather than win the admiration you are striving for, at best all you receive is some good-humored sympathy.

But with the same detailed dress, you could wear your earrings and bracelet, if you settled for plain gloves and shoes, a purse of the simplest lines and a hat that blended with your costume rather than climaxing it in too-showy fashion. Make it a rule—when in doubt about adding some touch to your costume, it's one touch too much!

Yonder Blessed Moon Again

I collect, among other things, strange Romeos. I was among the fortunate few who were at their radios when Milton Berle did the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet" and, by yonder blessed moon, it was an experience I shall not soon forget.

John Crosby

Then the other night, it was my privilege to witness Eddie Fisher playing Romeo opposite — oh, brother, this was a night — Margaret O'Brien's Juliet. Mr. Fisher is the well known minnesinger who drives young ladies out of their wits every time he bursts into song. I must confess I find Fisher pleasant to listen to. He has a lot of voice, as popular balladeers go, and he has great control of it. I find him less pleasant to watch. He has not yet learned what to do with his hands, or, for that matter, with the rest of his body.

Just the man to play Romeo. He played it, as it were, sheepishly, with a sort of half grin on his face, as if at any moment he expected Milton Berle to elbow him aside and take over. Even then I found him less distracting than Margaret O'Brien. Miss O'Brien is the only Juliet in my experience who looked much too young for the part. There have been a good many complaints in the past about great ladies of the stage, well into their forties, trying to impersonate this slip of a 14-year-old girl.

Well, they can bring the old girls back now. Miss O'Brien looked age 12 and sounded age 10. She whispered away, in her little girl manner, about high passion and ancient feuds as if she didn't really understand the words but was terribly proud of being able to pronounce them.

Altogether it was a memorable experience but one I hope I never have to repeat. I think I'll lay off "Romeo and Juliet" for a little while. I'm waiting for Red Buttons to tackle Romeo and, the way things are going, sooner or later he will. Everybody will.

The Fisher-O'Brien "Romeo" was just a small segment of the George Jessel show on ABC-TV, 6:30 p. m. EDT Sundays, a very strange show indeed. Mr. Jessel is one of the large properties signed up by ABC when it finally got some money after its merger with Paramount was approved. ABC has now exclusive use of Mr. Jessel, a mixed blessing if ever I heard one.

George Jessel is one of the few genuinely funny men I've ever met. He's been in show business since the decline and fall of the Roman empire; he can tell stories by the hour, both new and old, and he has a very quick wit—one of the quickest around. But he has an

Daily Bridge Lesson

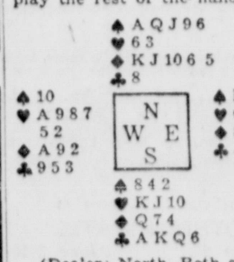
BID NOT MADE IS GUIDE

IT IS OBVIOUS that a bid made by a particular player gives information of some kind. In certain situations, failure of a player to bid is just as eloquent. When he shows up during the play with almost enough in high cards for a sound bid, the fact that he passed instead shows that his partner is virtually certain to hold any other important high card which had not yet appeared. That negative information can be the guide to the declarer on how to play the rest of the hand.



(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	3 NT	Pass
4 ♦	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♦	Pass	5 ♥	Dbl.
5 NT

This deal, reported by Philip Garland of Tacoma, Wash., as played by his favorite partner, Ed Cahill, of Seattle, in the recent Seafair tournament aboard a cruise ship in Puget Sound, featured several neat points. After the 5-Diamond Blackwood response showed that small slam was undesirable, and South wanted to get into 5-No Trumps, he patently couldn't reach that contract by bidding it, as North then would show kings at the six level. So the bid of a new suit at five, under the Blackwood convention, ordered North to bid the 5-No Trumps.

The heart 7 lead drew the Q and K. Mr. Cahill led the diamond Q to the A, whereupon West scored the heart A and led the 5, on which East tossed a club. West, now having shown a six-card suit and two aces, but not having bid, marked East as sure to have the spade K. Club length was virtually certain too in East's hand.

So Mr. Cahill then ran the last four diamonds, retaining his clubs and two spades. That was calculated to squeeze East, and did. Unable to hold four clubs and two spades, he on the last diamond discarded a club. That gave the declarer four club tricks and the spade A to have the required eleven. If East, to hold his four clubs, had trashed his guard to the spade K, the declarer would have taken three clubs and then would have led to the spade A to drop the K and wind up scoring the spade Q for the final trick.

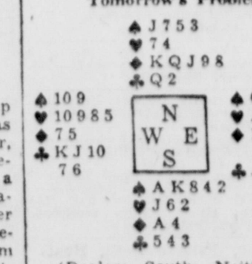
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

If the bidding here is merely 1-Spade by South, 3-Spades by North and 4-Spades by South, why should that direct West to the best opening lead?

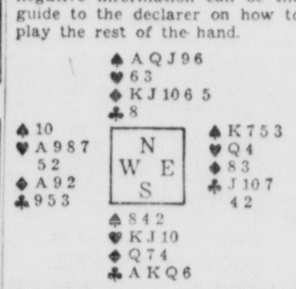
Daily Bridge Lesson

by Shepard Barclay

BID NOT MADE IS GUIDE

IT IS OBVIOUS that a bid made by a particular player gives information of some kind. In certain situations, failure of a player to bid is just as eloquent. When he shows up during the play with almost enough in high cards for a sound bid, the fact that he passed instead shows that his partner is virtually certain to hold any other important high card which had not yet appeared. That negative information can be the guide to the declarer on how to play the rest of the hand.



(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	3 NT	Pass
4 ♦	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♦	Pass	5 ♥	Dbl.
5 NT

This deal, reported by Philip Garland of Tacoma, Wash., as played by his favorite partner, Ed Cahill, of Seattle, in the recent Seafair tournament aboard a cruise ship in Puget Sound, featured several neat points. After the 5-Diamond Blackwood response showed that small slam was undesirable, and South wanted to get into 5-No Trumps, he patently couldn't reach that contract by bidding it, as North then would show kings at the six level. So the bid of a new suit at five, under the Blackwood convention, ordered North to bid the 5-No Trumps.

The heart 7 lead drew the Q and K. Mr. Cahill led the diamond Q to the A, whereupon West scored the heart A and led the 5, on which East tossed a club. West, now having shown a six-card suit and two aces, but not having bid, marked East as sure to have the spade K. Club length was virtually certain too in East's hand.

So Mr. Cahill then ran the last four diamonds, retaining his clubs and two spades. That was calculated to squeeze East, and did. Unable to hold four clubs and two spades, he on the last diamond discarded a club. That gave the declarer four club tricks and the spade A to have the required eleven. If East, to hold his four clubs, had trashed his guard to the spade K, the declarer would have taken three clubs and then would have led to the spade A to drop the K and wind up scoring the spade Q for the final trick.

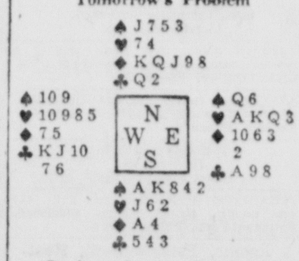
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

If the bidding here is merely 1-Spade by South, 3-Spades by North and 4-Spades by South, why should that direct West to the best opening lead?

Kelly Workers Granted 2½ Cent Wage Increase

Negotiations Began For New Pact July 29

A new contract granting a 2½ cents hourly wage increase for employes at the Kelly Springfield Tire Company, retroactive to September 7, was signed by company officials and members of Local 26, United Rubber Workers Union of America (CIO) yesterday at the plant conference room.

The new pact, which contains the usual 30-day reopening clause, also granted hospitalization and surgical benefits for employes and all dependants; an increased pension plan; increased weekly benefits for sickness and accident to be paid by the company; and the general wage hike.

Company officials, while not estimating the cost of the benefits granted the union, said last night approximately 1,800 employes of the tire plant will come under provisions of the new pact.

William G. Rice, president of Local No. 26, URCLPWA, reported members of the union had ratified the wage settlement offer by the company at meetings Wednesday night and yesterday. The signing of the new contract ended negotiations which have been going on between company and union officials since July 29.

Attending yesterday's contract signing were F. T. Bell, personnel manager; Henry Lowery, efficiency department; and Harry Nelson, employment labor department for the company, and Rice, A. E. Johnson, vice president of the union; George Simmons, executive board member; C. E. O'Baker, secretary; and Leo Barkman, member of the union wage committee for the Kelly workers.

Soil Supervisors Plan Election

The Allegany County Soil Conservation District Supervisors, meeting yesterday in the office of County Agent R. F. McHenry, made preliminary plans for a county-wide election Friday, November 6, at which three new supervisors will be elected.

Fred L. Bull, secretary of the State Soil Conservation Committee and extension soil conservationist at the University of Maryland, met with the supervisors to assist in the election preparations.

Any land-occupier in Allegany County will be eligible to vote, the supervisors report.

At yesterday's meeting, Martin M. Gordon, soil conservation aide, reported that 79 farmers were contacted during the past month. He also said that three more county farmers have been signed up as co-operators in the soil conservation program. They are John N. Dick, Flintstone; George Hartley, Little Orleans, and Conda O. Smith, Rawlings, who have a total of 577 acres.

Subsoiling has been started in the Piney Plains area. Farmers on whose land subsoiling already has been done are Kenneth Smith, Marshall Mann, Dale Mann, Conda N. Smith and J. C. Smith.

Daylight Time Ends In State Sunday At 2 A. M.

Maryland sets its clock back one hour Sunday at 2 a.m. ending the 1953 spring and summer session of Daylight Saving.

The Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroads will go back on Standard Time, taking the opportunity to make minor adjustments in some cases for more convenient train arrival and departure times.

Clocks will be set back even in some parts of Garrett County this year.

Oakland's mayor and council voted to join the savers of Daylight and adopt fast time last May for the first time. Other rural areas in Garrett and in other sections of the state remained on Standard and will not be affected by Sunday's clock changing.

Brothers Hurt When Car Hits Tree, Overturns

Dale And John Ritz Admitted To Memorial

Two brothers were injured, one critically, when the car in which they were riding sideswiped a tree and turned over several times near Buck Valley, Pa.

Admitted to Memorial Hospital yesterday afternoon were John Ritz, 18, driver of the automobile, and Dale Ritz, 25, his brother who was a passenger in the car. The former was reported in critical condition late last night by hospital attaches. He suffered a fractured left leg and internal injuries.

Dale Ritz was reported in good condition with chest injuries. X-rays were to be taken of both patients today.

Witnesses reported the mishap occurred near the Ritz Brothers general merchandise, owned by uncles of the two injured men.

The car was heading east away from the store toward Hancock, which is about 16 miles southeast of Buck Valley across the Maryland-Pennsylvania state border, when the accident happened.

The steering gear of the vehicle apparently locked causing the car to strike a large tree near the roadway a glancing blow. The force of the collision caused the car to turn over two or three times before coming to a stop beside the road.

Howard Grove, funeral director in Hancock, was called to the scene of the mishap which occurred about 1:15 p. m. and brought the brothers to Cumberland in his ambulance.

Pennsylvania State Police in McConnelsburg were notified of the accident and were investigating.

The car in which the two were riding was demolished, witnesses stated.

Guard To Form Camera Club, Unit Newspaper

Chief Warrant Officer Joseph E. Jolley, administrative assistant to the regimental commander, said about $300 in photo equipment has been purchased and a photography laboratory is being built in the Armory.

Already approximately 20 Guardsmen have applied to take photo instructions to be given one night a week beginning at 7 p. m. WO Jolley will be instructor.

Jolley added that if more than 20 members apply for photo instructions, classes will be held twice a week instead of the one originally planned.

Instruction in use of the camera, developing, printing and enlarging of photos will be taught, Jolley said. The units now have two enlargers, one stationary type and one vertical enlarger, three contact printers, lens filters, flood lights, portrait camera and a number of other cameras to be furnished by participating Guardsmen. The units also have an abundant supply of chemicals and photo printing paper.

The photo room, now being constructed, will be divided into two labs, Jolley said. Lumber and other material has been ordered.

Purpose of the camera club, which will be organized later, is to instruct Guardsmen how to take, develop and print pictures and to encourage members to take more pictures of Guard training and other activities.

Jolley said an exhibit of outstanding photos will be planned later. The only requisite for taking the instruction is that one must be a member of the National Guard.

The other project, a unit newspaper, was also started by WO Jolley. The first issue was printed by Jolley this week under the name panel of "The Dog Face."

Jolley said so much interest was shown in the mimeograph sheets, that the newspaper will be enlarged to include news from all three of the local units.

A staff will be selected from the units' membership and a regular date wiill be set for the paper's issue date. It will retain its name plate of "The Dog Face" which is characterized by the picture of a bull dog's head superimposed on a military helmet.

Ewing Praises Cooperation During State Air Raid Alert

Sherley Ewing, state Civil Defense director, praised the enthusiastic cooperation of various county and city directors and the public in general for the success of "Operation Check-up", Maryland's first state-wide air raid alert Tuesday afternoon.

Thanking all volunteers who aided in the alert, Ewing added, "the alert would never have gotten the support it did from the public if the newspapers, radios and television people hadn't publicized the event so wonderfully."

He pointed out for special commendation the U. S. Air Force, 29th Division Air Arm, Maryland National Guard, State Department of Aviation, Department of Health and Education, State Roads Commission, state police and "ham" radio operators.

Ewing went on to thank various state departments who actively participated in the test and congratulated the public for its co-operation in the exercise.

The operation, a check-up on existing warning systems and the public's reaction to the warning of an imminent enemy attack has been termed successful throughout the state by various Civil Defense officials.

Ewing went on to state that if one-tenth of the population of the state learned how to better protect themselves for a real attack he considered the test well worth while.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 24 (AP)—The Associated Press erred in reporting from Bedford, Pa., Sept. 17 that Sen. Morse (Ind-Ore.) had said "the Republican party is as dead as a dodo."

The Johnstown Tribune-Democrat, which reported the Morse speech for The Associated Press, made the recheck of the tape recording today and acknowledged the reporting error.

LaVale School Sketches Get Some Revisions

Architect Will Draw New Ones

Sketches on the proposed LaVale Elementary School were examined and revised yesterday by Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster and Dana Johannes of the Silver Spring architectural firm.

Johannes will prepare larger sketches which he will present to Webster for approval next Wednesday. These may be ready for presentation to the State Department of Education as preliminary plans. These preliminary sketches must get state approval before more detailed working drawings can be made.

Webster reports that as now planned the new school will have about 10 classrooms, a cafeteria, administrative offices and health rooms. There will be no gymnasium and auditorium in the new school at first. A stage will be erected at one end of the cafeteria so it can be used for school assemblies.

Later, when funds are available for construction of a junior high school addition to the school, a gymnasium and auditorium may be added, the superintendent said.

When the county's school construction program was curtailed from $6,000,000 to $3,500,000, Webster had to lop off plans for the junior high school portion of the LaVale school.

Monday, D. W. Madden of the Mt. Rainier architectural firm of Walton and Madden will meet with Webster to explain rough sketches he has prepared for the proposed additions to Carver and Oldtown Schools.

After the discussion, Webster took the pupils on a tour of the Board of Education Building to give them an opportunity to meet the various supervisors.

$1,000 Damage Caused In Truck-Cars Mishap

Close to $1,000 damage was done to two parked cars on North Mechanic Street yesterday afternoon when a coal truck went out of control and crashed into the vehicles.

About $800 damage was caused to an auto owned by Robert A. Ward, RD 1, Ridgeley; and about $150 damage was done to a car owned by Betty J. McHardy, 725 North Mechanic Street.

No charges were preferred against the truck driver. Police explained the accident was unavoidable since the broken spring hanger caused the truck bed to lean to one side throwing the vehicle out of control.

Grassland Farming Makes 'Green Gold' One Of State's Most Valuable Resources

"Green gold," or that commodity more commonly known as grass, has become one of the most important natural resources in Maryland.

The long-developing trend from crop to grassland farming reached a climax this year as more than half of the state's utilized farm acres were planted in grasses and legumes, according to an analysis by the Committee for Conservation now. About 1,475,000 out of approximately 2,800,000 acres this year are hay or pasture.

The greater "green gold" acreage has been especially valuable this summer because there were more acres of hay and pasture to counteract dry weather, the committee added.

The grass and legume land consists of about 499,000 acres of hay, 450,000 acres of rotation pasture, about 350,000 acres of non-cropland pasture and about 165,000 acres of woodland pasture.

Stimulated By Stock Raising

Increasing livestock production in Maryland has been the biggest factor in stimulating the switch to grassland farming, the committee pointed out. The "green gold" increase also has been stimulated by improved growing and conserving methods and by a growing recognition of the importance of grasses and legumes to soil and water conservation.

Home production of pasture, hay and grass silage crops makes for most efficient meat and milk production because it reduces the need for importation of such feed from other states, the committee said. Substantial amounts of hay are still imported annually.

New methods of establishing grasses and legumes, such as chopping up old sod and keeping it near the surface, are insuring better production, with less soil and water loss. Grass silage-making methods have been improved, and hay driers are insuring better curing.

Protect Soil Quality

The extensive root systems of grasses and legumes supply food for needed soil bacteria, increase the water-holding capacity of the soil, improve aeration, supply nitrogen and protect the soil from erosion, according to agronomists. Grasses and legumes also are valuable in crop rotations, and crop yields on the average are doubled in rotations with improved grasslands.

While corn has a higher animal feed nutrient value per acre, it costs more to raise and expose farm land to greater damage from erosion and depletion, the committee pointed out. Annual plowing and periodic tillage for such crops as corn adversely affect the physical condition of the soil by removing fertility, breaking down structure, lessening moisture retention capacity, increasing tillage difficulties and reducing crop yields.

Although grass and legume acreage is increasing in the state, crops such as corn, wheat, barley, oats, tobacco and vegetables will continue to have a high place in the state's agriculture, the committee said. Cultivated crops are valuable in rotations as well as for feed and food.

Several Factors Considered

Types of grasses and legumes grown in Maryland are determined by soil, climate, drainage, elevation and time conditions. Some grasses do better on certain soils or at certain elevations. Advice on types and combinations best suited to a farm and on establishing good stands is available from county agents.

Principal varieties of grasses are blue grass, the most popular, orchard grass, sudan grass, timothy, brome grass, tall fescue, rye grass and a newcomer, pearlmillet. Most common legumes are alfalfa, clovers and lespedeza.

The value of grasses and legumes for feeding livestock has been demonstrated in experiments, the committee reported. In one case, an acre of clover-fescue pasture produced as many units for beef cattle as 128 bushels of corn per acre.

Value Established

In another case, an acre of pasture produced the equivalent in feed units of 87 bushels of corn where only 50 bushels of corn could be grown; and the pasture return per man hour of labor was $23.09 as against $4.69 for the corn.

Improved grasslands have been proved capable of producing most or all feed required for some livestock. Dairy cows can produce 80 per cent as much milk on improved pasture alone as on the best combinations of concentrate feed, and beef cattle have been produced on pasture alone.

Kelly Workers Granted 2½ Cent Wage Increase

Negotiations Began For New Pact July 29

A new contract granting a 2½ cents hourly wage increase for employes at the Kelly Springfield Tire Company, retroactive to September 7, was signed by company officials and members of Local 26, United Rubber Workers Union of America (CIO) yesterday at the plant conference room.

The new pact, which contains the usual 30-day reopening clause, also granted hospitalization and surgical benefits for employes and all dependants; an increased pension plan; increased weekly benefits for sickness and accident to be paid by the company; and the general wage hike.

Company officials, while not estimating the cost of the benefits granted the union, said last night approximately 1,800 employes of the tire plant will come under provisions of the new pact.

William G. Rice, president of Local No. 26, URCLPWA, reported members of the union had ratified the wage settlement offer by the company at meetings Wednesday night and yesterday. The signing of the new contract ended negotiations which have been going on between company and union officials since July 29.

Attending yesterday's contract signing were F. T. Bell, personnel manager; Henry Lowery, efficiency department; and Harry Nelson, employment labor department for the company, and Rice, A. E. Johnson, vice president of the union; George Simmons, executive board member; C. E. O'Baker, secretary; and Leo Barkman, member of the union wage committee for the Kelly workers.

Soil Supervisors Plan Election

The Allegany County Soil Conservation District Supervisors, meeting yesterday in the office of County Agent R. F. McHenry, made preliminary plans for a county-wide election Friday, November 6, at which three new supervisors will be elected.

Fred L. Bull, secretary of the State Soil Conservation Committee and extension soil conservationist at the University of Maryland, met with the supervisors to assist in the election preparations.

Any land-occupier in Allegany County will be eligible to vote, the supervisors report.

At yesterday's meeting, Martin M. Gordon, soil conservation aide, reported that 79 farmers were contacted during the past month. He also said that three more county farmers have been signed up as co-operators in the soil conservation program. They are John N. Dick, Flintstone; George Hartley, Little Orleans, and Conda O. Smith, Rawlings, who have a total of 577 acres.

Subsoiling has been started in the Piney Plains area. Farmers on whose land subsoiling already has been done are Kenneth Smith, Marshall Mann, Dale Mann, Conda N. Smith and J. C. Smith.

Daylight Time Ends In State Sunday At 2 A. M.

Maryland sets its clock back one hour Sunday at 2 a.m. ending the 1953 spring and summer session of Daylight Saving.

The Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroads will go back on Standard Time, taking the opportunity to make minor adjustments in some cases for more convenient train arrival and departure times.

Clocks will be set back even in some parts of Garrett County this year.

Oakland's mayor and council voted to join the savers of Daylight and adopt fast time last May for the first time. Other rural areas in Garrett and in other sections of the state remained on Standard and will not be affected by Sunday's clock changing.

Brothers Hurt When Car Hits Tree, Overturns

Dale And John Ritz Admitted To Memorial

Two brothers were injured, one critically, when the car in which they were riding sideswiped a tree and turned over several times near Buck Valley, Pa.

Admitted to Memorial Hospital yesterday afternoon were John Ritz, 18, driver of the automobile, and Dale Ritz, 25, his brother who was a passenger in the car. The former was reported in critical condition late last night by hospital attaches. He suffered a fractured left leg and internal injuries.

Dale Ritz was reported in good condition with chest injuries. X-rays were to be taken of both patients today.

Witnesses reported the mishap occurred near the Ritz Brothers general merchandise, owned by uncles of the two injured men.

The car was heading east away from the store toward Hancock, which is about 16 miles southeast of Buck Valley across the Maryland-Pennsylvania state border, when the accident happened.

The steering gear of the vehicle apparently locked causing the car to strike a large tree near the roadway a glancing blow. The force of the collision caused the car to turn over two or three times before coming to a stop beside the road.

Howard Grove, funeral director in Hancock, was called to the scene of the mishap which occurred about 1:15 p. m. and brought the brothers to Cumberland in his ambulance.

Pennsylvania State Police in McConnelsburg were notified of the accident and were investigating.

The car in which the two were riding was demolished, witnesses stated.

Local units of the First Battalion, 115th Regiment, Maryland National Guard, this week began two recreational projects — forming a camera club nad establishing a unit newspaper.

Chief Warrant Officer Joseph E. Jolley, administrative assistant to the regimental commander, said about $300 in photo equipment has been purchased and a photography laboratory is being built in the Armory.

Already approximately 20 Guardsmen have applied to take photo instructions to be given one night a week beginning at 7 p. m. WO Jolley will be instructor.

Jolley added that if more than 20 members apply for photo instructions, classes will be held twice a week instead of the one originally planned.

Instruction in use of the camera, developing, printing and enlarging of photos will be taught, Jolley said. The units now have two enlargers, one stationary type and one vertical enlarger, three contact printers, lens filters, flood lights, portrait camera and a number of other cameras to be furnished by participating Guardsmen. The units also have an abundant supply of chemicals and photo printing paper.

The photo room, now being constructed, will be divided into two labs, Jolley said. Lumber and other material has been ordered.

Purpose of the camera club, which will be organized later, is to instruct Guardsmen how to take, develop and print pictures and to encourage members to take more pictures of Guard training and other activities.

Jolley said an exhibit of outstanding photos will be planned later. The only requisite for taking the instruction is that one must be a member of the National Guard.

The other project, a unit newspaper, was also started by WO Jolley. The first issue was printed by Jolley this week under the name panel of "The Dog Face."

Jolley said so much interest was shown in the mimeograph sheets, that the newspaper will be enlarged to include news from all three of the local units.

A staff will be selected from the units' membership and a regular date wiill be set for the paper's issue date. It will retain its name plate of "The Dog Face" which is characterized by the picture of a bull dog's head superimposed on a military helmet.

Ewing Praises Cooperation During State Air Raid Alert

Sherley Ewing, state Civil Defense director, praised the enthusiastic cooperation of various county and city directors and the public in general for the success of "Operation Check-up", Maryland's first state-wide air raid alert Tuesday afternoon.

Thanking all volunteers who aided in the alert, Ewing added, "the alert would never have gotten the support it did from the public if the newspapers, radios and television people hadn't publicized the event so wonderfully."

He pointed out for special commendation the U. S. Air Force, 29th Division Air Arm, Maryland National Guard, State Department of Aviation, Department of Health and Education, State Roads Commission, state police and "ham" radio operators.

Ewing went on to thank various state departments who actively participated in the test and congratulated the public for its co-operation in the exercise.

The operation, a check-up on existing warning systems and the public's reaction to the warning of an imminent enemy attack has been termed successful throughout the state by various Civil Defense officials.

Ewing went on to state that if one-tenth of the population of the state learned how to better protect themselves for a real attack he considered the test well worth while.

LaVale School Sketches Get Some Revisions

Architect Will Draw New Ones

Sketches on the proposed LaVale Elementary School were examined and revised yesterday by Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster and Dana Johannes of the Silver Spring architectural firm.

Johannes will prepare larger sketches which he will present to Webster for approval next Wednesday. These may be ready for presentation to the State Department of Education as preliminary plans. These preliminary sketches must get state approval before more detailed working drawings can be made.

Webster reports that as now planned the new school will have about 10 classrooms, a cafeteria, administrative offices and health rooms. There will be no gymnasium and auditorium in the new school at first. A stage will be erected at one end of the cafeteria so it can be used for school assemblies.

Later, when funds are available for construction of a junior high school addition to the school, a gymnasium and auditorium may be added, the superintendent said.

When the county's school construction program was curtailed from $6,000,000 to $3,500,000, Webster had to lop off plans for the junior high school portion of the LaVale school.

Monday, D. W. Madden of the Mt. Rainier architectural firm of Walton and Madden will meet with Webster to explain rough sketches he has prepared for the proposed additions to Carver and Oldtown Schools.

Pupils Interview Superintendent

Three ninth grade pupils from Fort Hill High School conferred yesterday afternoon with Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster so they could get an idea of his duties to report back to their social studies classes.

"Education And The Country" is the current project of the ninth graders. Their teacher, James E. Higgins, Jr., assigned one pupil from each of his three sections of the class to interview Webster and report back to class today.

The pupils, Ronald Shanholtzer, Carol Parks and Joyce Reed, discussed the superintendent's duties, grounds for discharge of a superintendent and the functions of the various supervisors. After the discussion, Webster took the pupils on a tour of the Board of Education Building to give them an opportunity to meet the various supervisors.

$1,000 Damage Caused In Truck-Cars Mishap

Close to $1,000 damage was done to two parked cars on North Mechanic Street yesterday afternoon when a coal truck went out of control and crashed into the vehicles.

The large truck, loaded with coal, was traveling south on North Mechanic Street in the 700 block when the accident occurred.

About $800 damage was caused to an auto owned by Robert A. Ward, RD 1, Ridgeley; and about $150 damage was done to a car owned by Betty J. McHardy, 725 North Mechanic Street.

No charges were preferred against the truck driver. Police explained the accident was unavoidable since the broken spring hanger caused the truck bed to lean to one side throwing the vehicle out of control.
